Leaders Call For House Vote Today On Tax Bill

Will Be Put Off Until Tomorrow if Roll Call Is Asked; Measure A Victory for Senate

Congressional tax draftsmen yesterday reported a $3,553,400,000 "compromise" National defense revenue bill to the House and called for final passage today or tomorrow.

The conference bill, actually drafted last week but not officially announced until yesterday, represented a sweeping victory for Senate base-broadening forces. The House group yielded on all but 29 of 164 Senate amendments.

A heralded floor skirmish failed to develop when the House sent the big revenue measure to conference without any protest from House labor members to the proposed decrease in individual income tax exemptions from $800 to $750 for single persons and from $2000 to $1800 for married.

Although a final House vote was scheduled for today, it will be postponed until tomorrow if a roll call count of members is demanded, Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee announced.

Standing Vote Likely

The rank and file of House members appeared willing to allow the politically explosive measure to ride to passage without a record vote, but possibility of a roll call placed leaders on their guard. A bare House quorum was present yesterday. More will return from vacations today, but managers will not chance a roll call until tomorrow, when a full attendance is expected.

As redrafted in conference, the bill represents a $30,500,000 reduction under the total of the Senate bill, but carries $827,400,000 more revenue than the bill that first passed the House.

Major decisions broadening the income tax base, raising corporate surtaxes, eliminating the special 10 per cent excess profits tax on corporations not earning sufficient to be reached by the regular profits levy, and creation of a joint committee to search for two billion dollars in nondefense economies, were reported last week.

Excess Tax Figure Cut

The official version of the conference report disclosed a number of unreported decisions, among which were the following:

Reduction to 6 per cent tax on local telephone bills proposed by the Senate.

A compromise on wine tax rates, midway between the steep Senate excises and the modest House figures, to 8 cents a gallon on wines of 14 per cent or less alcoholic content; 30 cents on wines between 14 and 21 per cent alcoholic, and 65 cents on wines between 21 and 24 per cent alcoholic.

The Senate increase in the rate on sparkling wines to seven cents and the tax on cordials to 2½ cents was accepted, as was the Senate increase in the tax on brandy to $4 a gallon, same as whiskey rates.

Tax on electric light bulbs cut from 10 per cent to 5 per cent.

House-approved one-sixth of a cent tax on soft drinks eliminated.

House-approved tax on radio time sales and billboards eliminated.

Outstanding Senate victory was lowering of individual tax exemptions, not considered in the original House bill.

"This reduction in the personal exemption," conferees reported, "will require the filing of 4,930,000 new income tax returns and will increase the number of income taxpayers by 2,275,000. Of the 4,930,000 new returns, 4,453,000 will come from married persons and heads of families and 477,000 will come from single persons. Of the 2,275,000 new taxpayers, 1,850,000 will be married persons and 425,000 will be single."

Trimmings Cut Off for Defense

OPM to Decree Simple Styles, No More Frills, Retailers Told

"Simplification" of styles and lines in the retail trade will be decreed "within a day or so" by the Office of Production Management, Donald M. Nelson, executive director of the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board, disclosed last night.

The action will be taken, Nelson said, as part of a national move to double the production of defense goods.

"If we don't double our present effort, and pile still more on top of that, we face the fate that has overtaken a dozen other nations who gave too little and gave it too late," the SPAB's chief asserted.

Nelson's declaration was made before a gathering of 600 merchant leaders from over the Nation who assembled at the Mayflower Hotel last night to launch "Retailers for Defense" week—in which 500,000 retail stores will boost the sales of defense stamps and set in operation a 14-point program of cooperation with the national defense effort.

Elizabeth Tommers

Just as styles and lines will be reduced, Nelson told the retailers, so will "frills and trimmings" be cut down so that there can be concentration on military and civilian essentials.

"That means—for the duration of the emergency—a somewhat lower standard of living for all of us, particularly as to the luxuries we practically take for granted," the priorities director pointed out.

Nelson delivered a blistering attack on those who sow "doubt and confusion" in the defense program "by preaching disunity, stirring racial or religious hatreds and suspicions, arguing that our perils are imaginary, and that this emergency is synthetic.

"They want you to think that there is no danger of military action against the Western Hemis-

Testimony Makes Willkie Mad

Fidler Tells of Attempt to Ban Criticism of 'Propaganda Film'

Jimmy Fidler, movie commentator, yesterday charged that nine well-known motion pictures contained war propaganda and told a Senate committee he had been offered a $2500 "bribe" for a favorable review of a picture.

In turn, Fidler was termed by Wendell Willkie, counsel for the picture producers "a gossip writer — one who makes his living by unsupported and unproven statements about other people."

And the man named by Fidler as having offered him the "bribe" promptly wired a denial and demanded an opportunity to appear before the committee, which will be granted.

The commentator told the Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee, which is investigating charges of war propaganda in the films, that Hollywood producers had attempted to suppress publication of his newspaper column because of his criticism of the alleged propaganda.

Jimmy Fidler

Willkie, who clashed repeatedly last week with Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, and other isolationist Senators on the committee, did not attend yesterday's hearing, telling reporters that "I haven't time to waste listening to one who makes his living by purveying gossip even if the committee has."

Fidler was commended as "fearless" by Senator Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, but Senator McFarland (Democrat), of Arizona, at the end of the day

Kelly, Citing 59 Deaths, Calls For New Drive on Jaywalking

A renewed drive on the Capital's jaywalking regulations was demanded yesterday by Police Chief Edward J. Kelly as traffic experts took steps to cut down the toll of traffic fatalities and accidents due to the approach of the school season.

Alarmed over the sharp rise in fatalities this month, which already has passed the monthly tolls of February, March, May, June and August, Maj. Kelly sent a memorandum yesterday to his force citing the 59 deaths so far this year.

Forty-four of the deaths, he said, were pedestrians. Of these, ten were crossing the street not at crosswalk; five walked or ran between parked cars; four walked against red lights; three were intoxicated; one child was on roller skates and one person stepped off a streetcar loading platform. He asked that all men be "on the alert" and to take proper action in every instance of a violation of the pedestrian control regulations.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer yesterday warned school children to cross the streets at regular crosswalks, never to play in the street and not to cross streets from between parked cars.

Van Duzer pointed out that nine children of school age were killed in accidents during the last school year.

"This is just nine too many," he added.

In seven of these cases the driver of the vehicle was exonerated. In the other two, one driver was charged with manslaughter and the other with negligent homicide. In the cases where the drivers were

Citizens Urge District Budget Be Pared to Avert Tax Rise

Citizen pleas for close paring of the District's 1942-43 fiscal-year budget to keep it within expected revenues, and strong petitions against any increase in municipal taxes were left with the Commissioners last night at the conclusion of day-long public hearings.

After listening to more than 30 civic, labor and motor club leaders' demand a balanced budget and greater Federal participation in local defense expenses, the city heads went to work on the gigantic task of clipping some eight million dollars from the 65 million dollar combined department estimates.

Final drafts of the revised document will go to the Bureau of the Budget "sometime next week," Commissioner John Russell Young announced.

Postponement of capital improvements not essential to direct support of national defense or are not classified as "immediate" community needs was urged by Fred A. Smith, president of the Washington Board of Trade.

"We believe," he told the Commissioners, "that in the consideration of this budget only capital improvements which fall into the first class (national defense) and the most urgently needed of those falling into the second class (community necessities) should be constructed."

He explained that adoption of the proposed policy "in no way"

Nazis Hurled Back

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Tuesday), Sept. 16. The sinking of eight German vessels, including five troop-jammed transports, in the repulse of a Nazi landing attempt on the Baltic island of Oesel and in a clash in Arctic waters was announced today by the Russians.

In the biggest of the two engagements, the Soviet Information Bureau said, four transports and two destroyers were sent to the bottom by Soviet naval, air and shore units which smashed the Germans attacking Oesel, an island off Estonia, where Russia left strong forces after withdrawing from the Estonian mainland.

The landing force was wiped out, the communique said, and two transports and several torpedo boats among several others badly damaged.

In the Arctic, off Petsamo, still another transport was declared sunk along with an escort vessel. The Oesel clash occurred last Saturday, but the date of the Arctic sinkings was not given.

Rumanian Ports Bombed

Apparently out to smash any German effort to launch large-scale operations in the Black Sea on the south, the Red air force heavily pounded Constanta and Sulina, on the Rumanian coast, and Galati, Danubian oil port, on Saturday.

The defenders of Odessa, strongly supported by sailors of the Black Sea fleet, were reported to have smashed redoubled German and Rumanian efforts to breach the besieged city's defenses.

On the zig-zagging Western Front it was declared officially that the Germans are losing control of the occupied Russian areas by stripping their rear garrisons to fill gaps caused by enormous losses on the fighting lines.

Today's morning communique confined its report of Western Front fighting to its stock phrase—stubborn battles all along the line—while last night's official announcement stressed the situation back of the lines.

Island Guards Gulf of Finland

Oesel Island, scene of Saturday's naval action, lies athwart the entrance to Riga Bay and guards the approaches to the Gulf of Finland. The 1,010 square-mile island has an irregular coast affording numerous hiding places for Soviet warships on the alert against any German effort to bottle up the Red Baltic sea force.

The northeast tip of the island is only about 15 miles from the

Pope Asks All Of Faith to Pray For World Peace

Vatican City, Sept. 15 (AP).—Pope Pius XII asked Catholics throughout the world today to pray during the month of October for a shortening of the war.

His appeal for special prayer was made to bishops through Papal representatives in each country, the Vatican City newspaper, Il Osservatore Romano, announced.

The Pope's call was similar to those he has made the last two years at the approach of October, the month dedicated to the madonna in the Catholic calendar.

"May this new, unanimous, solemn supplication asked by the Pope," Osservatore Romano said, "serve to hasten the prophetic day when all humanity, consoled by faith and Christian life, will find again, in harmony between the earthly and heavenly fatherlands, true prosperity of both individuals and nations."

Navy to Start Shooting Today At Raiders on Iceland Route; 3½ Billion in Aid Contracts Let

190 Millions in Arms Sent Abroad; 324 Millions in Services, Goods Contributed

(President's Letter, Page 10.)

By Robert C. Albright

President Roosevelt yesterday prefaced an expected new $5,985,000,000 lend-lease program with a report that 90 per cent of the original seven-billion-dollar fund has been allocated toward crushing "the disturbers of our peace."

The President reported that of $6,281,237,421 marked for specific aid materials and services, contracts have been let for $3,555,587,895. He said the balance will be obligated in the next few weeks.

This Government has already supplied Britain and its allied democracies with $324,565,748 in goods and services, he said. Of this, $190,447,070 in arms and supplies actually has been exported to the theater of war.

New Estimates Ready

As the President reported a start in a torrent of aid aimed at "final and total victory," his leaders were informed at a White House conference that estimates are complete for a nearly six-billion-dollar supplementary program of help.

The new estimates, it was learned, will be earmarked under the same nine categories of aid as the first, but will provide a large increase in funds set aside for food and products.

More than one billion dollars of the total, it was said, will be used to supplement the hundreds of thousands of tons of food the President reported have already "gone safely across the North Atlantic to maintain the health and stamina of British workmen and British soldiers."

Congratulates Russians

None of the lend-lease funds, legislators were told, would be budgeted for Russia, although neither the first nor the supplementary estimate carries any prohibition on gifts to the Soviet.

The President, paying tribute to "gallant" Russian resistance, meanwhile pointed out in his report that the Soviet government is purchasing such war materials as it needs with its own funds through its regular purchasing agency.

Rather than supply Russian needs through lend-lease machinery, it was suggested in one quarter that priorities will be invoked to speed deliveries of purchased equipment, and that if Soviet funds run low separate legislation may be offered to supplement them. Authorization for Jesse Jones' Export-Import Bank to make direct loans to the besieged nation has been discussed.

Separation of the aid-to-Russia issue from the lend-lease debate was expected by the leadership to smooth the road to Congressional approval of the second installment of anti-Axis funds.

Estimates will reach Congress later this week, probably Thursday. Hearings before the House Deficiency Appropriations subcommittee, under Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, are

Argentines Vote To Expel Nazis; Envoy Censured

By the Associated Press

Buenos Aires, Sept. 15.—The Argentine Congress voted, 79 to 1, today for the expulsion within three days of the ringleaders of Nazi undercover organizations, among whom its so-called "Dies Committee" named German Ambassador Edmund von Thermann.

The Nazi envoy was not mentioned by name in the ouster demand, but the resolution did censure him for abusing diplomatic privileges, in a form that holds him persona non grata in Argentina.

It was the first time since the war's outbreak that an Axis envoy of top rank has been the target of such drastic action by a neutral nation in the Western Hemisphere.

Meanwhile, Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, former Nazi consul-general at San Francisco, was being kept under surveillance by detectives. Wiedemann, reported en route to a diplomatic post in the Orient, previously had said he was in South America on a special mission for Adolf Hitler.

Gestapo Agents Given Lists Of U. S. Weapons to Spy On

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 15. — William G. Sebold, who turned his German assignment in espionage over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, testified today that he came here with specific instructions for uncovering startling new devices in modern warfare.

He told a Federal court judge and jury trying 16 men on charges of espionage conspiracy that a German Gestapo leader had given him five micro-photographs of instructions to be distributed to spies here.

One of the postage stamp size documents, which Sebold said was addressed early last year to Frederick Duquesne, a defendant, asked for detailed information on:

An American Telephone & Telegraph Co. bombing device, believed offered to Britain and France, under which one ray would direct a bomber to its target while another ray would release the bombs over the target.

All details on the size, capacity, production and delivery of a French Petez Co. aircraft plant believed to have been established in Montreal.

A new type of uniform effective against mustard gas.

An antiaircraft shell with an "electric eye," with details on its firing, comparison with ordinary antiaircraft shells, mechanism for rendering unexploded shells harmless and the distance from a plane at which it would explode.

Production and delivery by all the leading American aircraft plants.

Discoveries and tests in bacteriological warfare.

New gas-mask developments.

The tests and Army usage of "trench crushers."

Catalog of newest radio sending and receiving devices and latest operators' manuals.

New gun-turret design for Sunderland flying boats.

Sperry range finders, especially whether they are equipped to record changes in altitude.

A new metal-cleaning compound perfected by the Curaz Corporation, Malden, Mass.

The instructions concluded with a warning to German agents to "report immediately any signs of American mobilization" and the shipment of war materials and Army units.

Sebold said he delivered the instructions to Duquesne in New York shortly after his arrival from Germany.

Proclamation Is Reinterpreted to Let U. S. Ships Use Some British Empire Ports

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

The Navy begins a "shooting" policy today, with orders to protect as far as Iceland the ships of any flag carrying lend-lease cargoes, Navy Secretary Knox revealed yesterday, as the Administration moved to free American shipping from Neutrality Act restrictions, perhaps by asking sweeping changes in the law.

Another important development, a ruling by Attorney General Biddle, gave American ships permission to carry war weapons to such points, hitherto barred to them, as Suez, Burma, Hongkong, Labrador and Newfoundland by reinterpreting the President's proclamation defining war zones.

"Beginning tomorrow," Knox told the American Legion convention in Milwaukee yesterday, "the American Navy will provide protection as adequate as we can make it for ships of every flag carrying lend-aid supplies between the American continent and the waters adjacent to Iceland.

"To Capture or Destroy"

"These ships are ordered to capture or destroy by every means at their disposal Axis-controlled submarines or surface raiders encountered in these waters."

As Knox announced the "zero hour" for what might become an undeclared naval war with Germany, the President was considering the advisability of asking Congress to revise or even to repeal the neutrality law, which forbids American vessels to enter combat zone, which includes English ports, and also forbids the arming of merchant ships.

Citing the ruling by Biddle, the State Department gave permission to American ships to call at key ports in British overseas possessions, where they have previously not been allowed to enter.

Forbidden Zone Shrinks

Biddle authorized this in an opinion, dated August 29, which ruled that the term United Kingdom, as used in the President's neutrality proclamation, includes only England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, and does not include British overseas colonies and dependencies except those specifically named in the proclamation.

The proclamation of November 4, 1939, forbade American ships to carry munitions to the United Kingdom, India, Australia, Canada, New Zealand and the Union of South Africa. Under Biddle's ruling, tak-

Auto Output For December Cut by Half

OPM Is Expected To Act on Other Nondefense Items

By Nicholas P. Gregory
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

The Office of Production Management ordered a 48.4 per cent cut in December production of passenger automobiles yesterday in order to conserve strategic materials for defense needs. Simultaneously it disclosed efforts to find new jobs for auto plant employes who will be affected by the cut.

The December cut brings the average reduction of passenger car production for the five-month period of the 1942 model year from August 1 to December 31 to 32.2 per cent. Last month OPM ordered a 26½ per cent cut during the months of August, September, October and November.

Production of passenger automobiles will be cut further in ensuing months until it is curtailed 50 per cent for the entire model year ending July 31, 1942.

Other Items Face Cut

As the newly created Supply Priorities and Allocation Board swung into its policy of drastically cutting non-defensive production, it was reported that the auto cut will be followed by lower production schedules for such other nondefense industries as washing machines, vacuum cleaners, ironers and other household appliances. Credit restrictions are already in effect for instalment buying of consumers durable goods needing in their manufacture varying quantities of aluminum, chromium, copper, nickel, rubber and steel.

The announcement of smaller passenger car output was made following a meeting between Leon Henderson, director of OPM's

Harriman Sees British Chiefs On Russian Aid

Beaverbrook Named Head of English Mission to Moscow

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 15.—W. Averell Harriman rushed into conferences with the British tonight to find out how many United States guns, tanks and planes they will spare to Russia before the American delegation he heads hurries on to Moscow for three-power meetings to complete a plan of deliveries.

Meanwhile, the British economic mission to Moscow, with Lord Beaverbrook at its head, was named soon after Harriman conferred with Prime Minister Winston Churchill and after long editorial criticism over delays in selecting its members.

The British-American group is expected to leave as soon as possible after a series of hurried consultations.

The British delegation will include a military mission already in Moscow—Lieut. Gen. F. M. Mason-MacFarlane, Rear Admiral Miles and Air Vice Marshal A. C. Collier—and these other members from London: Capt. H. H. Balfour, undersecretary of state for air; Maj. Gen. Sir Hastings Ismay and Maj. Gen. G. N. MacReady.

Within an hour after Harriman and other top members of the United States mission arrived from the bombers which flew them across the Atlantic, Harriman had begun conferences.

The pressure for speed was indicated by the announcement of expanding British aid to Russia and by reports from the front indicating acute danger for the Red Army in the Ukraine.

Shortly after the announcement that an R. A. F. wing of planes, men, fuel and munitions had

Producers Defy Henderson, Boost Hard-Coal Prices

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 15 (AP).—In defiance of a price-freezing order by Leon Henderson, Federal price administrator, Pennsylvania anthracite producers today boosted prices 15 cents a ton at the mine.

The eight major hard coal producers notified Henderson last Friday that they could not accede to his order fixing prices at the August 15 level. They said the price increase was necessary to meet wage advances granted miners in the present union-management contract.

Henderson, in his order, said he was rejecting the 15-cent-a-ton increase because the large producers had failed to supply requested information that would show whether an increase was necessary.

Third Army's Planes Grounded As Great Maneuvers Begin

By Rice Yahner
Associated Press Staff Writer

With Third Army in Louisiana, Sept. 15.—The United States' massive Third Army temporarily grounded its combat aviation—almost 400 planes—today after a collision of planes killed one pilot and increased to five the fatalities in the first day of maneuvers with the Second Army.

Four soldiers, including a captain, were killed in predawn traffic accidents in blackouts and thousands of troop-carrying vehicles, armored cars and tanks rumbled into no-man's land in west central Louisiana for the games testing the strength, training and staff work of 400,000 officers and men.

Only part of the Third Army's air force was able to take the air in the stormy weather, the curtailment of aerial reconnaissance giving the south-bound Second Army an initial spurt in its power drive toward Lake Charles and the Third Army Base.

Second Lieut. John Bobroski, of Racine, Wis., attached to the Eighth Pursuit Group, plummeted to his death in a flaming Army pursuit ship of the Second Army near Coushatta, La., after figuring in a collision with a Navy dive bomber, piloted by Lieut. R. B. Woodhull,

War's Sidelights

Tanner to Go To Germany For Parleys

By the United Press

Helsinki, Sept. 15.—Vaino A. Tanner, Finnish minister of commerce and one of the most influential men in the cabinet, announced tonight that he was heading a delegation leaving Wednesday morning by airplane for Berlin.

The disclosure followed by 24 hours a speech in which Tanner said Finland would fight only so long as her own interests were served. Political circles accepted the speech as a sensational exposition of the nation's war aims.

Tanner said he expected to spend several days in Berlin and then proceed to Vienna. Details of exchange between Germany and Finland were expected to be discussed, along with transit from Italy to Finland.

Though Tanner's Sunday speech contained all the ingredients for brewing a separate peace he denied that it was intended to reflect such a desire on the part of the Government.

Pravda Assails Finns

Moscow, Sept. 15 (AP).—The newspaper Pravda said today that Finland was "devastated, hungry, poverty-stricken and facing the future with the greatest anxiety" and that "many Finns begin to realize that the adventurous policies of the dishonest rulers of Finland have brought the country to the edge of the precipice."

Finnish leaders who opposed the government's policies are being hounded, Pravda, the Communist Party organ added. It predicted that the Finnish people will make "this pitiful gang of Hitler servants . . . pay for its sufferings."

Warning to Japan

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—Alfred Duff Cooper, British minister assigned to the Far East, was quoted by the British radio today as broadcasting a "sober and guarded warning" to Japan that she is an "isolated power, facing an overwhelming superiority in the Pacific."

The cabinet member is now in Singapore. The broadcast was heard by CBS.

"It seems, therefore, hardly believable that the one Axis power in the Pacific world will deliberately bring down on her head the concentrated wrath and fury of all the Allied powers that stand firmly united on this side of the world," he said.

Berlin, Sept. 15.—A decree signed by the general commissar for internal security in The Hague orders that the appearance of Jews on the streets of the Netherlands will be governed by the same regulations at present prevailing in Germany.

Jews will be subject to a curfew, a ban on traveling from their home towns, and will have to wear a yellow Star of David on the left breasts of their clothing.

Russians Repelled In Counterattacks, Berlin Declares

By the Associated Press

Berlin (Tuesday) Sept. 16.—The German armies claimed today they had beaten off repeated Russian counter-attacks supported by heavy tanks in a great and continuing struggle yard by yard for possession of powerful modern fortifications of Leningrad.

[The New York Times reported the Germans were losing around 4000 men a day.]

More than 500 motor vehicles were reported destroyed in a new German aerial thrust east of the Dnieper River, hundreds of miles south of the Leningrad front.

D. N. B., reporting on broad scale action of the Luftwaffe, said also that a Russian armored train and six transport trains were halted by bombardment and various artillery positions knocked out of action.

Ranging over northern waters, German airmen also "effectively attacked" Red army forces still clinging to Oesel Island, at the mouth of the Gulf of Riga, the official news agency said.

The semicircular line of men and steel seeking to throttle that second city of Russia steadily pressed inward, the high command said, but was meeting the most stubborn resistance from inner Red positions which were pictured in other accounts as obstacles fully as formidable as any ever breasted by German forces.

Reds Charge Nazi Lines

Against numerous Soviet bunkers in great depth—some bunkers had steel and concrete walls 6 feet thick and were equipped with revolving gun cupolas—the Germans hurled their heaviest artillery, tanks and bombers, and sent crack infantry surging behind.

Now and again, German shells cleared a position and foot soldiers moved in a few yards closer to the city.

A single German division reported it had broken five bunkers; north of Leningrad German-Finnish forces claimed to have knocked out 150.

Of Soviet counteraction there was no detail beyond the official report that Red troops supported by big tanks had charged the German lines again and again, the counter-attack each time collapsing.

At some points German troops have pushed to within 15 miles of the center of Leningrad.

To reach these positions, it was said, the Germans had to break through 75 miles of defenses in which tank traps 9 feet wide and 6 feet deep forced the advancing Germans virtually to discard mechanized warfare in favor of close-quarter combat.

Felled trees have been laid as obstructions and within the forests wires have been strung from tree to tree—all this, German sources said, by Russian women and children. Too, thousands of mines must be removed by engineers ahead of the German advance.

4,500,000 Believed Trapped

Some sources estimated that 4,500,000 persons are trapped into the Leningrad region in a space roughly of 1900 square miles.

The Nazis declared they could take the city house by house, if necessary, in which case they said losses would be "extremely bloody."

As to the second major Russian city besieged, Odessa on the Black Sea, authorized persons said that it was being approached by German experts in flame-throwing and bunker-storming and that house-to-house fighting was bringing the Germans forward step by step. It was asserted that this method had been adopted to avoid the necessity of shelling and utterly destroying the city.

On the front generally, the high command summed up the position by reporting "great offensive operations in the east are progressing successfully."

Other informants said, however, that the front was 'ripening" for great successes now being developed in the south, where Nazi dive-bombers were attacking Soviet artillery emplacements and troop concentrations in the Donets Valley, east of the Dnieper River, and on the Isthmus connecting the Crimea to the Russian mainland.

[An authoritative London source said the Germans already had thrust into the Perekop area, 50 miles southeast of the lower Dnieper and on the isthmus joining Crimea and the mainland, thus imperiling the only railroad communication between the Crimea and the mainland.]

The President's Day

By International News Service

BREAKFAST AND TAXES: Up and at them yesterday morning, the President was all set for his first callers, the Congressional Big Four. At 10 a. m. Vice President Wallace, Senator Barkley, Speaker Rayburn and Congressional Clifton Woodrum marched into the President's study at the White House, heard about the new Lend-Lease Appropriation Bill and discussed the Neutrality Act.

REPORT AND TAXES: While the staff struggled mightily with the release of the overdue lend-lease report, Mr. Roosevelt conferred with Budget Director Harold D. Smith on the new appropriation.

THE THREE NORSEMEN: At noon, three tallish men with picturesque names filed into the Executive office, presented their cards and were immediately ushered into the inner sanctum. They were Norwegian Ambassador Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, Oivind Lorentzen, director-general of Norwegian shipping, and minister without portfolio Sven Neilson on special mission from his exiled government's cabinet in London. The President and the Norse talked over the several hundred Norwegian ships not in Nazi possession. Ambassador Morgenstierne told the President he was off for London and a brief consultation with the cabinet-in-exile, got the Presidential Godspeed.

WHIPPING BOY: Norman Davis of the Red Cross ducked in briefly to unload some of his problems on Mr. Roosevelt's cluttered desk, ducked out again as Harold "Whipping Boy" Ickes, fresh from a dismal, rainy vacation at Crescent Lake in the mountains of the great, very open Northwest, bounded in. What Secretary Ickes and his boss discussed remains their own business—guesses ranged from forthcoming skin-stripping speeches to the Senate opinion that Mr. Ickes had dreamed up the Eastern oil shortage.

HULL AND S DAY: Penciled in after the appointment list had been made up was Secretary Hull, who received a call from Mr. Roosevelt, agreed to be over by 4 p. m. For well over an hour Secretary Hull and the President huddled-presumably over the possible repercussions of "S"—for shooting—day which dawns today, intended to clear the Atlantic from here to Iceland of all Nazi or Italian raiders. The State Department is standing by to see what will be seen.

Public to Feel Defense Pinch, OPM Aide Says

"You might as well know it. From now on, there's going to be a shortage of aluminum, tin, rubber, lead, copper, nickel and, of all things, tapioca."

Speaking was E. J. Hergenroether, chief of the Substitution Division of the Conservation Section of the Office of Production Management of the Office of Emergency Management. ("That title doesn't mean a whole lot," chuckles Hergenroether, "it's what we accomplish that counts").

The OPM official's job is to find substitutes for products on which the Government now holds priorities, or of which there is a shortage. He is frank to admit two things: first, the job is a tough one; second, the public must be told that it is just going to have to do without certain things.

"Right now, the greatest shortage is aluminum," he says. "For every 100 pounds of steel in this country, we have only .44 pound of aluminum. Sure, we can suggest that pots and pans be made of something else, and then the shortage will fall on that."

According to the OPM official, aluminum products will disappear from the market. The Government already has recommended substitutions for the following aluminum products: Refrigerator ice cube trays, vacuum cleaner domes, camera cases, bicycle lights, horns and sirens, dishes and baking sets, fishing rod handles, bathtub molding, automobile accessories, and scores of other products. Instead of aluminum, they can be made of steel, bakelite, iron or plastics.

The OPM also has asked all industries that can to discontinue the use of tapioca. An import from the Dutch East Indies, Africa and South America, tapioca is the best adhesive known to the Government.

"We only eat a small portion," states the OPM chief. "Most of it is used as adhesive—on envelopes, to seal shoe boxes, and so on. There is even a layer of tapioca between the layers of the sole leather on our shoes."

Three items on which there is the least shortage are wood, concrete, and glass. And the OPM forsees a day, not too far away, when almost every product we use in civilian life, now made from a needed material, will be made of one of the three.

Lend-Lease Cash 90% Allocated, Roosevelt Says

expected to be completed within a week.

Meanwhile, the President in his lend-lease report pledged Congress that the flow of planes, tanks, guns and ships from the American arsenal to nations resisting aggression "will accelerate from day to day, until the stream becomes a river, and the river a torrent, engulfing this totalitarian tyranny which seeks to dominate the world."

He reminded Congress that the original aid fund has been available less than six months and help to the democracies up to the present has necessarily been limited. He promised that every step to speed up production must and will be taken. American workshops, he said, must be turned into mighty forges of war "to outbuild the aggressors in every category of modern arms."

Items Broken Down

Breakdown of some of the aid items showed:

Ammunition—Allocations, $889,787,617; obligations, $350,942,633; expenditures, $7,664,304.

Tanks—Allocations $182,173,000; obligations, $128,783,277; expenditures, none.

Vessels and ship equipment—Allocations, $899,406,490; obligations, $588,277,440; expenditures $109,817,971.

Farm foodstuffs — Allocations, $355,978,700; obligations, $154,054,880; expenditures, $90,117,567.

Machinery and machinery equipment—Allocations, $52,316,402; obligations, $18,441,942; expenditures, $1,350,797.

Starving Greeks Faint in Streets, Traveler Reports

Ankara, Turkey, Sept. 15 (AP).—Greeks are collapsing in the streets of Athens from hunger and their suffering is being shared by numbers of British and Australian soldiers who failed to escape and are hiding in small towns and mountain villages, a recently arrived neutral observer reported today.

The situation of Allied soldiers left behind in the withdrawal from Greece was said to be especially difficult because they are without credentials for obtaining food.

The traveler said the food situation was made increasingly acute by a ban prohibiting fishermen from going more than five miles off shore. This, he explained, was ordered largely because a number of Greeks, British and Australians were escaping in fishing boats.

Germans continue in control of Greece, he added, despite the technical assignment of administration to the Italians.

Two Axis Columns Are Driven Back Into Libya

Thrust 35 Miles Into Egypt; Desert Heat to Relax Soon

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Egypt, Sept. 15.—The heaviest fighting in weeks was reported from the Libyan front today as the terrific heat of the western desert neared its autumn end and British quarters predicted "boiling" activity by early October.

General headquarters announced that two Axis armored columns struck 35 miles into Egypt in sudden thrusts Sunday, but were routed back into Libya after losing considerable numbers of men and machines.

It was the first offensive move by Axis forces in Libya for many weeks. The two columns crossed the border about 30 miles south of Sofafi, apparently on reconnaissance. Moving rapidly over the hard plateau surface, they were about 35 miles inside the frontier before they were challenged by British mechanized forces operating under a cover of diving, machine gunning R. A. F. planes.

16 Axis Planes Destroyed

German tanks returned the fire but maneuvered to get away. One German medium tank, complete with crew, was captured.

The Royal Air Force Middle Eastern command, reporting heavy aerial operations all over the frontier zone, announced that 16 Axis planes had been destroyed yesterday by fighter craft and antiaircraft fire. Seven British planes were lost.

At the same time the British admitted that one of their listening posts manned by six men in the Tobruk lines, where an Axis siege has been pressed since mid-April, was overrun by "sheer weight of numbers" of tanks and troops.

But there was no confirmation of an Italian communique that Tobruk's lines had been penetrated at Sidi Belgasem.

The British said three of the Axis tanks which attacked the post were captured and the troops dispersed by British cannon fire.

The attack was a reprisal, it was explained, for several "brilliant raids" against Axis siege positions in which an officer and five men were captured in one strong point, and 20 men were killed and 2 captured at others.

With the approach of good fighting weather in the desert, British forces pointed out that the Italians and Germans have been reinforcing their African army throughout the summer despite heavy R. A. F. and naval raids on their convoys.

Convoys Increased 50%

The number of supply convoys has increased about 50 per cent in the last few months, it was reported.

The British now have more than 500,000 troops in the Middle East, informed sources said, and the Allied position is held to be the most secure it has been since the start of the war.

Tobruk is one of the strong points of the British. Located along the coast where the British are able to supply it through the wreck-strewn harbor, the town stands on the flank of the Axis forces, 75 miles behind their spearheads across the Egyptian border.

The British navy and air force, in sharp reaction to Axis efforts to strengthen African forces, have sunk more than 100,000 tons of shipping in the Mediterranean in the first half of September, according to British accounts.

The R. A. F. said today that one ship, believed from a convoy out of which 10 were sunk or damaged in two days, was found burning fiercely at Zuala. It blew up in a violent explosion, a communique said.

In addition the R. A. F. again raided Tripoli and Bengasi and other points.

British in Ethiopia Routed, Italians Say

Rome, Sept. 15 (AP).—A burst of activity in Africa, in which Hill 146 was captured in a lightning attack east of Tobruk, Libya, and a British formation routed in Ethiopia by cavalry and hand grenade attack, was reported officially today.

Crawling and running across stretches of desert through a fierce barrage and machine-gun fire, Italian and German troops took British hill positions near Sidi Belgasem, east of Tobruk, official reports said, and a number of prisoners were captured and casualties inflicted.

The announcement explained that artillery and bombers have been the chief weapons in the siege of Tobruk, now entering its sixth month, but that occasionally "these air operations are joined with sudden land actions which, exceeding the normal activity of patrols, feel out the enemy lines and upset its arrangements."

of San Antonio, Tex.

A pursuit pilot flies alone, and observers said Bobroski apparently had no opportunity to parachute to safety. Lieut. Woodhull ordered his observer, radio mate, A. W. Garlow, of San Diego, Calif., overside by parachute, and then took his crippled ship 100 miles back to the Lake Charles air base. Garlow landed safely.

Also killed were Capt. Lamar T. Woodward a Regular Army officer from Fort Knox, Ky.; Corpl. Hamilton W. White, of Los Gatos, Calif., and Privates William A. Jones, of Weeksburg, Ky., and E. D. Hightower, of Grovens Springs, Mo., all attached to the Second Army and all killed in traffic accidents during blackouts Sunday night.

A total of 62 soldiers were killed in the month-long preliminary maneuvers in Arkansas and Louisiana. The War Department last week estimated that 119 soldiers would be killed and 17 die from disease during the Louisiana exercises, the largest ever held.

Second Army Advances 'According to Plan'

With the Second Army in Louisiana, September 15 (AP).—Jumping off in a pre-dawn blackout today the highly-mechanized, long-drilled Second Army forged across the Red River in a dozen places and opened a 100-mile front as the final phase of the United States' greatest maneuvers opened in heavy weather.

Sunset found Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear's 150,000 troops in firm possession of both banks of the upper river and pointing for southwest Louisiana where Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger's 330,000 troops were moving up to attempt to halt the Red invaders from the north.

Only at Alexandria, in central Louisiana, did the Second Army meet stiff opposition in its invasion of the river's southern shoreline. Lear's forces had a toehold there tonight on the city's river front, but the blue-banded southern forces held most of the residential section after pitched street "battles" that lasted into the night.

To the westward the Nation's only armored corps, striking for the Third Army base in Lake Charles, moved swiftly southward toward the panorama of pines and moss-covered oaks stretching from the Kisatchie National Forest down into the marshy flatlands of the coastal area.

Overcast skies that brought scattered showers to the maneuver area made footing insecure in the clay swamp bottoms and forced Maj. Gen. C. B. Scott's 600 tanks to stay almost entirely to the roadways.

R. A. F. Lists 6 American Casualties

Copyright by New York Times

London, Sept. 15.—Six Americans are included in the latest casualty list issued by the Royal Air Force. They are: Pilot Officer V. W. Olson, a member of the Eagle Squadron, of Concord, Nebr.—missing, believed killed; Aircraftsman E. R. Jack—missing; Sergt. E. A. R. Thomson—missing; Sergt. E. J. Masse, of Taunton, Mass.,—wounded or injured in action, and Sergt. G. R. Menish of Salina, Kans.,—missing.

Civilian air raid casualties for August were announced today as 169 killed and 136 injured, the lowest for any similar periods since large-scale bombing started. The deaths were made up of 56 women and 38 children—13 victims being unclassified.

The month of August, 1940, saw 1085 persons lose their lives in Britain plus another 1265 seriously injured, and the following month of September was the worst ever with 6955 death and 10,624 injured.

Anniversary of Victory

Today marks the anniversary of the R. A. F.'s great victory when 185 German planes were destroyed. The ministry of home security said tonight, in its regular communique covering enemy air activity over Berlin: "There is nothing to report." After dark a German bomber is said to have been shot down over the east coast of Britain.

On the other hand, the air ministry reported that Blenheim bombers had attacked a German convoy off the Frisian Islands this afternoon. One ship was left in a sinking condition with a second believed to have been damaged.

More British aircraft of the same type raided the harbor at Haugesund on the west coast of Norway and bombed a factory in that area.

Two Planes Lost

British fighters carried out offensive patrols across the channel today in the course of which they shot down a German plane. The R. A. F. lost one bomber and a fighter during these operations.

It was between the Frisian Islands of Juist and Norderney that the Blenheims spotted their quarry. The convoy was protected by the usual detail of antiaircraft ships and a destroyer. The British bombers streaked low over the water, disregarding a hail of bullets, and dumped a number of delayed-action bombs on the enemy vessels. They did not wait ot see what happened.

A second wave of Blenheims told of a large merchant ship with waves lapping over her decks. One British pilot was positive that his bombs landed "just inside the railings," while another admitted that his fell short of the target "but near enough to do her no good."

Publishers Linked to Nazis Probed by U. S.

A broad investigation of publishing houses suspected of being Nazi agencies has been launched by the propaganda unit of Department of Justice prosecutors.

The suspects have turned out a flood of books which were savagely anti-British or suavely pro-German, or both. Upon preliminary evidence, the special prosecutors started a secret grand jury investigation last Friday into the financing, management and purposes of these publishers.

First target of the propaganda squad was Flanders Hall, Inc., of Scotch Plains, N. J. This firm has issued about 15 books in the last two years.

Summoned to appear before the grand jury today is Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, Chicago, author of "The Red Network" and more recently an active opponent of President Roosevelt's foreign policy. Mrs. Dilling was convicted twice of disorderly conduct when she was demonstrating here last spring against passage of the Lease-Lend bill. She has appealed the second conviction to the United States Court of Appeals.

Also called before the grand jury were Siegfried Hauck, Flanders Hall president, and his brother, Adolph. Formerly treasurer of the company, Adolph has been drafted and is now in the Army.

Directing the grand jury inquiry are Special Assistant Attorneys General William P. Maloney, George A. McNulty and Edward J. Hickey.

Navy Ordered To Carry Out Shooting Policy

ing a narrow view of the term United Kingdom, all British territories except those in combat areas and those secifically named in the proclamation are now open to American shipping.

The Navy's shooting orders, first announced by President Roosevelt in his worldwide broadcast last week, could authorize a long-predicted "half-way convoy" system, whereby the Navy would escort British convoys to a transfer point in Icelandic waters, whence British warships would shepherd them to British ports, naval experts pointed out.

Knox's disclosure provided the first official indication of what the President meant in his radio speech by "American defensive waters," a cryptic phrase the President used in announcing his instructions to the Navy to clear German and Italian "rattlesnakes" out such ocean areas.

Previously, the White House and State Department had declined to amplify what the President meant by defensive waters, leaving the impression that the Navy proposed to patrol as far in the Seven Seas as its facilities would permit.

No Decision on Law

Speaker Rayburn, spokesman for Congressional leaders who conferred with the President yesterday, revealed that they discussed the question of changing the Neutrality Act.

Whether revisions were considered that would scrap the entire law or merely permit the arming of merchant ships, Rayburn would not say. He stated that no conclusions had been reached.

Apparently, the President was still undecided on whether to risk provoking a major legislative battle by asking fundamental changes in the law.

Knox, in a fighting speech, declared that the orders to the Navy to shoot on sight at xis marauders in the Atlantic was "our answer to Mr. Hitler's declaration that he will try to sink every ship his vessels encounter on the routes leading from the United States to British ports."

Knox also charged that the America First Committee—"that curious organization"—had told the American public that the commander of a German U-boat ,who claimed he was fired on first by the U. S. destroyer Greer, was more likely to be telling the truth about the incident than the American naval commander of the Greer, who reported to Washington that the U-boat had attacked him first.

"That," said Knox, "is an important fact for the American public to digest."

The Attorney General's new ruling was regarded as of great importance in "making the best" of the Neutrality Act and was taken in some quarters as a sign that the President would not for the time being press for sweeping changes in that law.

Roosevelt Houses In New York City Put on Market

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—The twin houses at 47 and 49 East Sixty-fifth Street, formerly occupied by President Roosevelt's family and his mother, the late Mrs. James Roosevelt, were offered for sale today.

Friends of the Roosevelts said it had long been the President's plan to sell the town houses. Real estate agents said the houses were placed on the market by authority of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. No estimate was made of their value, but they are assessed at $139,000.

Mrs. James Roosevelt, who died September 7, ordered the building of the two houses in 1908 to meet the needs of her son's growing family of children. Designed by Charles A. Platt, an architect, the houses, six stories high, were entirely separate but were served by one entrance portico. Each covers 35x100 feet of land.

30,000 Chinese Mutiny, Kill Japanese Officers

Chungking, China, Sept. 15 (AP).—Thirty thousand Chinese troops of the Japanese-dominated Nanking regime mutinied in North Honan Province last week, killed a number of Japanese officers and began fighting under the banner of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Chungking government, the National Military Council reported tonight.

Leave Military Decisions To Army, Gen. Marshall Asks

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

By the Associated Press

Milwaukee, Sept. 15. — Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, appealed to the American Legion national convention tonight to help remove a lack of public understanding which he said was hampering the training of America's new army.

Gen. Marshall told a gathering at the annual commander's dinner that it was impossible to develop an efficient army if decisions purely of a military nature were "continuously subjected to investigation, cross-examination, debate, ridicule and public discussion."

Declaring that criticism came mainly from pressure groups and misinformed individuals, he said:

"I submit that there is a clear line of demarcation between the democratic freedom of discussion which we are determined to preserve and a destructiv eprocedure which promotes discontent and destroys confidence in the Army."

Cheer for Intervention

The Legionnaires met in their twenty-third annual convention preponderantly sympathetic to reversing their double-decade old stand against American participation in foreign conflicts.

With challenging words from Secretary of the Navy Knox resounding in their ears, and with President Roosevelt messaging that he knew the Nation could count on the Legion's continued interest and cooperation in whatever lay ahead, these veterans of the first American Expeditionary Force whooped up every inference of intervention.

"Beginning tomorrow, the American Navy will provide protection as adequate as we can make it for ships of every flag carrying lend-aid supplies between the American continent and waters adjacent to Iceland," the Navy Secretary declared as Legionnaires stood and cheered his every word.

And when the President's message of faith was read the delegates roared back their pledge that the Legion will be there when called upon.

Calls for Preparation

The national commander, Milo Warner, carried on the trend in his annual report by saying:

"We must so fully prepare ourselves for war that insofar as it is humanly possible we of America can keep war away from our shores. In order to be able to do so we must have an Army and Navy which are unfettered and unshackled and so well prepared by equipment, training and authorization that they can strike wherever or whenever it is necessary for the purpose of defense."

When Darryl F. Zanuck, Hollywood producer, denied that the motion picture industry was making pictures to generate a war spirit the Legion cheered, a cheer that became a torrential vocal outburst when he said: "If you charge us with being anti-Nazi you are right."

At the very outset the trend of the convention could be felt, for in his invocation, Brigadier William G. Gilks, of Texas, national chaplain, asked that the Legion be guided in a way that would help "bring about the end of this senseless destruction by peoples who have turned their backs on God."

Fiorello H. LaGuardia, legionnaire mayor of New York City and national civilian defense coordinator, after a few words on civilian defense kept the convention in a constant cheer with his explosive reiteration that aid to Britain was aid to the United States.

Harriman Confers On Russian Needs

reached Russia and may already be in battle, Lord Beaverbrook announced that every tank turned out from British factories next week will go immediately to the Eastern Front.

Harriman said:

"We are anxious to get to Moscow as soon as we can. We shall have consultations with Lord Beaverbrook and then hope to get away as soon as possible."

Except for Maj. George Brett, who is with the British forces in Egypt and probably will go to Moscow independently, the whole delegation was assembled here.

Flying with Harriman were Admiral William H. Standley, Maj. Gen. James H. Burns and William L. Batt. Junior members arrived, also by bomber, yesterday accompanied by Constantine Oumansky, Russian ambassador to Washington.

As soon as priorities have been established, it was believed, Britain will step up shipments of planes, guns and tanks from her reserve supply on he promise of replacements from the United States.

This view was supported by Churchill's announcement last week that hundreds of planes were being sent to Russia, today's disclosure of the complete wing already there and Lord Beaverbrook's promise of next week's tank output.

Exhorting tank makers to their utmost effort, the supply minister said:

"The work of your hands will be sent to the front lines defending Leningrad, Kiev and Moscow.

"There will be no delay. There will be more to come. But the tanks you build next week will go forthwith into action."

Harriman was greeted at an airdrome near London by his daughter, Kathleen; British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, Lord Beaverbrook whom he hailed as "Max;" Ivan Naisky, Russian Ambassador to London; the United States Ambassador, John G. Winant; Capt. Harold Balfour, British undersecretary for air, and John D. Biggers, American lease-lend representative in London.

Auto Output Cut 50% for December

Civilian Supply Division, officials of other interested Government agencies and members of the Automobile Defense Industry Advisory Committee.

Manufacture of light trucks for non-defense purposes was curtailed 9 per cent during the four-month period of August, September, October and November.

Mr. Henderson informed the auto group that OPM will request manufacturers in the near future to discontinue the use of critical materials in non-functional parts, such as trim.

Reduced 191,975 Cars

The nine manufacturers, General Motors Corporation, Chrysler Corporation, Ford Motor Co., Studebaker Corporation, Hudson Motor Car Co., Nash-Lafayette, Packard, Willys-Overland and Crosley, are limited to 204,848 passenger units in December, as against 396,823 in December, 1940, a cut of 191,975 cars.

For the five-month period ending December 31, 1941, these manufacturers are permitted to produce 1,023,217 cars, compared with 1,510,167 units during the same period last year. The brunt of the curtailment will be felt by the "Big Three"—General Motors, Chrysler and Ford.

The average reduction for these companies measures 51.5 per cent.

The smaller independent producers such as Studebaker, Hudson, Nash, Packard, Willys-Overland and Crosley, all together, sustain a 15.3 per cent reduction under the quota. Hudson, Willys-Overland and Crosley are permitted to increase their production during December because of the low December, 1940, production they reported.

Charles Armour—Eminent American Designer is Here

today and tomorrow—presenting his new collection featuring dress-suits and simple dramatic after-five dresses and vital Pan-American colors

In an informal showing by Mannequins from 11:00 to 5:00 o'clock—on our Third Floor of Fashions

Mr. Armour believes that fashion in America must be guided by discussion between couturier and the fashion-minded women for whom he designs. This policy has helped him create his suave little dress-suits you wear all day long, under coats and in their own chic right—the excitingly simple after-five dresses that are his forte—this has led him to select these fresh, flattering colors. See them—and meet him—here.

"I salute the 21 American Republics of the Western Hemisphere and dedicate to their fresh, vital spirit . . . the hope of the future . . . my American collection for this most important Fall."

Col. Frank Lahm Promoted To General by Roosevelt

FRANK P. LAHM, the Army's first airplane and first balloon pilot, has been nominated to be a major general by President Roosevelt in recognition of his contributions to military aviation. He is retire November 1

President Roosevelt yesterday honored the Army's first airplane and balloon pilot, Col. Frank P. Lahm, for his controbutions to military aviation over more than a third of a century.

Lahm, who is generally conceded to have been the first soldier in the world to solo an airplane, was nominated to be a temporary major general. Now air officer of the First Army at Governors Island, N. Y., he is due to retire for age the end of next month.

A West Point graduate in 1901, Lahm began his career as an air pioneer in 1905. He was sent to France by the War Department to study aeronautics and the following year won the International Balloon Race from Paris to York County, England.

Orville Wright taught him to fly his new "flying machine" in 1909. Flying with Wright that year, he set an endurance record aloft of 1 hour, 12 minutes and 40 seconds and made the first cross-country flight—a 10-mile journey from Fort Myer, Va., to Alexandria.

During the World War, Col. Lahm organized the A. E. F. lighter-than-air service and later was commander of the air services of the First and Second Armies at the front. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for his war service.

From 1926 to 1930, Lahm was assistant chief of the Air Corps, with rank of brigadier general. Afterwards he organized and commanded the Air Corps Training Center at San Antonio, Tex., and was military attache to France for several years.

Sees It Inspiring Subjugated Nations To Rise Against Foe

By the Associated Press

Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 15.—Secretary of Agriculture Wickard declared today that an abundance of American food would serve as a "fifth column" to incite the conquered and hungry peoples of Europe to rebel against Hitler.

In a speech urging farmers to cooperate with the department's 1942 farm program which is designed to provide the Nation with a record supply of food so that Great Britain might be amply supplied, Wickard said:

"What do you think is the effect upon those people looking across the channel from half-fed France or Holland and seeing the British are getting enough to eat?

"I think the effect," he said, "is the equivalent of about ten field armies."

The speech was prepared for a regional conference of farm leaders to discuss next year's production goals for Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain States.

Europe's Wheat Crop Cut by Rain, U. S. Says

The Agriculture Department said yesterday that rains during the August harvest season reduced Europe's sorely-needed wheat crop by about 50,000,000 bushels.

On the basis of such weather and crop information as is now available, the department forecast European production (exclusive of the Soviet Union) at 1,430,000,000 bushels. Earlier forecasts were for 1,460,000,000 bushels.

Despite the weather loss, a 1941 crop of the size estimated would be larger than last year's smaller outturn of 1,325,000,000 bushels but below the five-year (1930-34) average of 1,516,000,000 bushels.

Hoarding Here Deplored

D. E. Montgomery, Agriculture Department consumers' counsel, declared yesterday that hoarding of food supplies either by consumers or by distributors was injurious both to the general public and the interests of national defense.

Hoarding, he said, was bound to have the effect of boosting prices more than they would go up otherwise.

Montgomery's statement was issued as the department received many reports of large-scale buying of important food staples by both consumers and distributing agencies in the fear of possible future shortages or for the purpose of avoiding higher prices later.

Satin Knickers Lose Kick When Sailor Wins

London (U.P.).—A pair of satin knickers were being raffled by the W. R. N. S. at a naval town for a war fund. To promote ticket sales it was said that the winner of the "knicks" would parade in them. A sailor won, so the parade was off.

Mediation Board Intervenes After 37,000 Miners Strike

By the Associated Press

Acting swiftly, the Defense Mediation Board intervened yesterday soon after 37,000 miners struck at "captive" soft coal mines.

Chairman William H. Davis announced in Washington that the board was taking "jurisdiction" over the dispute, which involves the demand of the United Mines Workers (C. I. O.) that union membership be a condition to employment. He asked a return to work and said the board would begin hearings on the case tomorrow.

Several of the biggest figures in the steel industry have been summoned to the hearing. They included Tom M. Gridler, board chairman of Republic Steel Corporation, of Cleveland, Ohio; Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel Co., Bethlehem, Pa.; Benjamin Fairless, president of United States Steel Corporation, New York City, and Ernest Weir, board chairman of Weirton Steel Co., Weirton, W. Va.

John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers' Union, told a press conference in Washington he hoped the captive mine workers' strike could be confined to the companies which own the struck pits in five States, but pointedly indicated that the U. M. W. had strike power it could use on a bigger scale.

The so-called "captive" mines are owned by the steel companies, and their entire output goes into steel production. Affected by the strike order were scattered mines in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, Illinois and Tennessee owned by the following steel companies: United States, Bethlehem, Republic, Weirton, Wheeling, Crucible and Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

Trade circles estimated that steel production would be sharply curtailed unless coal mining was resumed within two weeks.

The C. I. O. called a strike at the Alleghany Ludlum Steel Co., Watervliet, N. Y., protesting dismissal of three union members. Union spokesmen said between 300 and 500 of the firm's 1000 employes joined in a walkout.

More than 10,000 anthracite miners in the Hazleton, Pa., area continued to remain away from their jobs.

The Labor Department last night certified a labor dispute at the Bendix Aviation Corporation, South Bend, Ind., to the Defense Mediation Board. The plant employs some 7,000 workers in the manufacture of aircraft parts.

C. I. O.'s United Auto Workers Union, the department said, alleged the company was replacing men employes with women workers at lower pay rates. The union also to be requesting a revision in grievance machinery.

The Mediation Board recommended last night that smokeless powder workers of the Western Cartridge Co., East Alton, Ill., reconsidered their adverse vote on acceptance of a working contract between the company and the A. F. L. Chemical Workers Union.

Approximately 550 A. F. L. men are involved in the long-standing dispute. The company manufactures small arms ammunition.

Woman, 70, Heads Town Waterworks

Munising, Mich. (U.P.).—At the age of 70, Mrs. Katherine Simons, superintendent of Munising's municipal waterworks, is believed to be the only woman in the Nation holding a similar position.

Mrs. Simmons took over the job when her husband, who had been superintendent, died in 1930. As part of her duties, she must operate complicated machinery, including a chlorine gas injector.

Kensington Zone Hearing Thursday

A hearing on an application to rezone property on the Knowles estate, Kensington, Md., from residential "A" to commercial "D" zone, will be held Thursday at 4 p. m. by the Board of County Commissioners in the hearing room of the Liquor Control Board Building, Colesville Road, Silver Spring.

The application filed by Anselmo & Murdock, Inc., requests the rezoning of all land between Bladensburg Road on the north, Lincoln Avenue on the west, Lot 3 of the Knowles estate on the east and the B. & O. Railroad on the south.

Solon Buck Named To Succeed Connor As U. S. Archivist

Solon J. Buck, who has been director of the National Archives' publications division since 1938, was nominated yesterday by President Roosevelt to be archivist of the United States.

He would succeed Dr. R. D. W. Connor, who resigned to take a professorship at the University of North Carolina.

Buck is a former educator, having served at various times on the faculties of the Universities of Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota and Pittsburgh.

Julian Felicitates Jelleff's Employes

William A. Julian, United States treasurer, the man with his name on the money, yesterday visited Jelleff's, Inc., 1214-20 F Street Northwest, and congratulated the employes on their 100 per cent showing in the purchase of national defense bonds.

Emphasizing the importance of the bonds to the Nation's defense, the treasurer spoke to 600 Jelleff's employes.

Miss Helen Schmid appeared dressed in an Uncle Sam costume. Frank R. Jelleff, the store owner, congratulated his employes on their response to the bond sale and on their efforts to conserve gasoline.

Peruvian Planes Bomb Plantations Of United Fruit

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Sept. 15 (AP).—Peruvian planes bombed the Tenguel banana plantations of the United Fruit Co. on the Gulf of Guayaquil today, an Ecuadorean announcement said, in a new flareup of the border war between Ecuador and Peru.

Offices of the company's Ecuadorean subsidiary here said buildings occupied by the manager were damaged and a laborer killed.

An official dispatch from Balao said that Peruvian planes attacked Tenguel, killing one adult and two children. The dispatch said that the planes dropped seven bombs in an unexplained renewal of border warfare.

It also was reported that Peruvian gunboats subjected the small port of Tendales to an intensive 20-minute bombardment before withdrawing. Ecuador has only 66 mounted carabineers to protect that entire region.

Tax-Dodging Verdict Reversed

Chicago, Sept. 15 (INS).—William ("Big Bill") Johnson, so-called czar of Chicago gambling, today won a Circuit Court reversal of his conviction October 23 last year on charges of evading Federal income taxes totaling $1,887,664.

Five codefendants who were convicted with Johnson won reversals in the same decision. The chief criticism of the trial was that the evidence introduced dealt too much with Johnson's gambling activities.

New Greenville, Mo., Is Ready for Residents

Greenville, Mo. (AP).—Final touches are being put on the new Greenville and citizens are expected to move in by October 1. Greenville, Wayne county seat, was forced to move because the lake which will be formed behind the new Wappapello flood control dam on the St. Francis river will inundate the present town site.

29th Starts First War Games Today

By the Associated Press

A. P. Hill Military Reservation, Va., Sept. 15.—The first mock warfare exercise of the Twenty-ninth Division will get under way tomorrow morning, when a Blue force of about 13,000 men sets up bivouac camp at St. Stephen's Church, about 26 miles southeast, to prepare to launch an invasion against Maryland's 115th Infantry Regiment, Red defenders of this camp.

Outline of the maneuver was mapped at a meeting of staff officers this afternoon as trucks of the last convoy trundled into the training ground bringing the last of the division's men from Fort George G. Meade, Md., home station.

The Marylanders, vastly outnumbered, will represent the armed forces of a small country which has been on "strained political relations" with a powerful and aggressive nation to the South, according to instructions read at today's staff meeting.

"War" Due Tomorrow

Directing the defense tactics will be Col. D. John Markey, commanding officer.

Hostilities probably will begin Wednesday, staff officers said, when border clashes will lead to the formal declaration of war.

Tomorrow, the Blue force, composed of the entire division less the 115th Infantry and the nonbelligerent antitank battalion, will be taken by truck transports to the bivouac site, where it will muster forces to launch the invasion. In the meantime, the Red defenders will entrench in defense positions here.

Staff officers said the purpose of the exercise is twofold. For the Blues, it will be a test of striking power, while the Reds will have opportunity to display ability to retreat strategically in the face of overwhelming odds.

Maj. B. Beall and Maj. Ashby B. Land, Second Army Corps Headquarters, Wilmington, Del., assisted in mapping the exercise and will act as aid to staff officers in supervision.

Huge Cantonment Now a Ghost Town

By a Staff Correspondent

Fort George G. Meade, Md., Sept. 15.—The huge wooden cantonment here occupied by the Twenty-ninth Division since last February, was a ghost town today, deserted by all but a few troops on guard.

Last to leave will be the District's 104th Ordnance Company, commanded by Capt. Melvin H. Harris, which will roll out of here for A. P. Hill Military Reservation, Va., tomorrow morning. The last elements of other units of the division were gone by noon today.

The division left its camp in infinitely better condition than it found it. Roads which were nonexistent or deep in mud or dust are being paved. Buildings which have stood bare and unpainted since the Twenty-ninth arrived were wet today with new paint. Ten new regimental chapels, being built at a cost of about $18,000 each, will be ready for use when the troops return in December.

Concentration of the division was completed at A. P. Hill reservation today and its commanding general, Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, joined it this afternoon after closing his office at Meade this morning. From Virginia it will move to North Carolina September 27 for two months of field maneuvers.

Agriculture Adds School Courses

Thirty-eight new courses are to be offered by the Graduate School of the Department of Agriculture this fall, bringing the total to 142, the school announced yesterday. The fall term will begin September 22, the twentieth anniversary of the school's founding.

Planned with the assistance of eight committees of specialists in the various fields, the new courses are scattered through the school's eight divisions—biological science, physical science, mathematics and statistics, public administration, engineering and mechanical arts, language aids, economics and social sciences, and office skills.

Operated within the Department of Agriculture on a self-supporting basis, the school had an enrollment last year of 3,300, and specializes in fulfilling the training needs of Federal employes.

Federal Playhouse To Present Two Films

Two motion picture shorts, "Now Is the Time" and "Wings for Defense," will be presented in the Agriculture Auditorium Thursday at 8 p. m. under auspices of the Federal Playhouse.

The District Defense Council "Hula Girls" will perform several numbers. Also on the program will be Vivian Nickolson and Dottie Spangler. Music will be furnished by the Agriculture Department Post of the American Legion and the Postoffice Theater Group Orchestra.

Germans Reported Afraid of a General Outbreak of Violence

By the Associated Press

Stockholm, Sweden, Sept. 15.—Joseph Terboven, Nazi commissioner in Norway, in a move interpreted as a German attempt at conciliation, tonight ordered that the state of civil siege be lifted tomorrow morning.

Since the state of siege was declared last Wednesday, German authorities have executed two Norwegian labor leaders and arrested between 250 and 300 union leaders in the Oslo district alone.

No reason for lifting the siege was given, but informed quarters here said resentment over the rigid restrictions ran so high in the country that it was possible the authorities feared a nationwide outbreak unless the regulations were relaxed.

Dispatches from Oslo said that the actual event precipitating the state of siege was a strike of 40,000 workers in Oslo.

Among the men reported arrested and sent to concentration camp were Prof. Diduk Arup Seip, principal of Oslo University; K. R. Welhaven, former Oslo police superintendent; the deputy chairman of the Norwegian Labor party and a number of other university leaders.

Meanwhile Vidkun Quisling's official organ, Fritt Folk, threatens Sweden with strong reprisals because the Swedish Trade Unions Congress dared to express sympathy for the courtmartialed Norwegians.

"We strongly protest against the Swedish trade unions, which found it necessary to hold commemorative ceremonies for the punishment of the Norwegian state criminals. It is an unheard of insult against Germany that the Swedish government did not find it necessary to stop this affrontery. It must clearly realize that Germany does not let herself be insulted without retaliation."

The Swedes are little impressed by Fritt Folk's threat. In answer, the newspaper, Nya Dagligt Allehanda, prints a long editorial recapitulating last week's events, including "apparently in the ranks of the Communists and Marxists bishops, professors, trade unionists and journalists." Swedish opinion still remains extremely irritated by German actions in which they see a deliberate attempt to stamp out every leading Norwegian.

Croat Explosions Set Off by Phone Calls

Zagreb, Croatia (via Berlin), Sept. 15 (AP).—Untraced telephone calls put through to two secret numbers in Zagreb's central telephone exchange were revealed tonight to have set off the explosion yesterday of four bombs which wounded more than 12 German soldiers.

Investigators said that the calls from outside the postal building in some way released the bomb mechanism, but those responsible have not been found. Two employes of the exchange's night shift fled.

One of the German soldiers wounded, Maj. Moehring, signal corps officer assigned to the staff of the German liaison officer here, suffered head injuries. Seven Croats also wewre injured.

Three Are Captured

Six Croat sentries in another section of the city who at first were believed to have been wounded by machine-gun fire were actually attacked by four men armed with pistols, it was said tonight.

Their assailants were described as "Communists," and three of them were captured. The fourth was shot dead on the street, clutching an unexploded hand grenade.

Arizona Family Holds Monopoly as Archers

Phoenix, Ariz. (U.P.).—When it comes to archery, the Thompson family of Phoenix holds a State-wide monopoly.

Mary Clifford Thompson, 15-year-old national junior archery champion, holds the State senior women's championship; her 13-year-old brother, Joe, owns the junior boys' title; and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Thompson, finished one-two in the novice men's and women's division in the State tournament.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Snake Son Sent Home Too Much For D.C. Family

The expressman came to the home of Navy Commander and Mrs. R. G. Thomas, 4522 Brandywine Street Northwest, one day last week and left a 5½-foot black snake in an elaborate cage with a back room for sleeping and a front compartment for sunning.

Mrs. Thomas wasn't home, so her elder son, Raymond, accepted the snake, unastonished, because his 15-year-old brother, Douglas Carroll Thomas, always is sending something home for his menagerie, which already contained rabbits, pigeons and an alligator.

Douglas sent the snake from Monticello, Iowa, where he is visiting relatives.

Then the family found that there is more responsibility to receiving a snake than signing for it at the door. Raymond Thomas set 17 mouse traps in the garage in hope of catching food for the new arrival.

When this failed to serve, research revealed that snakes like hamburgher and eggs. And it is simple to serve the eggs. There is nothing more to it than to put the egg in its shell into the cage. The snake swallows the whole business.

Of course, that isn't all there is to chaperoning a snake. When a photographer went to the home yesterday to get a picture of it, Raymond thrust his hand into the tiny door, not knowing too well whether he would get the snake by the neck or the tail.

His hand came out flecked with blood. The snake had bitten him.

Mrs. Thomas said yesterday they were going to send Douglas' new acquisition to the Zoo. She was sure, she said, her son would prefer it that way.

Reds Warn Iran Not to Let Axis Legations Linger

Teheran, Iran, Sept. 15 (AP).—A spokesman of the Soviet Embassy declared today that the Iranian government "will find itself in very great difficulties" unless Axis legations leave Teheran by tomorrow.

German, Italian, Hungarian and Rumanian diplomats had asked postponement of their own departures until all their nationals had been sent off to internment.

Another contingent of Germans left this morning, 220 for India in British custody and 21 for Siberia under Russian guard. About 150 men still are awaiting transportation.

Shift Of Emphasis

Labor's fight for collective bargaining rights appears to have been won in virtually all American industries. The labor problem of today is not so much one of overcoming unfair practices on the part of employers as of adjusting disputes as to wages, hours and other working conditions. So the spotlight is naturally shifted from the National Labor Relations Board to the agencies which are mediating disputes in an effort to maintain steady production of defense supplies.

Robert B. Watts, general counsel of the NLRB, in an address at the centennial celebration of Fordham University last night, noted a significant decline in the number of unfair labor practice cases coming before that agency. In other words, fewer employers are being charged with trying to sabotage union activities. Collective bargaining is taken for granted. Cases in which the board is asked to determine what group of employes is entitled to bargain collectively are now more numerous than cases involving unfair labor practices. Mr. Watts sees in this fact evidence that employers are more readily seeking the assistance of the board. No doubt it reflects also much greater confidence in the NLRB since its reorganization.

Certainly Mr. Watts is correct in saying that the larger problem of today lies in the field of conciliation, arbitration and mediation. While praising the work of the many agencies operating in this field, he declared that "each suffers from the lack of a coordinated system which would unify control, mold general policies, develop a formalized collaboration of industry and labor and in general bring about the most efficient teamwork possible." That remark might better have been directed to Congress in an official recommendation than to a centennial celebration. It serves to reemphasize the fact that Congress has done nothing to improve the machinery for adjustment of industrial disputes in defense industries. And there seems to be slight hope for constructive legislation on the subject without leadership from the Administration.

Nazi Hint At Blunder

The strength of the Red Army, the strategic skill and resourcefulness of the Russian high command, the courage and hardihood of the Russian soldier, together constitute the greatest surprise of the war. For millions of people in the West this surprise has been most heartening. For Germany it has been a severe jolt. Indeed, after the first week or so hints began to creep into the German press that the promised early victory must not be expected, that the fighting in the East was not going to take the course of the fighting in the West.

The nature and extent of this campaign of enlightenment obviously designed to offset the alarm of the German people are clearly revealed in the compilation of German quotations on the Russian war published in Sunday's Post. At first the newspapers of Naziland took the confident line. The Soviet forces, said the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung on June 30, no longer understood what was happening to them. On July 12, an official communique of the German high command declared that the Stalin line had been broken at all decisive points.

But only a few days later the Berlin Boersen Zeitung found it expedient to admit that Germany was this time facing a "dangerous enemy." Other German newspapers began to emphasize the fanatical fury with which the Russians were fighting. Later we find the Frankfurter Zeitung frankly admitting that Russian tactics were excellent, Russian materiel abundant, Russian morale stronger than anything which the Nazis had up to then encountered. In its issue of August 2, the Voelkischer Beobachter went so far as to declare that in the Russians, the Germans "have to oppose an enemy who fights with an enchanted resistance and who, in his tenacity in battle, surpasses all the adversaries we have met up to the present." This is just another way of saying, although the German press would be the last to admit it, that in tackling Russia Hitler and the German high command made a grave blunder. The consequences of that blunder are now certain to be disastrous to the Third Reich no matter what the outcome of the struggle on the Eastern front may ultimately be.

Lend-Lease

Whatever may be the potentialities of our "arsenal of democracy," and they are vast enough to stop the Axis, precious little has found its way to the nations fighting the Axis powers. This will probably be the reader's first reaction on reading the report which President Roosevelt transmitted to Congress yesterday. On March 25 Congress appropriated $7,000,000,000 for the purpose of carrying out the Lend-Lease Act. Five months later goods valued at only $190,447,670 had been exported to our friends—a trifling sum compared even with the appropriation, let alone with the needs.

The surprise that the sum should be so small will be the greater because of the sound and fury which have come from the isolationist camp on the alleged misuse of lend-lease materials. Britain is the chief beneficiary of our lend-lease program. Out of the 190 million dollars, about 185 million dollars has been spent on goods going to Britain in various war theaters. Such an amount is a mere bagatelle compared with Britain's war costs. But it is important to bear in mind that the lend-lease supplies to Britain constitute only a fraction even of Britain's imports from America. This is a point that Americans have forgotten. Most of our people are under the delusion, sedulously circulated by the isolationists, that the goods which are going across the Atlantic nowadays are all lend-lease material. This is grossly untrue. It is safe to say that Britain imported ten times the amount of materials from America which are represented by the lend-lease figure. And these have been paid for in cash on the barrel head.

If, therefore, lend-lease goods make up only a negligible proportion of the material which Britain is receiving from America, an even tinier percentage could be susceptible of "misuse" by reexport. That is obvious enough from the figures. How such a canard entered into circulation is a source of wonder. For the lend-lease program has been in operation less than six months, and was late in getting under way. It would take all this time for lend-lease material to get to Britain, be fabricated into finished goods, and be received in the countries whence the complaints are said to have emanated. The fact is, as was demonstrated in the recent Anglo-American memorandum, that no such misuse has taken place. The isolationists refused to accept the statement, but the figures are incontrovertible, and a little calculation should now dispel allegations which have caused much irritation in Britain and the beginnings of suspicion in America.

Another misconception which will be dispelled by the report is that this country is giving any substantial aid via the lend-lease route to China. Although, of course, other supplies facilitated by loans have gone to that country, China doesn't even figure in the summary tables. It is lumped with "others," and these "others" have received only $4,234,912 in lend-lease help. The sum is a miserable contribution to the support of a country which has fought to a standstill the country which for years has been menacing our Pacific interests. There is nothing in the current discussions with Japan which should persuade the United States to slow down lend-lease help to China.

The report in more than one respect should make us more than a little ashamed that our performance has lagged so far behind our oratory. It should act as a spur to make "all-out" aid a reality, or, as the President puts it, a real "sword" in the hands of those gallant people who are in the front line of a struggle in which our American civilization is at stake. So far our arsenal is emitting a trickle when the times call for a flood.

"War" In Louisiana

Ever since the Germans revealed the terrific striking power of a perfectly coordinated tank offensive, supported by air forces, the military commands of the other nations have been trying to figure out how to stop such blitzkrieg tactics. The Russians, it seems, have worked out a defense which on the whole has been remarkably effective. And now we are to have a try at the same problem. For the main objective of the war games now under way in Louisiana and east Texas is, as Lieut. Gen. McNair pointed out the other day, "to see if and how we can crush a modern tank offensive." None of the smoke of battle will hang over the scene because of the Army's powder shortage. However, there will be enough verisimilitude to war conditions in other respects. For the next two weeks approximately one-third of the entire Army will be "fighting" day and night in a maneuver area of some 30,000 square miles. And by the end of that period the men ought to have a fair idea of the exacting demands of total war.

Whether Army tacticians will have a better grasp of defense requirements may depend in part on how successful is the coordination between tanks and planes in an area that is sliced by rivers and bayous and dotted with lakes and swamps. For difficulty of operation the scene of combat resembles the Masurian Lakes district of East Prussia. Here, in World War I, Gen. von Hindenburg practically annihilated the Second Russian Army. He accomplished this not by blitzkrieg tactics but by shutting his enemy up in treacherous swampland, forcing some 90,000 Russians to surrender.

Neither Lieut. Gen. Lear nor Lieut. Gen. Krueger, commanding our Second and Third Armies, respectively, is likely to repeat the fatal tactical blunders of the Russian Gen. Samsonov. But for all their competence they may find—as the Germans have recently found in Russia—that blitzkrieg tactics may be slowed down to a snail's pace by unfavorable terrain and by a determined opposition. More than 800 tanks and an unrevealed number of bombers and pursuit ships will take part in the maneuvers, and their offensive will presumably be coordinated first with one army and then with the other to test their worth. The number is considerably less than there ought to be in action. Their effective use should at least reveal to strategists the main offensive and defensive problems of the region. Most important, we may discover whether a coordinated tank and air offensive by an invader supposedly landing on the Louisiana-Texas coast can be successfully repelled by a defender using similar tactics.

Chaotic Water System

A prospective sharp rise in water rates was required to bring to public attention the chaotic state of our District water system. It has been operating for many decades under a control divided between the War Department and the District. Moreover, an enormous portion of the total supply is still delivered free to governmental agencies. Thus Chairman McCarran of the Senate District Committee is entitled to the thanks of the community for his request that these problems be explored before an increase of approximately 110 per cent in water rates is approved. The fact that the Water Department must have additional funds is not open to question. A vast increase in population, particularly in the Southeast area, has made it imperative for the city to extend its water lines and to build a new reservoir and water tower. But at present it can draw only upon the revenue collected into the water fund. So the department can scarcely be criticized for planning to raise additional funds by the only method at its command. It is the make-shift system, or lack of system, as implied in the comments of Senator McCarran, which is really at fault.

The collection and filtering of water for the District remain under control of the War Department. This is because the Army Engineers built the Washington Aqueduct back in 1853. Distribution of water is left to local authorities, but of course the District pays the expenses of both units. There is no rhyme or reason in this illogical division of functions. Whether or not it results in a waste of public funds, it certainly makes intelligent planning for a unified water system more difficult, and it is probably one of the chief reasons why the department has never been modernized.

When Col. McCoach was Engineer Commissioner, he advanced the idea of setting up the Water Department as a public utility. That would make it possible to plan carefully for future improvements, to accumulate funds for such projects, and to distribute the cost of gathering, purifying and distributing water among all the users. Of course, it would afford no guarantee against rising rates. As a matter of fact, a board of experts which studied this problem in 1938 recommended that water rates be increased (by a smaller percentage than is now proposed) as a means of financing needed improvements. But organization of the system as a public utility would discourage waste by those agencies now receiving water free, and it would equitably distribute the cost of the service among all users.

There has been some justification for delivery of free water to the Federal Government in the past. For it built and paid for part of the local water plant. But that outlay has probably been repaid by the value of the water the Government has received without charge over many years. Certainly it is time for a survey that will bring out the facts and lay the groundwork for establishment of the Water Department as a utility operated by the local government and supported by all agencies, public and private, which use its services. And if Senator McCarran makes a precedent of attacking District problems at their source, our ramshackle government may take a new lease on life.

ANOTHER DREAM

O gallant heart, defeated,
Now gazing toward the west,
Where this day's splendor crumbles,
Disastrous and noblest;
Look—till the deathlike darkness
By stars be glorified,
Until you see another dream
Beyond the dream that died.

Wages For Communists

The American people are being constantly urged to "wake up." Perhaps it is not apathy that ails them. The writer is in the class of the small business man whose income steadily drops and whose expenses constantly mount. I figure that next year my income tax will be considerably more than double what it was this year, or an increase of probably $500 dollars. If I could feel that that $500 dollars would go to provide arms for America or to pay for men in training, I would pay it gladly.

But when I read the Dies charges that several persons of alleged Communist front connection employed in the office headed by Mr. Leon Henderson are receiving salaries of 20 dollars per day or more, and when I realize that my 500 dollars will pay the salary of just one of those birds for less than one month, I do not like it. Leopards do not change their spots and the Communist Party line followers still preach the doctrine of "War in front, revolution in the rear." If the heads of this Nation want real security their first step should be to clean house at Washington. If they take the savings of the loyal element of the population to support in fat jobs an element that will be ready to knife the U. S. A. in the back whenever the time is ripe, they will be endangering this country more than all the Hitlers in the world could do.

GROUCHO.
Washington, Sept. 11.

Labels

The American press, still trying to be objective in its news columns, seems to have swallowed unanimously a neat little piece of isolationist propaganda.

The noisy minority (which, incidentally, shares with the Nazis a psychopathic sense of martyrdom and persecution) gets the tenderest of treatment from the copy desk. Thus, Senator Connally, who supports the foreign policy overwhelmingly indorsed by the American people and a majority of Congress, is described as an "interventionist." It is, I contend, a smear word, implying a rash fellow who sticks his nose in other people's business—exactly what the America First Committee likes to see implied.

On the other hand, Senator Nye, who seems to wish to divide and confuse opinion and destroy American morale in a time of emergency, is a "noninterventionist." Nice feller!

If this casual editorializing in news columns is to continue, don't we need a new set of descriptives? How about Senator Connally, nonostrich; Senator Wheeler, nonrealist; Senator Glass, nondefeatist, etc.?

MARGARET W. MILLS.
Washington, Sept. 12.

President's Speech

The dignity of a great nation has been maintained through its President taking up the challenge of a piratical nation, serving notice that it is dangerous for it to presume America too servile to oppose force.

Of course Hitler's agents in Germany, and here in America, will continue to say "I told you so; your President is leading America into war; it is he, not our Fuehrer, who is the warmonger." This barefaced Ananias proclamation will fool no one here. The facts remain that Hitler has steadily brought war nearer America. A brave people is not easily stampeded into war or into appeasement. With the dignity of a people conscious of its strength America has said with finality stop your foolishness; get out of our way.

The air is clarified and there is no longer cause for discussion. Our face is set toward the enemy. Whatever theories divided us are no longer pertinent. There can be no turning aside now for dissent.

Water Rate

You bet they are going to hand it on the little fellow. We are living in a small house, just two adults, and we pay $1.75 for water. Now if they could collect that much from every adult in the District it would be O.K. Neighbors' rooming houses don't pay any more with 10 or more adults in them.

Behind The "Investigation" Of The Movies

The "investigation" of the motion picture industry now taking place in the Nation's Capital might be enjoyed as slapstick comedy but for the presence of sinister undercurrents which keep annoying the observer like bad odors at the very moment the comedy is at its best.

There is a transparency about the whole affair and a lack of decency and shame which is alarming, especially to anyone who, like myself, saw at close range the rise of the Nazi and Fascist regimes in Europe. This "investigation" is in the best Nazi manner. At the moment when the Nazis were beginning to acquire power, but had not yet become strong enough to reveal their own contempt for all fairness and legality of procedure, this kind of "investigation," dubiously legal and conducted by a "packed" committee, was a classic means of procedure. Both Nazis and Fascists set up committees at a wholesale rate to do away with elements, individuals and philosophies which stood in their way. The refusal of Mr. Wheeler's committee to allow Mr. Willkie to cross-question the witnesses, the long winded confused harangues of Senators Clark and Nye filled with insinuations, hints and baseless accusations, are all in the best Nazi tradition. It all reads like a hundred Reichstag "investigations" which took place in Germany before the death of Hindenburg.

After Hindenburg was gone the "party" people in Germany no longer needed to create any pretense of legality or justice. They simply "liquidated" all those whose ideas annoyed them. There was a famous trial about the Reichstag fire which ended in the beheading of a poor half-witted boy called Van der Lubbe. The record of it reads very much like the newspaper account of the "trial" of the motion picture industry.

During these early Nazi trials there was always a "stooge" placed on the committee to give the illusion of impartiality to the sinister proceedings. In Washington, however, it appears that Senator MacFarland is unwilling to remain in the role of stooge and has turned into a viper, ungratefully asking shrewd and inopportune questions which leave the orating Senatorial "witnesses" out on a limb.

The whole affair would smell bad enough if it were confined merely to the activities of the noble and patriotic Senatorial "committee," but it has, like a cancer, roots which extend deeper and more obscurely into the rest of the Nation. Behind all the open activities are the organizations, among them notably the America First Committee, which have egged on the isolationist Senators in their fantastic procedure. In the activities of these organizations one finds again surprising likenesses to Nazi technique and procedure.

This America First Committee seems to have unlimited funds at its disposal. Whole radio systems and coliseums and auditoriums are not rented wholesale for hay, and the sources of the large income necessary for this huge expenditure are not open and evident. Among other curious facts is the persistent refusal of the committee to reveal the sources of its money. The Nazis behaved like that in the beginning; they were mighty secretive and full of excuses. But we know now that they were financed largely by rich men who believed that the Nazi regime would protect them and their property. We all know the story of Fritz Thyssen. He was only one contributor. There were many others of his class, not only in Germany but in France and England, who contributed money to help Adolf Hitler and promote the Nazi doctrines.

In the beginning, the Nazis, like the America First Committee, openly or tacitly accepted the cooperation and support of disreputable elements and individuals. A large part of the original Nazi strength was recruited from among the discontented, neurotic and disaffected elements. One has only to attend an America First rally to see how great a proportion of these elements exists in the audience. One has only to look at the faces and listen to the terrifying hysteria of the "boos" directed at the men elected by a majority of the American people, to be back again in the beer halls of Munich and Nuremberg in the early 1930s (I am writing, remember, as one who saw at first hand the rise of the Nazi Party and studied its technique.)

And then there is the vague and insinuating quality of the speeches of Messrs. Nye, Wheeler and Lindbergh, the vague Jew-baiting never quite honest or open enough to become politically dangerous, the oratorical outbursts against the capitalist and the international banker—oratorical but never straightforward or backed by any tangible evidence, and the persistent pose of being the friends of the poor duped people, and the hints of Mr. Lindbergh about "new leadership" to test whether the time is yet ripe to become bolder: It all comes right out of Dr. Goebbels' handbook. I have heard it all before at Nazi meetings and coming over the air first from Munich and Nuremberg, and later from Berlin. So has every foreign correspondent who would, I think, agree with every word of this letter. The whole proceeding in Washington has an old familiar ring to those of us who saw the rise of Nazism in Europe, from the hysterical half-mad boos of an America First rally to the comedy "investigation" now taking place in Washington. It is an old, old story, and to me it would be a funny story if I had not seen the bitter tragedy to which the same methods led in another part of the world.

In any case, the whole thing is very peculiar, and while we are doing a little investigating I, as one American citizen, would feel a little happier if I could see a list of the big contributors to the America First Committee, Scribner's Commentator and similar organizations and publications, as well as the amount contributed. It might make me feel a little less nervous and put to rest those recurring memories of how the Nazi Party mushed up on the German people and stabbed it in the back.

Rise And Fall Of A Mustache

Probably there is not a man living (or dead for that matter) who has not at some stage of the game tried to raise a mustache. I use that word "tried" here not so much with the physical effort involved in mind. No, we are more concerned with the spiritual side.

Many and deep-rooted are the psychological and physiological reasons causing this longing for a mustache. I am unfortunately unprepared to list these reasons, A. B. C. but they are there—unquestionably!

The urge to grow a mustache usually follows some such stimulus as the subject in question viewing the picture of men whose mustaches and personalities are inextricably entwined. We mention a few: Hitler, Dewey (not the Sperm-Admr. War Dewey), Gable (movies), the Smith brothers (coughdrops, you know) or Stalin (see newsreels).

Often the first manifestation of a man's desire to possess a bit of hair on his upper lip is late at night when he rolls over in bed and mumbles to his wife:

"Dear, how do you think I would look with a mustache?"

"Smfaldizz," replies the spouse, which ends the matter temporarily.

Next the subject enters the surreptitious period. The period when he secretes himself in the bathroom behind locked doors and denies his upper lip with a bit of his wife's mascara just to see how he would look. Not bad, he decides. But let us take an actual case study from this point on.

Johnny (let us call him Johnny) was a youngish man, 24 to be exact, and had been married almost two years. And the mustache spell was on him.

The most important single instance in Johnny's case was that he had blond hair. And as nearly everyone knows, blond hair does not make the very best mustaches. At any rate after going through the above mentioned period our friend Johnny decided to let the fuzz on his upper lip alone, say nothing and see what happened.

Of course it should be said in all justification to Johnny he rather fancied his efforts would result in a rather Melvin Douglasish sort of look, which in him was a consummation devoutly to be desired.

So Johnny put his razor on half duty, so to speak, and waited. Fifty four days passed and nothing happened. Nothing except Johnny's feverish examination of his upper lip each morning in the bathroom before the mirror.

Then on the morning of the fifth day it happened. His wife glanced at him as she was measuring coffee into the pot. It was merely one of those wifely 8 o'clock-during-breakfast-looks, if you know what I mean. Then it changed. She looked again. More intently this time.

"Darling, you've got a smudge on your lip. You must have gotten it from the toast."

That was the beginning of the end really. But at the time Johnny didn't know it. He was to engrossed with the problem of whether to confess he was growing a mustache or else to merely make a swipe at his lip with the napkin to satisfy his wife. He settled on the swipe and left for work abruptly.

Two more days passed. Marked only by one very important event for Johnny. He stopped at the corner drug store on his way home from the office, bought some dark hair rinse, and that night dyed his mustache. Although Johnny didn't know it, he had entered the period of derision.

At breakfast next morning his wife took one look at the unfortunate man and cried in an anguished voice, "Johnny!" That was all. That one word spoke volumes. Her hand shook when she passed the coffee and she dropped one of her best cups. Just before he left for the office he packed her goodby and was surprised to see tears in her eyes. "Oh Johnny," was all she could manage.

Two days more passed at the office. Hard days, bitter days for Johnny. Days that hammered and crushed Johnny's brave spirit. From every side he heard such remarks as:

"Hey Johnny, what's that spaniel doing on your lip?"

"Your mouth is dirty, Johnny."

"Whatcha trying to do, Johnny, raise a football mustache? Eleven on a side. Ha! Ha!"

And so on. It was no use. Stronger men than Johnny have tottered under such repetitious onslaughts. That night he cut the mustache off. He didn't recognize his own face in the mirror at first. When his wife saw him she could only sigh:

"Oh, Johnny!" I. VAN HOE.

Scrap Iron Campaign

We hear a lot about our shortage of scrap iron. We are told that our defense effort will be curtailed by this shortage. Our short-sightedness in stripping ourselves to supply Japan is bewailed.

A lot of talk, talk, talk. Where is the action? Sure we are short. What are we doing about it?

I understand that it will take about eight million tons over and above our natural supply to satisfy our year's requirements. Granted, if we depend on our present haphazard system. But why follow that method? Why not an organized, properly coordinated campaign that will cover the four corners of our Nation? A concerted effort should easily clean 25 million tons, three years supply at our present rate of use of scrap iron. But we will never realize this amount under our present junk man systems.

For once let's not wait until it is too late. Let's not have our industrial wheels stop due to lack of this vital metal. I understand that a committee is to be appointed to deal with the problem of scrap iron shortage. More delay and ponderous plodding due to red tape. Can nothing be done in this fashion without committees and hoopla? Why not appoint one capable man to handle the job? Let's get out and talking about it and do something about it. And do it now!

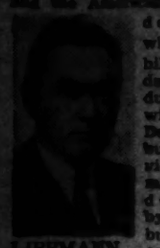
AN AMERICAN.
Alexandria, Va., Sept. 4.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The American Future

WE are not being very serious when we talk as if the future of the American economic order and the American social system depended on whether the mobilization of industry is conducted by a board with four New Dealers and three business men or vice versa. Great matters are not determined by little opinions but by great events, and the future of our economic and social system will surely be shaped in the circumstances which prevail at the end of the war. To imagine that our future can be shaped by our present preferences, and not by dealing with the real situation which will then exist, is to imagine vain things.



LIPPMANN

No one can foresee clearly and surely the situation which will exist because that depends upon the outcome of great campaigns which have still to be fought. But what one can say now is that the crucial question for our future will be whether in the post-war world it will be possible for the United States not to disarm but to demobilize in an orderly fashion and by its own free will. For obviously if we were forced to disarm at the dictation of foreign powers, we should have lost our freedom to shape our own future. No less, obviously, if we were unable to demobilize because we had reason to expect a renewal of the war, we should have militarism fastened upon us and there would be no freedom, that is to say, no time, no liberty of civilian decision, no surplus of wealth,—with which to shape our future. Only if the end of the war brings a peace in which we can freely demobilize, is it possible to conceive a future which we ourselves shape.

WE can think much more clearly, I believe, if, instead of talking about peace, we talk about the acid test of any peace, which is the ability to demobilize. When a nation cannot or does not demobilize, it is not really at peace and sooner or later the shooting will begin. The fact that a nation is mobilized for war is an absolutely certain sign that it has no belief the peace will last. Nations demobilize only when they no longer expect a more or less immediate war, and they are not at peace until they are able and willing to demobilize.

Therefore, the most searching and the most illuminating question which can be addressed to governments, statesmen, or political factions is whether the policy they advocate can reasonably be expected to lead to a situation in which demobilization is once more possible. This is the question which Hitler was utterly unable to face, much less to answer, after his immense victories last summer. He could not make peace with France or relax his iron grip on the continent he had conquered; he could not make a serious proposal to pacify the conquered or to limit the war. He could only prepare new wars on an ever greater scale. Thus Hitler demonstrated that, unable to make peace with the vanquished, he can never dare to withdraw his armies, and unable to demobilize his armies, he must suspend and prolong the war.

THIS same question—whether there is a prospect of demobilization—can fairly and usefully be applied in our own internal controversy about our relations to the war. There is the Lindbergh policy—which is to cease support of Britain and thus compel Britain to sue for peace. Suppose it were adopted. Suppose the British in bitterness and humiliation were compelled by our action to overthrow the Churchill government and set up some Quisling or some Laval with whom Hitler would collaborate. Suppose the British did then collaborate with Hitler who is, as it happens, collaborating with Japan.

In this world which Col. Lindbergh offers us, would he have the United States demobilize, would he have us cease building a two-ocean navy, would he have us cease developing our air power, would he have us abolish conscription and discharge the men in the camps? If we did demobilize in Lindbergh's world, how should we deal with this totalitarian world perpetually mobilized for war? And if we did not demobilize, but continued to arm, how long would it be before our armaments were considered as too dangerous to be permitted to grow? It is manifest that in Lindbergh's world, there is for us no prospect whatever of a peace in which we could demobilize and remain secure.

COL. Lindbergh is, of course, an extremist. But the fatal defect of his position—that it offers no prospect of a peace in which America would be able to demobilize—is the fatal defect also in the policy of all those who, much more innocently, argue that a peace can be negotiated with Germany without a change in the character of the German government. They might profitably study the much easier problem of making peace with Japan, and if they do, they will find that the acid test of any agreement with Japan would be guarantees sufficiently convincing to permit us to withdraw most of our fleet from the Pacific. For obviously we are not really at peace with Japan as long as we need most of the Navy facing Japan. Whether such guaranties can be had from Japan it is too early to say. But the affair with Japan should teach us that the reality of the problem of peace is the ability to demobilize because there is confidence that the armed forces will not suddenly be needed.

When someone can produce a German government which could negotiate a peace in which it will be feasible to demobilize, he will be talking about a peace that means peace, and is not a booby-trap.

THUS the future of our economic and social system depends upon whether, and when, and how, it will be possible to demobilize. If we cannot demobilize, we shall have to live permanently conscripted under a highly militarized economy—without freedom of our persons, without freedom of enterprise, without the enjoyment of the fundamental human rights of property, and with almost no margin for social benefits and expanding social service. Only if we can demobilize can we hope to return to a free economy and to social improvements.

What is more, the longer we have to remain mobilized, the more thoroughly we shall become attached by habit and vested interest to the collectivism of a war economy, the longer it will take and the harder it will be to unscramble the eggs. Thus the chances of our return to what Americans regard as the American way of life depend first, on not losing the war, second, on a peace conclusive enough to make demobilization possible, third, on getting to such a peace before the emergency mobilization becomes a settled habit.

Manchukuo Rule Lauded

By Otto D. Tolischus

Japan's New Order

Copyright by New York Times

TOKYO, SEPT. 15.—In a speech commemorating the ninth anniversary of Japan's recognition of Manchukuo, Foreign Minister Vice Admiral Tijiro Toyoda reiterated tonight Japan's firm determination to establish her new order in East Asia and pointed to Manchukuo as an example of what the new order means.

The anniversary is being observed here by events stretching over four days to include the tenth anniversary of the outbreak of the Manchuria incident on September 18, 1931.

Speaking at a grand rally in Hibiya Park, Admiral Toyoda declared that the Manchukuan government had been established at the will of the entire Manchukuan population of 30 million in the ideal of the kingly way on the basis of a "concord of five races." Japan, he stressed, had demonstrated her firm determination to assist the new government by assuming the important responsibilities of joint defense and withdrawing from the League of Nations which was "blind to the new situation that was developing in East Asia."

Since then, the foreign minister stressed, Manchukuo had made great progress in industry, agriculture, transportation and education which was in striking contrast to the days of misery under Chang Shueh-liang. Japan, the pointed out, was given extra territorial railway rights and 14 of the leading powers had recognized the new state.

FURTHERMORE, he emphasized, since the outbreak of the China incident, Manchukuo "fully understanding Japan's mission of establishing a new order in East Asia had spared no effort in cooperating with Japan and translating into practice the great ideal of inseparable relations between the two countries." Together with China, he said, they had formed an axis for the establishment of permanent peace in East Asia in the service of world peace.

Now, however, Admiral Toyoda stressed, Japan is confronted with a "super-emergency, unprecedented in the annals of its history." This, he said, makes the strengthening of the friendly relations between the two countries an urgent necessity. But, he concluded, Manchukuo and Japan will have a brilliant future "so far as they proceed with the establishment of the new order in East Asia."

Li Shaokeng, the Manchukuan ambassador, echoed the same sentiments and expressed Manchukuo's gratitude for Japan's help. He pledged Manchukuo's cooperation in the attainment of Japan's "heaven-endowed mission."

In a previous statement Li declared that the founding of Manchukuo was the prelude to the new world order now being established by the Axis nations.

TEIICHI MUTO, the noted Japanese newspaper commentator who recently wrote an open letter to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek urging him to join forces with Japan in ousting the "white barbarians" from China, today denounced the United States as the aggressor in the Pacific as illustrated by the American invasion of the Philippines, and Hawaii. He declared that United States aid to Chiang Kai-shek and the Soviet Union was an "inhuman proceeding and in defiance of heaven."

President Roosevelt's pronouncement of the freedom of the seas, he said, was a "ridiculous childish protest" advanced by a country which itself blocked the freedom of the seas. He expressed the conviction that God would not permit any person in the world to be deceived by the President's quibbling.

Emperor Hirohito today lunched with Admiral Shigetaro Shimada, the former commander of the Japanese fleet in China, and Admiral Ibo Takahashi, who has been serving in the high seas command. The Emperor expressed to them his appreciation of their services. The two admirals arrived in Tokyo today to receive from the public the tribute which is customary in the case of high officers returning from the front. Furthermore, 297 soldiers and civilians, including six generals, were awarded decorations for distinguished services in China.

In a continuation of naval changes, Rear Admiral Kokusaburo Makita was transferred to another important base.

It was announced that the La-Motte Picquet, the flagship of the French Far Eastern fleet, had arrived at Osaka for repairs, which was stressed as a token of closer collaboration between Japan and French Indo-China.

Inter-American Congress Opens

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 15 (AP)—The Americas must have "unity without limit" to combat the perils arising from the war in Europe, Juan Rossetti, Chilean Foreign Minister, told delegates to the second Inter-American Congress of Municipalities at its opening session tonight.

Replying on behalf of the English speaking delegates, Daniel Hoan, chairman of the United States delegation, expressed the hope that the congress "not only would contribute to improvement in municipal government of the Americans but also promote international goodwill, implement the democratic way of life and strengthen the moral defense of the Western Hemisphere."

Rumania Denies Officers Mutinied

The Rumanian Legation in a statement yesterday said the "Rumanian government emphatically denies the report (from Ankara) that Gen. Ciuperca and other Rumanian officers had been shot for refusing to advance beyond the Dniester River" in the war on Russia.

"Gen. Ciuperca, as commander in chief of the Rumanian armies in southern Bessarabia, has himself found it necessary to cross the Dniester solely in consequence of military considerations insuring Bessarabia against further Communist threats," the legation statement said.

The Broader Issue

By Livingston Hartley

American Stakes In The War

ANY realistic appraisal of our situation today shows that our country is in many ways already "in the war." American industry, American financial resources, and American diplomacy are now playing a central part in the struggle, and American warships along the North Atlantic sea lanes are at least partially "involved" in the Battle of the Atlantic.

The question of going further into the war may be decided for us by the march of events, by Hitler or by Japan. But it still remains, after two years, our paramount public issue, and doubtless will continue until either we are in the war all the way or the war is over.

Although the isolationists often employ emotional arguments which have no real bearing on American foreign policy, the debate has been based fundamentally upon American national interests, the greatest of which is the preservation of national security. That is the only solid basis for a decision relating to peace or war. And it is because the American people have viewed the issue in this light that the passage of two years has left the isolationists a relatively small and dwindling minority.

ALTHOUGH our most vital stake in the war is the preservation of the national security upon which our democracy and our future depend, there are many other American interests also at stake. Among these the following have not yet been given the consideration which they merit:

1. The quickest possible victory in the war is surely an American interest, because the longer the struggle continues, the greater will be the disintegration of the Western World. If victory can be won in 1942 instead of 1943 or 1944, the fabric of a peaceful civilization, here as well as in Europe, will be far easier to repair. We will, moreover, save a great many billions of dollars for armaments and further billions for reconstruction.

This interest could best be served by going further into the war. That would strike a vital blow at Axis morale, would strengthen immeasurably the morale of the Allies and the hope of the conquered peoples, and would influence Vichy and Japan against wider collaboration with Hitler. It would thus tend to prevent the war from spreading over West Africa to the South Atlantic and into the Pacific. To virtually all the peoples of the world, including a great many Germans, it would be a clear sign that Nazi Germany's days were numbered.

2. THERE is now a population as great as that of the United States living in subjection to Germany. Is it not fair to regard the liberation of these people from their present suffering and slavery as an American interest? In the past we have always been sympathetic and helpful to oppressed peoples, and we have professed to believe in Christian principles. Can we honestly say now that the fate and suffering of these people of our Western World are no concern of ours?

3. The creation of national unity is a vital American interest in a world situation as dangerous as this. We lack such unity today, as is shown by the fact that many prominent men and some organizations are helping Hitler against Britain. Unless the views of our relation to the war set forth by both the Administration and Congress and held by a vast majority of Americans are totally wrong, such action helps Hitler against America.

This disunity could be cured by going further into the war. Once there is general realization that we are dealing with an actual rather than a potential enemy, most of those who have been helping Hitler will begin to work wholeheartedly for the United States.

4. MUCH the same is true of another American interest, national morale. Its present unsatisfactory state is largely due to disunity and to confusion concerning our relation to the war. As a people we are exceedingly traditional-minded and legalistic in political affairs, and thus highly susceptible to confusion in our unprecedented situation of being part in the war and part out.

Today it seems clear that the only real cure for this unsatisfactory morale is general recognition that we are in the war. And this is particularly vital now, because upon our morale depends our production and upon our production depends victory in the war, and the future of America. We cannot achieve "all-out" production until we are willing to work as the British are working.

5. Looking further ahead, we must not underestimate the importance to us and our children of national self-respect. In the past we have considered ourselves the greatest country in the world. Foreigners may not have liked this attitude, but we felt it justified because, long before our country achieved a foremost position in power and in industrial achievement, it was the land of liberty, of progress and of hope for the future of mankind.

We have now accepted as a Nation the thesis that our security and the future of our country and civilization require the defeat of Nazi Germany. The President's pronouncements of policy, the passage of the lease-lend bill by Congress and many polls of public opinion are evidence of this fact. If we now limit our efforts to win this victory to supplying armaments for others, how are we going to feel within ourselves and as Americans when victory is finally won? Will we feel then as great a people as the British, who have written such a noble page in the history of the world in a struggle which we admit concerns our safety as well as theirs?

Those who are mindful of our past traditions and the importance of national self-respect for the future will not brush aside these questions.

6. FINALLY, there is the part we are to play in the peace and in the organization of a world that may give men a better and fuller life. This issue, though not immediate, is of overshadowing importance, because the war may be won in two or three years, whereas the peace that follows will affect the lives of generations of Americans.

If victory should come while we occupy our present relation to the war and while we are still divided, the tragic history of 1919 might be repeated and lead to another 1939. The isolationist minority might gain enough power in the months of dislocation which followed the end of the fighting to again keep America out of the peace and thus again condemn America and mankind to another World War.

THE very hope of a stable peace in our Western World depends upon the full acceptance by the United States of the responsibility for leadership we refused in 1919. Can we expect that we will be willing to go all-out for consolidation of the peace, with the economic sacrifices, and political concessions that it will demand, unless we go further into the war? This question requires serious thought by every American family because now, for the second time in 25 years, we have a chance to create the kind of a world we want for our children.

MummyTombs Make Safest Raid Shelters

By Godfrey H. P. Anderson

British Journalist

SIWA OASIS, in the Western Desert, Egypt, Sept. 15.—Ancient Egyptian tombs from which mummies have been removed provide the safest air-raid shelters in the world for the people of this oasis.

When the war first touched the fringe of the Western Desert the Siwa inhabitants flocked from their crumbling mud hut city to nearby Jebel Muta (Mountain of Death), and made new homes inside death chambers hewn from solid rock thousands of years ago.

A visit to this maze of catacombs is like a step back in time. Two thousand persons—Egyptians, Bedouins, Berbers, Senussi, Arabs—live there in rock caves so low it is impossible for a man to stand upright.

NICHES which once contained mummies of their ancestors now house crude pottery, cooking pots, smoky oil lamps of Biblical design and modern kettles from Birmingham, England, the latter via Cairo bazaars.

Veiled women and young girls squat before fires of dried palm leaves like figures from an old Egyptian frieze.

War with the Italians across the Libyan frontier brought Siwa more contacts with the outside world than it had known in a hundred years.

When British imperial troops entered the oasis after driving hundreds of miles across the waterless desert, the Mahmour—or local governor—threw a big party in one of Siwa's famous date gardens.

SEVEN SHEEP, roasted and stuffed with chopped liver and kidneys, were carried in on poles. The soldiers, who had been warned to bring their own knives, forks and plates, had the feast of their lives. Grapes, dates and pomegranates followed and the meal was topped off with stuffed heart of palm tree, which tastes something like a turnip.

Then, with troops gathered around, the venerable sheik squatted on a crimson carpet and prepared mint tea with the same elaborate ritual carried out in Siwa through scores of generations.

The Once Over

World Series Outlook

The baseball world at last may have a World Series that should have some old-time color, whoopla and all around excitement. It may restore the event to its old-time position as a combination firemen's clambake, stevedores' riot and intersectional war.

* * * *

If Brooklyn meets the Yanks the fans will see a return of the spirit of baseball as played when it was every man for himself and at least two guards to every umpire.

* * * *

The World Series has needed the cockeyed, hifalutin, highly goofy quality that the Brooklyn club can give. For a long time past the World Series has been a highly polite demonstration of unemotionalism by 18 costly athletes, most of who had the poise and restraint of tired businessmen.

* * * *

But the Dodgers give to any gathering the same uplift that a loose steer gives a busy city street. Throwing Brooklyn into a World Series is like tossing a bunch of cannon-crackers into a bank vault.

* * * *

A World Series may be just a World Series to a lot of ball clubs but it is a world war, a trip to Mars and a first ride on the roller coaster to the Brooklyn boys.

* * * *

Brooklyn is a city located between Coney and Manhattan Island. It is an open question whether it is a community or a state of hysteria.

* * * *

It is entirely surrounded by taverns, new real estate developments, politicians, bookies, grand juries, rubber plants, and newly opened highways, and its principal product is the 100 per cent Early American Baseball Rooter. Unreformed, Unrefined and Uncivilized.

* * * *

Its large body of untamed fans have been denied pennant winning baseball for so many years that the very prospect of having a native club in a World Series has provoked the same reckless elation that might be shown by a hungry outcast who has just received a complimentary ticket to a sheep roast.

* * * *

Over the years it has generally been a question whether Brooklyn fans have been going to the games for excitement or for laughs.

* * * *

Here has been the last stronghold of the loyal rooter, the umpire baiter and the pop bottle hurler. In a close game you could see more unheard of fighters than at a Golden Glove rodeo.

* * * *

Now the club is close to the World Series gates and a situation presents itself in which the Russian war will be shoved onto Page 2, the war communiques eclipsed and the fight for the four freedoms strictly limited to four out of seven games.

* * * *

Mayor LaGuardia's Civilian Defense preparations have not been in vain. They may be put to their first test. Will the fire wardens please go to their stations about the ball park and prepare for the worst?

Bellowing with fiendish joy!
My heart leaps to see you, lad,

A cheerful hail, you lusty scion!
I'm glad you're hizz'n and not "mion."

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

An Evil And Audacious Union Meets

THE CITY of St. Louis will be the scene this week of the first national convention of the Hod-Carriers' Building and Common Laborers Union of America since 1911. This union is evil and audacious beyond any possibility of exaggeration and beyond the comprehension of Americans who have always believed in a credulous unquestioning way that unions were idealistic groupings of workers devoted to the common good of the members.

PEGLER

The national officials of this union elected themselves to their respective offices and the national headquarters has made a practice of suspending the elected officials of local unions and superseding them with appointed viceroys when members of the locals become obstreperous regarding their rights or their funds. When the autonomy of a local is thus revoked the books and money pass into the hands of the small group of self-elected national officials and the appointed boss of the local carries out the orders of these few men. In other words, this group led by Joseph V. Moreschi of Chicago, the president, who never was elected to that office by the rank and file or by a vote of local units, is thus enabled to boss without possibility of challenge not only the national body but a sufficient number of the locals to prevent any effective uprising.

THE national union a year ago claimed 250,000 members and this number doubtless has been increased by at least 50,000 and probably by 100,000 new victims by a process of extortion practiced on workers on defense jobs of various kinds within the last year. The National Government of the United States has connived at this extortion for it has been notorious and the subject of much discussion, but has not been interfered with. Men applying for for work on defense jobs have had to pay from $10 to $50 each for initiation and pay dues which vary. Many men who paid their initiation fees in installments were fired as soon as they were paid up and replaced by other new members, a scheme which brought in extra initiation fees. The national headquarters of Moreschi in Washington gets $5 out of each initiation fee and the local keeps the rest. The average annual dues are not known to me but must be at least $50 a year, which would mean that the annual rakeoff, exclusive of initiation fees, must be $12,500,000 on the basis of 250,000 members, or $15,000,000 on the basis of 300,000. Out of this the national headquarters gets 75 cents a month per man, a total of $1,050,000 a year for the maintenance of the headquarters and the death benefit fund. On the basis of 250,000 members, or $1,200,000 on the basis of 300,000. The death benefit fund gets seven and one-half cents out of each member's monthly per capita or 90 cents, which would be $18,750 a month on the basis of 250,000 members or $22,500 on the basis of 300,000. However, the benefits actually paid, which cannot exceed $200 in any case, were only a little over $3000 a month for a typical period of three months, April, May and June, 1940.

The financial statement for that period states that an unspecified amount was paid for legal service to John Moreschi which is the name of the son of Joseph V. Moreschi, the president. John Moreschi, the son, was for a time an Assistant United States District Attorney in Chicago, which was the scene of the fabulous operations of the late Mike Carrozza, who owned outright the charters of about 25 locals, stole and extorted millions of dollars from and by means of the workers and died last year under bond to secure a claim from the Internal Revenue Department of $350,000 as deficiencies in his income tax returns for two years only, plus penalties and interest.

THE ACCOUNT of the death benefit fund reports that the administration expenses incurred in receiving the contributions and paying out $25,000 in benefits for the three months' period mentioned were $12,567 or more than half as much as the total of benefits paid in that time.

It would be idle to wonder how much the national union and all the locals have collected from the hod-carriers, ditch-diggers, garbage handlers, and paving workers in the 30 years since the last convention or what happened to the money. But if it be assumed that the membership averaged only 200,000 men for the last ten years and that they paid $50 each a year in dues, it will be seen that these forgotten men have had to pay at least $100,000,000 for the privilege of belonging to an organization ruled by self-elected bosses and exploited, in local areas, by criminals of the lowest type, at least two of whom owned racing stables.

Army And Navy Making Plans For Censoring Foreign News

The Army and Navy informed Congress yesterday that they are preparing plans for censorship of all communications between the United States and any foreign nation, American overseas possession or ship at sea.

Such control would apply to both incoming and outgoing communications "by any means of transmission," and ostensibly is intended to prevent espionage and entrance of foreign propaganda.

Letters from the War and Navy Departments to the House Military and Naval Committees disclosed the existence of such plans and said they would have to be approved by "higher authority" and be supported by legislation.

Both Acting Secretary of War Patterson and Acting Navy Secretary Forrestal assured Congress that the current plans do not contemplate compulsory censorship of the press.

Patterson admitted in his letter that "the War Department has, in the past, examined into and studied the question of compulsory censorship of the press and radio, and many other problems, with a view to being prepared to offer timely solutions should the need therefor be required in the interests of national defense." He insisted, however, that there were no plans along this line now in preparation.

The Army and Navy letters were submitted in response to resolutions introduced by Representative Shafer (Republican), of Michigan, as to whether press censorship plans are under consideration. After the reports were read the House voted to table the resolutions.

Southern Railway Reduces Bank Loans

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—The Southern Railway today reduced its bank loans $2,500,000, leaving a balance of $3,500,000 outstanding of the original credit of $10,000,000 negotiated in May to liquidate the balance of the company's Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan.

Of the $6,500,000 so far repaid, only $1,000,000 was required. The rest consists of payments in advance to save interest costs.

Of the balance still outstanding, $1,000,000 is due November 15 at 3 per cent interest; $1,000,000 on February 15, 1942, at 2½ per cent; $500,000 on May 15, 1942 at 2½ per cent, and $1,000,000 on August 15, 1942, at 2¾ per cent.

Text of President's Lend-Lease Report

All Contracts To Be Let Soon, Congress Told

President Roosevelt's letter of transmittal accompanying second 90-day report to Congress on operations under the Lend-Lease Act follows:

I am submitting this report pursuant to Section 5 (b) of the Lend-Lease Act of March 11, 1941, which provides that the President report to the Congress every 90 days on the operations under that act.

The Lend-Lease Act was passed by the Congress just 183 days ago. One hundred and sixty-seven days ago the Congress appropriated 7 billion dollars to carry out our national policy of giving every possible material assistance to the countries resisting aggression.

The effective expenditure of this large sum in furtherance of our announced policy has presented tasks of large proportions. We have surveyed the needs of the countries we are aiding. We have correlated this program of aid with the procurement of our own Army and Navy. We have arranged with our industries for the production of the great quantities of material involved.

The War Department, the Navy Department, the Treasury Department, the Agriculture Department, and the Maritime Commission are the agencies principally charged with the actual procurement of the supplies. They are now far along with their task.

Over 6¼ of the 7 billion dollars appropriated have now been allocated, upon the recommendation of these agencies, for specific materials and services. Their procurement machinery has been constantly at work, locating producers and placing contracts. Over 3½ billion dollars of legal commitments have already been made. Contracts will soon be placed for the entire 7 billion dollar appropriation.

Billion Dollars for Bombers

Contracts have been placed and work has started on nearly a billion dollars of bombardment aircraft. New ways have been started and work is in progress for about one-half a billion dollars of new merchant shipping. New facilities to speed the production of guns, ammunition and other defense articles have been started under contracts totaling about $262,000,000. Over 430,000,000 has been allocated, and over $250,000,000 has been obligated, for the purchase of milk, eggs, and other agricultural products.

Daily the aid being rendered is growing. Through the month of August the total dollar value of defense articles transferred and defense services rendered, plus expenditures for other lend-lease purposes, amounted to $486,721,838.

Food and steel and machinery and guns and planes have been supplied in increasing quantities. Agricultural commodities worth $110,606,550 have been transferred to the countries we are aiding. We have transferred to the United Kingdom more than 44 million pounds of cheese, more than 54 million pounds of eggs, more than 89 million pounds of cured pork, more than 110 million pounds of dried beans, and more than 114 million pounds of lard. We have transferred to them more than three million barrels of gasoline and oil. We have sent them many tanks. Merchant and naval ships and other transportation equipment are being transferred in growing amounts.

A substantial number of cargo ships and tankers have been chartered to the use of those countries whose defense is vital to our own. Our yards are repairing Allied merchant ships. We are equipping allied ships to protect them from mines; and we are arming them, as much as possible, against aircraft, submarines, and raiders.

We have also, by repairing and outfitting their warships, helped the British and Allied navies keep the vital sea lanes upon which depends continued resistance to Axis piracy. The repair of the battleship Malaya and the aircraft carrier Illustrious are outstanding examples of this naval assistance.

Over the whole range of technical and material assistance required by modern warfare, we are, under the lend-lease program, rendering effective help. Important defense information is being supplied to Britain and the other nations fighting the Axis powers. Our technicians are instructing the Allies in the assembly, operation, and maintenance of the tools coming from our factories. Across the United States and across Africa, our plane ferry service is linking the arsenals of America with democracy's outposts in the Middle East. On our airfields, thousands of British pilots are being, and will continue to be, trained, and already we are preparing a similar program to help the Chinese.

We have supplied equipment for the Yunnan-Burma Railroad and for the Burma Road in order to speed the flow of arms and materials to the heroic Chinese people. In addition to materials of war, we are furnishing China with medicine and technical assistance to fight the ravages of malaria. A military mission has also been dispatched to China in connection with the supplying of lend-lease aid.

The 7 billion dollars appropriated for purchasing defense articles has been available less than six months, and actual transfers from these funds have necessarily been limited to articles which could be purchased in a finished state or produced in that time. The speed with which future lend-lease transfers will be made depends largely on the speed with which our industries deliver the goods. The rate of our production must be accelerated, and every step to achieve that end must and will be taken.

These lend-lease deliveries are not, of course, the only materials which have been moving from our shores to the countries resisting aggression. Prior to the Lend-Lease Act, large contracts were placed here by Great Britain and by other countries from their own sources. Deliveries under these contracts are moving across the sea along with lend-lease articles. The true measure of the volume of war supplies moving from our shores is reflected in our total exports. Thus, since the beginning of the war, about $4,400,000,000 worth of goods have been exported to the British Empire.

Other Countries Receive Aid

Figures alone cannot show the significance of our help. Americans may be justly proud of the way in which the tools they have forged are standing up when tested under fire. An American-made flying boat spotted the Bismarck and American-made bombers blasted the Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau, and they have helped make possible the great raids of the R. A. F. in the Battle of Germany. In the wars of the Western Desert, fighter planes of our factories are in the vanguard of the atttack and hundreds of our Nazi scourge from the African tanks stand ready to help rout the continent.

The British Empire has received the bulk of our aid. But we have also extended assistance to the many other countries engaged in the same struggle. China and the Dutch East Indies are receiving ever increasing quantities of supplies. The exiled governments of the countries under the Nazi yoke are sharing in the program. We are already outfitting Polish troops who are training in Canada for action overseas. We are also providing, directly or indirectly, aid for the Dutch, the Norwegians, the Greeks, the Belgians and the Yugoslavs. We know that every group which yields to or collaborates with the Nazos makes our own defense that much more difficult. Likewise each group that resists Nazi aggression helps to keep the war from our own hemisphere.

The defense of the Western Hemisphere has been a prime consideration in our lend-lease program. Not only are we helping the European countries which stand athwart the Nazi path toward the Western Hemisphere, but we are also giving direct lend-lease aid to the countries of this hemisphere. We are strengthening Iceland, where our troops and ships now stand guard over the approaches of the North Atlantic, and we have already embarked upon a comprehensive program of material aid to the countries of Central and South America to strengthen the common defense of our good neighborhood.

The gallant resistance of the Russian people has been of enormous help to all peoples resisting the Nazi war machine. It has completely upset the Nazi time schedule and has destroyed the myth of Nazi invincibility. We are using the energies of our Government to make available supplies which are urgently needed by Russia. By speeding deliveries and by arranging the quickest transportation of American materials, we are moving to strengthen the important Russian front. The Soviet government's purchases here are being made with its own funds through its regular purchasing agency.

Impregnable Defense

The people of the United States know that we cannot live in a world dominated by Hitlerism. They realize that there can be no real peace, no secure freedom until we have destroyed the evil forces which seek to work us woe. Through their chosen representatives, they have declared a firm and unalterable policy to build up an impregnable defense for this hemisphere, and to furnish unstinted material aid to the countries fighting against Nazi aggression and tyranny.

We are not furnishing this aid as an act of charity or sympathy, but as a means of defending America. We offer it because we know that piecemeal resistance to aggression is doomed to failure; because the ruthless war machine which now bestrides the continet of Europe can be combatted only by the combined efforts of all free peoples and at all strategic points where the aggressor may strike.

The lend-lease program is no mere side issue to our program of arming for defense. It is an integral part, a keystone, in our great national effort to preserve our national security for generations to come, by crushing the disturbers of our peace.

To those peoples who are gallantly shedding their blood in the front lines of this struggle, we must offer not only a shield but a sword, not merely the means to permit the stalemate of protracted defense, but the tools of a final and total victory.

This country has evolved the greatest and most efficient industrial system in history. It is our task to turn the workshops of our industry into mighty forges of war—to outbuild the aggressors in every category of modern arms. Only in this way can we build the arsenal of democracy.

On this task we are now engaged with ever increasing vigor. Planes, tanks, guns, and ships have begun to flow from our factories and yards and the flow will accelerate from day to day, until the stream becomes a river, and the river a torrent, engulfing this totalitarian, tyranny which seeks to dominate the world.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.
The White House,
September 11, 1941.

FLORABELLE CLEMENTS, 18, of Saugus, Mass., was located in New York yesterday by a telegram which dispelled the mystery surrounding her disappearance Saturday night. The message came to the girl's mother, Mrs. Russell Sheets, and said: "Am all right. Don't worry. Will write right away." Police, already perplexed by the 8-week-old unsolved slaying of pretty Frances Cochran, 19, started a wide search for Miss Clements when she was reported missing by her stepfather, Russell Sheets

First Lady To Be at New Job at 9 Daily

It's to work at 9 a. m. for the latest employe in the Office of Civilian Defense — Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. Although the First Lady, at her press conference yesterday, said she would probably not observe regular office hours she does expect to turn up at her office every morning promptly at 9 o'clock, starting September 29.

Mayor LaGuardia had to have the appointment of his new employe approved by the President, Mrs. Roosevelt said yesterday. She said she did not know the full nature of her duties but said she would undoubtedly handle the organization and planning for work on civilian volunteer participation inasmuch as her experience has been along that line.

Asked how it felt to be a public official, Mrs. Roosevelt replied that she "had not noticed much difference." She expects to carry on her previous commitments, such as writing, radio and lectures, but she said that her new job would quite obviously curtail many of her other activities.

Asked about the impending visit of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor to Washington, Mrs. Roosevelt said she thought that if they were to be in Washington they would probably be received at the White House.

Steel Arrives, Work Resumes on Md. Span

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 15.—Steel, delayed for about a month because of defense priorities, has arrived for the new bridge over Little Antietam Creek on the Hagerstown-Waynesboro Highway and work has been started in erecting it on piers long completed. The State Roads Commission expects the new bridge, eliminating two sharp curves and a narrow span, scene of numerous automobile accidents in recent years, will be completed before winter.

These Schoolgirls Know Their Types; Dress Accordingly

For the dramatic type of girl—the worsted-like casual (above) woven with Eastman rayon, sets off a striking figure. With bodice and skirt fullness, its styling is up-to-the-minute. Note frivolous bow ties at waistband and youthful push-up sleeves

For the all-around girl—Actress Joan Leslie models the inimitable jacket and skirt outfit shown above. Beige and brown wool are used for the skirt. The smart jacket of cocoa brown is the longer boy's style type popular among high school girls

For the coquette—the tricky drape of the vividly printed glentex wool scarf should simplify the flirting situation. This is only one of the many ways schoolgirls wear their scarfs. Some tuck them around to the back; others wear them on their hair

How to Select Clothes That Aid Personality Told in New Textbook for District Schools

Local Instructors Write Volume on Style and Chic

By Jane Driscoll

The GIRL graduate who shied away from sewing courses in high school a few years back would utter the plaintive cry, "If I were only young again!" could she look in on them today.

Instead of so much emphasis being put on construction, the girls are taught how to buy their own clothes wisely, according to Mrs. Ola Day Rush, head of the home economics department for public schools in the District. Mrs. Rush's new book, "Clothes with Character," written in collaboration with Hazel Thompson Craig, gives a birdseye view of what young girls will be learning about clothes this fall in school.

Although "Clothes with Character" is to be a textbook for the District schools, it is a far cry from old-time clothing books. Not written as a text, it is a book that would be just as interesting to mature women, as it is to high school girls. It incorporates within its pages the creed of modern day teaching—emphasis on personality and charm.

Offers Encouragement

On the very first page, it convinces the ugly duckling that she has a chance, by quoting from an old Arabian proverb: "If you have beauty, he will admire you. If you are witty, clever or profound, he will respect you. But if you have charm he will adore you and lay at your feet the love that a man gives only to a charming woman."

From the first chapter on good grooming, to the last one on historic costume, a girl learns that clothes are a means of expressing her personality—a game she can have fun with. There is also a bit about budgeting—how to get the most satisfaction out of the dollar. Color, fabrics, furs and historic fashions are also discussed.

As the fashion editor chatted with Mrs. Rush about her new book, the author pointed out that it was not the purpose of present-day clothing courses in high school to make seamstresses or teachers out of the girls. The aim is to give them a speaking knowledge of style and design. Educators are now facing the fact that only about 25 per cent of girls go to college. In the past, material, such as the girls are now given, was taught only in schools of higher learning.

Style Understanding

Through the right understanding of style and line and the proper solving of clothing problems, Mrs. Rush insists that any girl can become more attractive. "Being well dressed is a matter of selection of type in relation to style, rather than a matter of money," she said. "A girl should learn to cast off cheap imitations. If she can't afford a good fur-trimmed coat, she should buy an attractive one without fur.

"Many girls do not realize that the fancy dress, is not really the smart one in the long run. It may be expensive to keep up. For that reason, we stress simplicity and the wearing of the modest thing in clothes." She explained that by a modest dress she meant one with simple lines, rather than one with a lot of pleats and frills.

In conclusion Mrs. Rush outlined five reasons why clothes are important to the high school girl:

Economic reasons.
A means of self expression.
A contributing factor to success in the business world.
Pleasant use of leisure time.
Creative value.

The "Charm Chart" accompanying the text contains various tables by which a girl can evaluate herself. As a help in treating one's own personality, it gives the key for minimizing defects and accenting the good points.

Personality Chart for Girls

Here are the eight personality types of girls and their suggested types of clothes as given by Mrs. Ola Day Rush in her new book, "Clothes With Character."

THE INGENUE: Petite, feminine and naive. Clothes—laces, taffetas and soft crepes.

THE COQUETTE: Flirt, flatterer and primper. Clothes—frills, soft woolens and velvet bows.

THE EXOTIC: Sophisticated, mysterious and extreme. Clothes—costume outfits, brocades and leopard skin.

THE ROMANTIC: Dreamy reticent and calm. Clothes—sculptured evening gowns, dressmaker suits and flowing house coats.

THE ALL-AROUND GIRL: Sincere attractive and vivacious. Clothes—tissue gingham, sheer woolens and coarse materials.

THE CONSERVATIVE: Opposite of the exotic, conforms to traditions and solid majority type. Clothes—carefully planned, accessories tailored.

THE FACTUAL: Questions facts, dependable and methodical. Clothes—neat outfits, "safe" accessories and sane costumes.

THE GARCON: Tomboy, athlete and ring leader. Clothes—casual tweeds, sports furs and tailored lines.

THE CLASSIC OR INTELLECTUAL: Logical mind, flare for literature and "idea" girl. Clothes—good material, conservative lines and avoidance of fads.

Vivid Gloves de Rigeur For Fall, Designer Says

Hollywood, Calif.—Vivid gloves worn with dark monotone costumes and buttons that are distinct items in themselves are both important trends in the fall picture painted by Orry-Kelly, Hollywood designer.

He suggests pale lime-colored gloves with the all-black costume, peacock blue with biege or brown, reseda green with navy. And as for the importance of buttons, Orry fulfills his own prediction by using four large "thumbs up" buttons on the bodice of a two-toned dress worn by Ann Sheridan.

Mary Haworth is now on vacation. Her column will be resumed September 29. In the meantime, letters addressed to Miss Haworth's attention will be held unopened, to await her consideration upon her return to her desk.

Conquer That Double Chin

THE PERKY fall hat that looked so youthful in the show case—how will it look on you? Will there be the least hint of a double chin to spoil the sprightly effect?

With the right exercises you could soon conquer the middle-aged figure faults that keep you from looking your best in youthful clothes.

The trouble is our muscles. They SHOULD hold us firm and trim. But alas, neglected, they get lazy and slack—so our heads droop forward, our shoulders and tummies sag. Then we're in for a whole raft of troubles from double chins to dowager's humps, drooping busts and rubber-tire waistlines.

But if we'd just wake up those lazy muscles with some safe, easy exercises then we'd get back our trim youthful contours. Here's one of a pair of exercises you can do to conquer a double chin.

Don't be content to look and feel middle-aged. Exercises can do marvels not only for your figure but for various ailments like aching back, constipation.

Club Would Profit by Study Of Decorating

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

CLUB TIME is here again and most of us are glad to be back in harness. Someone has said, the club is the postgraduate university for the married woman . . . and it is just that as anyone who glances over club programs for the coming year will concede.

An alert woman can "take up" at her club most any subject she's interested in . . . current events, Government, languages, child care, books, gardening or travel. The one important subject that most clubs neglect, however, is interior decorating. True enough, an occasional program is given over to this, but it warrants a whole series of programs, or even a special club for those who are seriously interested.

A Help on History

For one thing—a study of interior decorating is the easiest way we know to get your history straight. For another, it will make the job of home making doubly fascinating.

Most of us know more about almost anything than about this important basic subject. We dress like nobody's business; we're experts on politics and international affairs; we're practically scientists when it comes to foods and dietetics; we know all the latest theories on child care.

But do we know a Chippendale chair when we see one? Do we know what makes a drapery hang properly? Do we know the important furniture periods?

How to Do It

Then why not get the established club to start a study of interior decoration this fall or organize a club for that very purpose. Use a good basic book on furniture for the text. Supplement its study by visits to local stores where there are good reproductions of the standard types of historical designs. Use samples of wall paper and chints to illustrate various talks and to plan ensembles for different rooms.

Study types of fine china, different motifs in Oriental rugs, the romance of fabrics, modern lighting, the why and wherefores of curtains, and all the other enchanting phases of the subject . . . each thing we use in our homes has a long and exciting story behind it. Have members report on significant books on the subject. Investigate regional American furniture, with special emphasis on the furnishings used by early settlers in your locality. Let members bring their problems up for discussion.

Watch Complexion Of Knees and Elbows

Hollywood, Calif.—Georgia Carroll, who measures one-sixth of all the beauty contained in the Navy Blues Sextet, has a peach and ivory complexion. But the care of it doesn't end at Georgia's chin line. She gives considerable thought to the "complexion" of her elbows, knees and heels, especially in the summer when knees are in view and heels are more often exposed than not, by scrubbing them with soap and water and massaging them with cocoa butter.

Miss Dragonette

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

Jessica Dragonette, Advocate of High-Test Foods

"HIGH-TEST foods are just as necessary to a person as high-test gasoline is to a motor." That is the opinion of Miss Jessica Dragonette, petite concert and radio artist who was the guest star on the opening radio program inaugurated today by Miss Marshall Adams, director, Women's Activities, Station WINX.

Miss Dragonette is up on the functions of foodstuffs as well as on arias and scales. Food is especially important she feels, now that there is such a vast amount of defense work to be accomplished. She emphasizes the importance of milk, leafy green vegetables, a moderate amount of meat, and fruits for the diet of all so they may be well fortified for work. And, "work, work, work" is her prescription for success.

When asked about the foods she normally includes in her diet she answered, "I often eat an "iron breakfast." But always one-half hour before breakfast, I drink a glass of orange juice, or the juice of one whole lemon in a glass of hot water, or a glass of tomato juice or eat a whole orange. Later I am ready for my "iron breakfast."

An "iron breakfast" to this singer means that she has raisins, two soft-cooked eggs, a piece of whole wheat toast and a glass of milk. A favorite fruit dish for breakfast is raisins, apricots and prunes soaked in honey for 24 hours.

Just as nutritionists insist that vegetables should not be overcooked, so does Miss Dragonette. "And vegetables should always be cooked in a small amount of water so that some of the best nutrients will not go to the fishes." Potatoes too in her opinion are best when baked or cooked in the jackets.

Luncheon, Miss Dragonette says, usually consists of something like a mixed green salad, wafers, fruit jello and a tall glass of milk. She prefers salad dressing made with lemon juice and oil—no vinegar. Since she devotes three hours a day to her singing she burns up much energy, so she takes a glassful of fresh vegetable juice—carrot, spinach, celery with lemon—or eats a handful of plump raisins.

Dinner for Miss Dragonette usually means some of the following foods—liver; steak medium-rare and always broiled, as she never eats fried foods; carrots, beets, baked potato, spinach; a salad of escarole or endive with lemon French dressing, sometimes varied with Roquefort; and a dessert.

A food that Miss Dragonette considers a "must" in her diet is raisins. They show up as a breakfast fruit, in salad at lunch, and in a pudding for dinner. Shredded red cabbage mixed with raisins and mayonnaise is a favorite salad, and rice pudding made with raisins, coconut and a dash of cinnamon is a favored dessert.

Rice pudding is a nutritious dessert that is excellent for fall menus, and when glorified with raisins, coconut and cinnamon, as Miss Dragonette suggests, it takes on added appeal. Here is a recipe that will produce this flavorsome dessert:

Rice Pudding

Cook rice to make 1½ cupsful. Separate the whites and yolks of 2 eggs, and add 2 tablespoons milk to the yolks. Place 2 cupsful of milk to heat in a double boiler. Wash ½ cup raisins, put them in the milk and cook until soft—about 15 minutes. Add the cooked rice, cook 5 minutes longer, then stir in the egg yolks ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon and ½ cup coconut. Stir well, cook for 2 to 3 minutes, remove from the fire and pour the pudding into the serving dish. Beat the 2 egg whites until light, add 1 tablespoon powdered sugar to make a meringue and spread on top of pudding and brown delicately in the oven. Yield, 6 servings.

Maria Nunez del Prado Falls in Love With U. S.

Artist Whose Work Is Tremendously Popular Is Now Sculpturing Bust of Mrs. Burke

By Carolyn Bell

After having studied all her young life to become a violinist, Marina Nunez del Prado suddenly dropped music to become a sculptress—and has gained fame all over the Western Hemisphere.

A native of Bolivia, she recently had a tremendously successful exhibit of her work at the Pan American Union. As a matter of fact it was such a success that Secretary of the Interior, Harold Ickes, asked her to transfer the show to the Interior Department where it is now.

Yesterday in the pleasant garden of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke, Marina was busy at work on a bust of Mrs. Burke which is about completed. Under her white smock, the artist wore a lovely silk suit in pale, azure blue. As she spoke of her work (in halting English or rapid-fire Spanish) her yellow eyes lighted up and her hands moved expressively. Her straight, black hair is parted in the center and pulled severely back with thick braids coiling around on either side—giving her face a distinctly Indian cast. An interesting combination of ancestors—British, Irish, Indian and Spanish—is reflected in Marina.

Wants to Sculpture American Indians

The artist says she has fallen in love with the U. S. A. Her one desire—which undoubtedly will be fulfilled—is to sculpture the American Indian. When she is working, Marina goes into it heart and soul. For a number of months she lived among the Aymara Indians—and even danced in their religious ceremonies dressed in costume. Her great feeling of rhythm is shown in her many dancing figures carved in wood. She has come to have a great deal of respect and admiration for Indian culture, customs and religion.

Marina's desire to know and travel over this country is about to be realized. Under the sponsorship of the American Federation of Art, she will start a tour in October which will last until June. She plans to exhibit her work in a number of States.

After spending several weeks in Cranbrook, Mich., studying under Carl Milles—the famed Swedish sculpturer—Marina returned completely enchanted with this new idea in art-teaching. The peace and beauty of the surroundings "just make one work" according to the artist. She is in hopes of returning to study with the white-haired artist, whose academy was pictured in a magazine some weeks ago.

Jane Culbertson Posed for Artist

Not long ago Marina completed a bust of pretty Jane Culbertson, daughter of former United States Ambassador to Chile and Mrs. William S. Culbertson. Jane, who is pretty and blond, has a serenity of expression that comes from within, said the artist. At present she is working on a head of Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of the Senator from Florida.

The artist's first chance to come to America was given her by the American Association of University Women when they awarded her the Latin-American Fellowship. She was graduated at the Academy of Fine Art, La Paz, Bolivia. Later she taught sculpture and artistic anatomy at the Academy of Fine Art and was also a teacher of Indo-American Art at the American Institute in La Paz, Bolivia.

Before her arrival in Washington she had 14 exhibitions in Bolivia, Peru, Chile, Argentina, Uruguay and Germany. Working almost entirely in terracotta and wood she has won any number of prizes. At present she has plans for a statue to commemorate the Unknown Soldier of Bolivia which have been accepted by the government. Some of her works have been acquired by the National Museum of Arts of Argentina, Uruguay and Germany.

Independence Day Observed By Latins Here

The countries of Central America, with the exception of Panama, celebrated quietly yesterday their independence days. Panama will celebrated two such days in November, one signalizing her independence from Spain, the other her freedom from Colombia.

The Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Najera received informally members of the staff, their wives and the few Mexicans in Washington at the Embassy last night. At midnight, the gathering listened to the broadcast of President Avila Camacho's Independence Day speech. Today, also, is set aside for fiesta in honor of the freedom gained.

The Minister of Nicaragua, Dr. Leon DeBayle, received Nicaraguan and Central American friends at the legation during the five-to-seven cocktail hours.

The Minister of Costa Rica and Senora de Fernandez held a day-long open house in honor of the occasion, assisted by their daughter, Senorita Leda Fernandez, who recently returned from a summer in Atlantic City.

The Minister of Guatemala did nothing openly to celebrate the day, in the absence of his wife and daughter who are spending the summer in their native country. The Minister of El Salvador and Senora de Castro spent the day quietly in deference to world affairs.

Chilean Envoy Plans Reception

The Chilean Ambassador and Senora de Michels will entertain at a reception on Thursday afternoon from 5 to 7 in celebration of the 131st anniversary of the independence of their country.

These birthday celebrations of embassies and legations whose anniversaries come in the early autumn always do much to start the social ball rolling. It is predicted that leaders from official, diplomatic and residential society will turn out full force for Thursday's party.

Mrs. Irene Caldwell Gives Party for Californians

By Patricia Grady

Pausing momentarily in their modern motorized Odyssey, Mrs. Margaret Gibson and her daughter, Barbara, were entertained during the tea hours yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Irene Caldwell at her Wesley Heights home.

Mrs. Gibson and her daughter will stay until Thursday with Mrs. Caldwell and will then motor back to their home in San Marino, Calif., via the Southern route. Mrs. Caldwell received informally in a two-toned lavendar redingote, while her pretty Miss Barbara Caldwell saw that Miss Gibson, who will start college in Pasadena this year, met the younger set.

Mrs. Caldwell officially had no one assisting her, but Mrs. I. D. Kirkland, jr., Mrs. Philip Eaton, Mrs. J. Clinton Tribby and Mrs. Lenning Sweet, of Fairfax, Va., all saw duty behind the tea and coffee urns.

Mrs. William E. Borah, wearing a pert white dotted veil on her black hat, was telling everyone they might not recognize her when she returns from her seven-month trip to the West Coast. "I'm going to Hollywood," she said, "and when I come back I may be remodeled."

Mrs. John Biggers was wearing a handsome gold eagle pin at the frothy lace neckline of her dark dress. It was presented as a medal to her husband by William Knudson for his large part in National defense when he was with OPM, and he in turn had had it made into a pin for his wife. Mrs. Biggers' daughter, Jane, came with her, but her betrothed daughter, Sherry, was in Toledo making plans for a mid-October wedding there. Mr. Biggers, who is now in London as American minister there, hopes to return for the nuptials.

Others attending the party included Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador, wearing gay flowers on her white hat; Mrs. William McCracken, who brought her mother, Mrs. Lewis; Mrs. Thad Brown; Mrs. Luther Johnson, who set off her pink-figured blue dress with a pink hat; Mrs. Henry Ralph; Mrs. Fred Richardson, who came from her farm in Fairfax County for the party; Mme. Prochnik; Mrs. Charles Daly, in a brown and white print, and Mrs. Albert Warner, who had piled her brown hair on the top of her head in a most fetching manner.

Also at the party were Mrs. Mark Foote, Mrs. James Wright, Mrs. Donald Hatch, in a picture hat of black felt; Mrs. Robert Dempsey; Miss Helen Barry, in a gay print frock; Miss Vola Adams and several dozen others.

Top First-Nighters Few Though Play Draws Full House

The fast moving production "Separate Rooms," which opened last evening at the National Theater, played to a full house and enthusiastic audience, though many of the more noted first-nighters were missing, probably because most of them had seen it during its lengthy Broadway run.

Following the tea she had given earlier in the day, Mrs. Irene Caldwell had taken her house guest, Mrs. Margaret Gibson, to the opening. Mrs. Caldwell, who had tossed a light wrap over her powder blue crepe dinner frock, wore an orchid corsage. Mrs. Gibson, in black, set off her frock with a gold leather girdle and gold accessories. Still others noted included Mr. and Mrs. Prew Savoy, Mrs. Lillian Cox Athey, Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Gensemer and many more.

Allan Dawson Goes To Bolivian Post

Allan Dawson has returned to La Paz, Bolivia, where he will serve as secretary of the American Legation, after a three-months stay in Washington with his mother, Mrs. Thomas Dawson, and his sister, Miss Lilita Dawson. En route to Bolivia, he stopped in Brazil to visit his grandmother, and from there went to Buenos Aires for a stay.

Miss Dawson, who has been at Schroon Lake, N. Y., for the past month, will return today to Washington. She stopped in New York en route back.

Eloise Davison Feted at Luncheon

Miss Grace Frysinger entertained at luncheon at the Shoreham Hotel yesterday when her guest of honor was Miss Eloise Davison, assistant director of the Office of Civilian Defense. Miss Davison, who is a member of the New York Herald Tribune staff and who has been loaned for this important work, has recently come to Washington and is making her home at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Among the guests at the luncheon were Judge Annabel Matthews, Miss Mary Anderson, Miss Katharine Lenroot, Dr. Louise Stanley, Miss Ruth Van Deman, Mrs. John Herrick, Miss Helen Atwater, Mrs. Elna Wharton, Miss Josephine Hemphill, Miss Helen Hostetter, Miss Kathryn McHale, and others prominent in women's national activities.

Lillian Tobias Engaged To Abner B. Blacker

Mrs. Dora Tobias, of 3103 Nineteenth Street, announces the engagement of her daughter, Lillian Sylvia, to Abner B. Blacker son of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Blacker, of 611 Rock Creek Church Road. Miss Tobias was formerly a resident of New Haven, Conn., and Mr. Blacker comes from South Carolina.

The wedding will take place late in the winter.

October 11 Chosen As Wedding Date By Janet Hartz

October 11, at 11 o'clock in the morning, has been selected by Miss Janet Hartz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barge Llewellyn Hartz as the time of her wedding to Walter Edward Gallagher. The ceremony will take place in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament and will be followed by a reception at the Columbia Country Club.

The matron of honor will be Mrs. Harry Duncan, sister of the bride, and the maid of honor will be Miss Lorraine Gibney, of Chicago. The bridesmaids will be Miss Lorraine Goode, Miss Patsy Kelsey, Miss Betty Anne Swagart and Miss Anne Swanson.

Maj. F. McKenzie Davison will entertain at luncheon today at the Army and Navy Country Club in honor of Miss Hartz. Thursday Miss Goode will entertain at a kitchen shower; on October 2 Mrs. Moran Drury will entertain at a luncheon and linen shower, and Mrs. Lorraine Hurney will give a cocktail party on October 4.

J. A. McKennas Will Live Here

Mr. and Mrs. James A. McKenna, who were married September 1 at St. Anthony's Shrine near Emmitsburg, Md., will be at home after October 1 at 3742 Twelfth Street.

The bride, who was formerly Miss Becky Rial, was given in marriage by her uncle, John Ringgold Gloniger, of Pittsburgh, Pa., the Rev. James A. Caulfield, a cousin, officiating. She wore a white faille robe de style, a Spanish lace mantilla with a tiara of gardenias, and carried a bouquet of lavender flowers.

Mrs. G. Edward Borst, the matron of honor and a sister of the bride, was gowned like the bride in gold, with a gold tiara holding a shoulder-length veil. She also carried a bouquet of lavender flowers. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Harold F. X. Schwartz and Miss Ledlie Rial, sisters of the bride, wore ensembles like that of the honor attendant. Their formal bouquets were of bronze gladioli.

John J. McKenna acted as best man for his brother and the ushers were G. Edward Borst, Harold F. X. Schwartz, Bernard Meehan, Thomas McKenna and Joseph McKenna, brothers of the bridegroom.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the bride's home, Clairvaux Manor.

A. Biddle Dukes Here for Weekend

Mr. and Mrs. A. Biddle Duke of New York City spent the weekend in Washington, making the Mayflower their headquarters. Mr. Duke has been stationed for several months at Camp Lee, Va., where he has the rank of sergeant and serves as instructor in Army personnel administration. He and his wife have taken a house in Richmond.

Mr. Duke is the son of Mrs. T. M. Robertson of New York and the nephew of Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, jr., United States Minister to the refugee governments established in England. His wife is the former Margaret Screven of Atlanta.

Showers Given For Jessie Prince

Miss Jessie Prince, whose engagement to Vincent Olpresti was recently announced, has been entertained recently at a number of showers and prenuptial parties. Among them was the dinner given Saturday evening for Miss Prince and her fiance by Miss Catherine McCarron.

Miss Prince is making plans for a November wedding at the Sacred Heart Church.

Harriet Salley Engaged to Ensign

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Elliott Salley, of Orangeburg, S. C., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Harriett Brunson Salley, to Ensign George Greene Slade. The wedding will take place in the fall.

Ensign Slade is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Slade, of Providence, R. I.

Miss Salley attended the Marjorie Webster School, and has made her home here for several years. Ensign Slade is a graduate of Brown University.

K. S. Wales And Jean Ausin Are Married

Covenant - First Presbyterian Church yesterday afternoon was the scene of the wedding of Jean Henderson Ausin and Kenneth S. Wales. The Rev. Dr. Albert J. McCartney, pastor of the church, officiated in the presence of members of the immediate families.

The bride's only attendant was her mother, Mrs. Jane Ray Allen, of Washington, D. C., and Raleigh, N. C. The bride is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John E. Day, of Raleigh. She attended Pineland College in North Carolina.

Mr. Wales is a graduate of Princeton and is a member of the Washington Stock Exchange, the Investment Bankers Association, and the Chevy Chase Club. He is secretary of the board of trustees of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church and a past president of the Bond Club of Washington and the Sons of the American Revolution.

Among guests at the wedding was Mrs. F. A. Wales, the bridegroom's 83-year-old mother, who came by airplane from Pasadena, Calif., to attend the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Wales will be at home after October 15 at 5 Quincy Street, Chevy Chase, Md.

Neel–Wilson Nuptial Set for October 11

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frederic Wilson have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Mary, and Samuel Ellison Neel on Saturday, October 11, at the Church of the Epiphany at 4 p. m.

The reception will take place at the Wilson home, 76 Kalorama Circle, immediately following the ceremony.

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Lamar M. Wise are here from Macon, Ga., and are stopping at the Martinique.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tobin

THE FARMINGTON Hunt Club Horse Show at Charlottesville, Va., will be the important Virginia sporting event of the week. The best horses of the Virginia circuit will be entered in the usual horse show classes of this annual show, which will take place Friday and Saturday. Horses from Middleburg, Warrenton, Upperville and other parts of the State will enter the competition.

This promises to be one of the gayest weekends of the season in Charlottesville, with house parties as well as drop-in gatherings planned. The entertainment committee has sent out invitations for a daily cocktail party on the grounds during the recess hour, and the committee will also entertain at a supper at the Farmington Hunt Club Friday evening. A hunt call is planned for the next night, with Mrs. Charles H. Merriman, jr., and Mrs. John T. McCavock making the arrangements. Mrs. Jack P. Jones and Rodger R. Rinehart are co-masters of the Farmington Hunt Club.

The Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Stabler Osburn have sent out invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Detta Beverley, to Rudolph Scott Copeland, 3d. The ceremony will take place in St. John's Episcopal Church, Tappahannock, Va., at 4:30 o'clock on September 27. Mr. Copeland is the son of Mrs. W. Scott Copeland, of Richmond, and the late Col. W. Scott Copeland, of Newport News.

Following the ceremony a small reception will be held at Blandfield, the Rappahannock River home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Robert Beverley.

Miss Nell Osburn will attend her sister as maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Mary Wells Moore, of Reedville, Va., and Miss Frances Robinson, of Gloucester, Va. Miss Katherine Addison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grafton Addison, of Richmond, will be the flower girl. Maj. Raymond B. Bottom, of Newport News, will serve as best man and the ushers will be Marcellus E. Wright, jr., William Beverley, of Richmond; Arthur P. Gray 3d, of West Point, Va., and Robert Beverley Osburn, of Gloucester, a brother of the bride.

HERBERT OSBURN will give his sister in marriage at a ceremony performed by the bride's father, assisted by the Rev. Frederick D. Goodwin, Bishop Coadjutor of the Diocese of Virginia and the Rev. William Pendleton, rector of St. John's Church.

The bride-elect's mother was formerly Miss Fannie Beverley, of Fauquier County, and her father, Herbert Osburn, grew up in Leesburg.

Miss Lelia Turner, of The Plains, will leave today for Wilmington, Del., to visit Miss Mary Turner Brown. Later in the month Miss Turner will enter National Park College in Washington. During the Christmas holidays she will be presented to Charleston, S. C., society at a dance to be given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turner, and her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Rene Ravenel, who will present their daughter, Miss Julia Ravenel, to society at the same time. Miss Ravenel has been visiting Miss Turner for several weeks this summer. They will both attend the St. Cecelia Ball in Charleston during the winter.

William Lipscomb Jamison left his home in Manassas yesterday to return to Dartmouth College. He will continue his study of medicine there after graduating last June.

Nell Henning Darling, of Middleburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nell Darling, left for Norfolk, Va., a few days ago to start his training in the Navy.

Lieut. Ravenburg Engaged to Wed Macon, Ga., Girl

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thorpe, of Macon, Ga., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Edith, to Lieut. Ralph R. Ravenburg, of Washington, D. C., and Panama. The wedding is planned for the early winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Ravenburg, parents of the prospective bridegroom, expect to have their son's fiancee as a guest this week. During her visit she will be entertained by Lieut. Ravenburg's sister, Mrs. Robert E. Doyle, jr.

Meeting Will Serve As Pattern for Others, Miss Davison Says; LaGuardia to Speak

By Lucia Giddens.

The mass meeting of the United Women's Organizations of the District October 14 may be a pattern for women's civilian defense movements in other parts of the country, Miss Eloise Davison, assistant director of the Office of Civilian Defense, told representatives of the organizations yesterday.

Plans were made at their session yesterday for promoting the mass meeting at which Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, director of the Office of Civilian Defense, will discuss methods of women's participation. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant director to Mayor LaGuardia, will preside at the meeting at 8:30 p. m. October 14 in the Departmental Auditorium, it was announced yesterday.

Mrs. Curtis Shears, president of the United Women's Organizations, called the session yesterday at the Sulgrave Club, with representatives of 35 organizations present. Twenty-nine of them were prepared to pledge definite cooperation in promotion of the mass meeting, while others were to bring the question to their boards within the next few days.

'Starter for More Concerted Activity'

"We have a great deal of confidence in the impetus that your meeting will give," Miss Davison said. "You're almost the first group to do it.

"We're counting greatly on what comes out of this meeting," she added, saying that it was expected to be a "starter for more concerted activity" in civilian defense in the District.

Miss Davison pointed out the importance of the civilian defense program's having the support of organized groups, from which it will reach out to unorganized groups.

The U. W. O. yesterday voted to make no plans beyond the mass meeting, but to concentrate efforts on its success, and then consider any other proposals as they arise.

Mrs. Loraine Leese Good, president of the Soroptimist Club, was elected treasurer of the group. Its first funds are coming from organizations which order printed mailing matter to publicize the mass meeting.

Committee Named By Mrs. Shears

Mrs. Shears has named the following executive committee for the U. W. O.: Mrs. Montgomery Blair, of the Junior League; Mrs. Eugene Callaghan, League of Women Voters; Mrs. Lawrence Martin, Twentieth Century Club; Mrs. Helen McCabe, American Legion Auxiliary; Marie McNair, Newspaper Women's Club; Mrs. Harry Kramer, Girl Scouts.

The executive committee will name an arrangements committee for the mass meeting.

Mrs. Shears said it was estimated that the organizations expressing interest in the U. W. O. represented some 40,000 women.

Mrs. Shears, who is president of the Woman's National Democratic Club, paid tribute yesterday to the cooperation and work which Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, head of the League of Republican Women and vice president of the U. W. O., had put into the plans for the mass meeting.

Suffells to Live Here After Tour

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Suffell, who were married Labor Day at St. Peter's Church by the Rev. E. J. Connelly, will make their home in Washington after a Northern wedding tour.

The bride, the former Miss Angela Simone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Simone, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a basque-bodiced dress of white satin fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and a long train. Her veil of illusion was held in place by a coronet of flowers and she carried white orchids in a prayer book.

Miss Mary Simone, a sister of the bride and her maid of honor, wore a full-skirted dress of blue faille with a matching face veil which fell from a headdress of natural flowers. She carried a nosegay of pink rose buds, white pompoms and lavender chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids, Miss Genevieve Sullivan and Mrs. John Kearful, a sister of the bridegroom, wore gowns fashioned like that of the honor attendant in evening rose faille.

Michael Simone, a brother of the bride, served as best man and the ushers were John Kearful, Andrew Welsh and Ralph Simone.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Admiral Club. The bride's mother had chosen a blue lace dress with which she wore navy accessories and an orchid corsage. The mother of the bridegroom pinned an orchid corsage on her black crepe frock.

The bride attended St. Cecilia's Academy and her husband was graduated from Gonzaga University.

Mrs. Ross Calls Meeting To Discuss Roll Call

Mrs. George A. Ross, president of the Washington Council of Church Women and chairman of the Protestant church women's unit in the 1941 District Red Cross roll call, yesterday called a meeting of women leaders from local churches to discuss roll call plans.

Mrs. W. G. Waldo, secretary for the roll call, outlined plans at the meeting held at the Federation of churches headquarters. About 40 women, presidents of the women's societies in the various churches, attended.

Leaders Plan Mass Meeting

Underwood & Underwood

Mrs. Curtis Shears (from left), Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, and Mrs. Raymond Clapper, officers of the United Women's Organizations of the District, took leading parts yesterday in the making of plans for the mass meeting October 14 at which Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, director of the Office of Civilian Defense, will speak. Mrs. Shears is president of the U. W. O.; Mrs. Gann, vice president, and Mrs. Clapper, recording secretary. They were photographed at the entrance of the Sulgrave Club, where representatives of women's organizations met

P.-T. A. Will Help to Serve Free WPA School Lunches

The District Congress of Parents and Teachers will cooperate in providing volunteers to assist in the serving of WPA free lunches in public schools, it was decided yesterday at a meeting of the executive committee.

Threat of curtailment hung over the lunch program due to the reduced number of WPA workers.

The District Parent-Teacher Association will assist with volunteers on an experimental basis until Thanksgiving, it was decided. The executive committee voted to ask the presidents of the parent-teacher associations in the schools where the free lunches are served to assume responsibility for the assistance, with the consent and cooperation of the principals of the schools.

Miss Sue Frick and Mrs. Edla Kendall, from the WPA kitchens, reported the allocation of 30 additional WPA workers to the project yesterday, relieving the situation considerably. They said also that in some of the schools in which lunches are now provided the serving might be discontinued and the children allocated to other schools to receive the lunches.

38 Volunteers Needed Each Day

However, a total of 35 to 38 volunteers each day will be needed, it was estimated. No more than two will be required at any center, it was believed.

The executive committee adopted a resolution asking the administrator of WPA to find "if possible" extra funds which could be diverted to this subject, so the need for volunteers would abate.

Mrs. P. C. Ellett, president of the District P.-T. A., emphasized at the meeting that "underfed, hungry children can not successfully compete with their contemporaries, because they are unhappy, and we don't want to see any unhappy children in our neighborhoods."

Mrs. Ellett Confers With Superintendent

Before the committee meeting at District P.-T. A. headquarters, Mrs. Ellett conferred with Robert L. Haycock, acting superintendent of schools. She reported that in his opinion the P.-T. A. could make a worthwhile contribution by assisting with volunteers, but he agreed that they should not have to do the menial work.

After the committee meeting, its members conferred with presidents of 17 local P.-T. A.'s, most of them from schools where the free lunches are served. They expressed interest in the report that the home economics class at Taylor School had assisted with the lunch serving last session and would continue to do it this year. The possibility of other schools trying a similar plan was hinted.

Discussion brought out the suggestion that the volunteer P.-T. A. members might be helpful in preserving good order during the serving of the lunches, which was not within the duties of the WPA workers.

Petworth Club Units to Meet

Several sections of the Petworth Woman's Club will hold meetings this week in advance of the club's opening luncheon October 2.

The luncheon at Petworth Methodist Church will be followed by a meeting at which the new president, Mrs. Frank J. MacMaugh, will preside.

The philanthropic section under the leadership of Mrs. J. W. Mee will meet today at 12:15 with Mrs. J. E. Cribbs, 4105 Illinois Avenue Northwest. Cohostesses are Mrs. Frank M. Stuart and Mrs. Cornelia Russell.

The home section, Mrs. Kathryn Noord, chairman, will hold its first meeting of the season Friday at 1 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Clarence G. Fisher, 4113 Illinois Avenue Northwest. Assisting Mrs. Fisher are Mrs. A. C. Fowle, Mrs. E. L. Palmer and Mrs. J. S. Rogers. Miss Etta L. Taggart, president of the Washingtonians, will speak on "Good Citizenship."

While the regular club meetings adjourned for the summer, the committees have been active.

Mrs. A. E. Printz and Mrs. R. K. Bailey with their committees have been busy completing the new year book, which is just off the press.

Mrs. Beulah Sehorn and Mrs. A. L. Chalker, club and community chairman for the Red Cross, announce that many garments were completed during the summer. This section meets every Thursday from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. in the assembly room of the Petworth Library Building.

Greensboro Alumnae Open Season Tonight

Mrs. A. T. Hocutt, recently elected president of the Washington Chapter, Greensboro College Alumnae Association, will preside over its first meeting of the fall season at 8 tonight at the home of Mrs. T. E. Thompson, 1901 M Street Northeast.

Mrs. Earline King will be chairman for the program, which will include the showing of the United States Secret Service film, "Know Your Money."

D. A. R. to Hear Dr. Gewehr

"Constitutional Crisis in 1789 and in 1941" will be discussed by Dr. W. M. Gewehr, director of the department of history, University of Maryland, at the annual observance of Constitution Day by the Daughters of the American Revolution tomorrow evening.

On the program at 8 at the Chapter House, 1732 Massachusetts Avenue, Wade H. Ellis, representing the Sons of the American Revolution; Col. F. Granville Munson, the Sons of the Revolution, and Mrs. Frank Heller, Children of the American Revolution, will bring greetings from their organizations.

Mrs. Jessie Scott Arnold, historian of the D. A. R., is in charge of the program, over which Mrs. Harry C. Oberholser, State regent, will preside.

The Navy Band Orchestra will give a concert from 8 to 8:30. The D. A. R. trio, Maxwell Galloway, Lillian Bricker and Frances Tucker, will sing, and tenor solos will be presented by Jesse Nussear. The Rev. Francis Yarnall will give the invocation and benediction.

'Back-to-School' Party Thursday At Jewish Center

Junior members of the Jewish Community Center and their friends are invited to an "End of Vacation" and "Back-to-School" party in the Cafritz Auditorium Thursday at 2:30 p. m.

A program has been arranged for the enjoyment of parents as well as children, it was announced by Ruth Green, director of activities of the center.

A magician will perform. Members of the children's dance department will stage a mock bull fight. Boys and girls of the Haobnim clubs will sing and dance, and the Boy Scouts have promised a surprise feature. A quiz program has been especially designed for the occasion. There will also be selections by the Junior Rhythm Band.

To this affair, the first of a series especially prepared for juniors, boys and girls under 16 are invited.

Mrs. Paddock to Talk In Radio Interview

Mrs. Hubert E. Paddock, regent of the Army and Navy Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and wife of Commander Paddock, U. S. N., will be interviewed on the "Women Who Achieve" program over WWDC at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow by J. Jeune Carter and Mrs. Edward R. Seal, originators of the program.

The Army and Navy Chapter, one of the largest D. A. R. chapters, has members scattered in many parts of the world, including Iceland.

Women Voters' Committee Heads Named

Mrs. Basil Manly has been appointed chairman of the legislation committee of the Voteless District of Columbia League of Women Voters, it was announced yesterday.

This committee will press for legislation which the League indorses, and will also keep the membership informed about the progress of legislation in which the league is interested.

Mrs. Eugene Callaghan, president of the league, has named Mrs. Harold Stone chairman of the department on government and its operation.

Other chairmanship appointments include Mrs. Harvey E. Becknell, foreign policy department; Mrs. Donald C. Blaisdell, finance committee; Mrs. R. F. Leonard, headquarters; Mrs. Rensis Likert, education department; Mrs. Rufus Miles, jr., editor of news letter; Mrs. F. A. Gutheim, assistant to the treasurer.

Mrs. Henry P. Chandler has been reappointed social welfare department chairman; Mrs. Harold Krogh, membership committee; Mrs. Edward Harding, college leagues committee.

In addition to Mrs. Callaghan, other officers of the league include Mrs. B. M. McKelway, first vice president; Mrs. Gerard D. Reilly, second vice president; Mrs. Edna Johnston, treasurer; Mrs. Blaine McCollum, recording secretary; Mrs. Isaacs, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Eugene Duffield, Miss Mary Anderson, Mrs. Louis Ottenberg and Miss Mary Windslow, directors on executive board.

Officials Named For Kenilworth

Mrs. Harvey Lynn, who will serve as president of the Kenilworth Ladies Guild for the coming year, has announced committee chairmen.

Mrs. J. W. Hinkel will head the ways and means committee, which includes Mrs. A. Petrie, Mrs. M. T. Hurlbut and Mrs. Thomas Gibson. Other committees are: relief and investigation, Mrs. Harry Kent, Mrs. Sam Green and Mrs. William Mortfeldt; sunshine, Mrs. Jessee Veihmeyer; blanket club, Mrs. J. Hatswell and Mrs. J. Baxter.

Delegates to the community council will be Mrs. Veihmeyer and Mrs. Lynn; with Mrs. Green and Mrs. George A. Lingelbach as alternates. Mrs. Lingelbach will be in charge of publicity.

The organization will hold its next meeting at 1 p. m. September 24 with Mrs. John E. Burroughs, 5101 Quarles Street Northeast, with Mrs. Vernon Hill assisting.

Officers of the club for the coming year include Mrs. Hinkel, first vice president; Mrs. Gibson, second vice president; Mrs. Hill, recording secretary; Mrs. H. F. Brown, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Burroughs, treasurer; Mrs. Carroll A. Saunders, financial secretary.

Pilot Club to Initiate Three Tonight

Three new members, Miss Nona Murray Lucke, Mrs. Georgena Havlena and Miss Ruth Emmer, will be initiated into the Pilot Club of Washington at its meeting tonight at the home of Effie Mae Hamner, recording secretary, at 1630 I Street Northwest.

Miss Helen Hoffman, governor of District 11 of Pilot International, will conduct the ceremony.

Mrs. Havlena is assistant manager of the Investment Building; Miss Lucke is with the Shaw-Walker Co. and Miss Emmer with the Potomac Electric Power Co.

Miss Virginia Moran, fashion copywriter for S. Kann Sons Co., will be principal speaker on the program, which begins at 5:45 p. m.

Miss Lois A. White, president of the local club, will preside.

O. E. S. to Have Party

The ways and means committee of the Washington Centennial Chapter, No. 26, Order of the Eastern Star, will sponsor a card party at 8 p. m. tomorrow in the club room, 4801 Connecticut Avenue Northwest.

Mrs. Dodic Will Speak On B. P. W. Broadcast

"How women are helping other women to be beautiful" will be discussed by Mrs. Isola Reid Dodic, inspector for the District of Columbia Board of Cosmetology, on the Business and Professional Women's Club's radio program over WINX at 2:45 p. m. tomorrow.

Mrs. Alfred Orr will interview Mrs. Dodic on the program, one of a series under the direction of Mrs. Miller Hickerson.

MRS. ROOSEVELT BUYS DEFENSE SAVING STAMPS from Donald M. Nelson (left), executive director of SPAB, and Maj. Benjamin H. Namm, chairman of the Treasury's retail advisory committee

First Lady and Models Are 'Retailers for Defense'

Twenty Powers models including the super-super Carolyn Cassidy, Cherry Byrd and Barbara Orr came to Washington yesterday to give pulchritude's push to the sale of defense bonds and stamps as Retailers for Defense Week opened.

The week was begun with Mrs. Roosevelt buying a stamp at the Mayflower Hotel at noon and with many speakers urging on the sale as a patriotic gesture and to keep inflation away. Behind counters sponsored by 14 commercial organizations in the hotel's grand ballroom, sat the 20 models, looking their best.

They were given a fattening luncheon at the hotel at 1 p. m., and later were made to pass in review down the grand ballroom's middle aisle. Then they introduced themselves from the stage, took to the counters a moment later, and the meeting fell off into economics.

The models came down "as a feature of the one-day clinic" put on by the retailers in opening their defense week. The clinic was on techniques of selling defense stamps and bonds.

At the Little Postoffice (right), set up in the Mayflower lobby, Corrinni MacLennan and Cherry Byrd, two of the Powers models, check up on the sale of defense stamps.

Southeast Schools Open For Early Registration

A step toward entry into the District public schools system was taken yesterday by many children who recently moved here as six schools opened their doors for early registration in the Northeast and Southeast sections.

The Board of Education reported that no figures on the first day of registration were available.

Whether schools in Benning and Anacostia—most rapidly growing population centers in the influx of defense workers—will have to operate on double shifts due to a greater number of school children, will be determined when the registration is completed, board officials said.

Schools at which registration began yesterday include Benning, Benning Road, Foote Street and Minnesota Avenue Northeast; Orr, Twenty-second and Prout Streets Southeast; Stanton, Hamilton and Good Hope Roads Southeast; Congress Heights, Nichols Avenue between Fifth Street and Congress Road Southeast; Ketcham, Fifteenth and U Streets Southeast; Garfield, Alabama Avenue and Twenty-fifth Street Southeast. Registration at other schools will begin Friday.

Acting Superintendent of Schools Robert L. Haycock yesterday advised parents to register their children early, thus avoiding the rush and confusion probable on the opening day next Monday.

Registration in the six schools named will continue through Thursday from 9 a. m. to noon. On Friday registration may be made at the six schools between 4 and 5 p. m.

At right, Rudy Auskchun, 5, of 2102 T Street Southeast, is examined by Principal Schaeffer. "What, no vaccination, Rudy? You'll have to get that done before the bell rings Monday."

AIR VIEW SHOWS MARYLAND UNIVERSITY'S NEW CAMPUS QUADRANGLE

By Allan C. Fisher
Post Staff Writer

Quiet summer days are ended for the rolling, 600-acre campus of the University of Maryland at College Park. Officials are preparing to welcome this week the largest freshman class in the 134-year history of the school.

Twelve hundred freshmen, an increase of 70 over last year, are expected to register tomorrow and Thursday. Classes begin Monday, September 22.

New students and returning upperclassmen will be impressed with the results of a $2,000,000 campus relocation project, which was begun three years ago and will be completed in time for freshman registration. During the summer months a six-acre tract of land in the center of the campus has been landscaped to form a quadrangle. The terraced quadrangle faces the university's new Administration Building, built and equipped last year at a cost of $235,000.

The Administration Building is the key unit in an eight-building construction program, costing $1,308,000, which was completed this year. Construction will start soon on two new buildings, a $200,000 armory and an NYA machine shop building, to cost $100,000 when equipped.

Six colleges and a graduate school are located at the College Park branch of the university. The colleges are Agriculture, Arts and Sciences, Commerce, Education, Engineering and Home Economics. Last year approximately 5500 students attended classes at College Park.

The schools of Dentistry, Law, Medicine, Nursing and Pharmacy comprise the Baltimore branch of the university, where 1745 students were registered last year. Total holdings of the university, including the Princess Ann College for Negroes in Somerset County, exceed twelve million dollars.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president and bread winner extraordinary for the university, is looking forward to the best year in the university's history.

Seventeen defense courses ranging from aircraft design to radio engineering will be offered by the College of Engineering under Dean S. S. Steinberg.

Every college of the university has added a number of new courses. They rang from a course in Italian ar which will require weekly trips to the National Ar Gallery to a history of the British Empire, brought up to date.

Students registering for practical arts may major in interior design or costume design and receive BS degrees upon graduation.

Tuition at Maryland University is $145 a year for residents of Maryland; $195 for residents of the District, and $270 for students from other States.

House Receives Bill to Reduce Pay Roll Taxes

Approval of a bill to reduce the Federal unemployment compensation tax from 3 to 2 per cent, introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Celler (Democrat), of New York, would save District employers one million dollars a year, District officials estimated.

The present District unemployment tax is 2.7 per cent, and although a bill has been introduced to permit reduction of the levy to 2 per cent, the Celler bill would apply to the District as well as to the country at large.

John A. Marshall, executive director of the District Unemployment Compensation Board, stated yesterday that the District has accumulated a compensation surplus of 13 million dolars. At the present tax rate, he said, the District is collecting five million dollars a year, while it pays out about two millions in benefits.

Representative McGehee (Democrat), of Mississippi, has introduced a bill to reduce the District tax on a sliding scale in relation to the size of the surplus and the total of benefits paid in any year.

Celler, in a statement, declared that the Federal tax in the last fiscal year returned $3,621,358,523, while compensation payments were $1,546,975,941.

"Written in astronomical figures, the record shows more clearly than words that the present pay roll tax is far too high," he declared. "Under this showing, it seems to me, there is no justification whatever for continuing to pile up unneeded billions in Treasury vaults."

Charts to Aid Seamen Being Put In U. S. Lifeboats

The Navy announced yesterday that all lifeboats on United States Maritime Commission vessels are being equipped with sets of charts to aid seamen to navigate to shore in case their ship is torpedoed.

In a formal statement, the Navy Department declared that many mariners whose ships have been sunk under them during the war "owes their lives" to data gathered nearly a century ago by Lieut. Matthew Fontaine Maury, U. S. N., founder of the Navy Hydrographic Office, and to the present day charts based thereon.

"The success of these simple charts," the Navy added, "coupled with the fact that recent attacks upon American merchantmen have brought a little closer to this country the problems of survivors of such sinkings, has moved the Hydrographic Office to make these charts available in sufficient quantities to enable all vessels to outfit their lifeboats with copies."

Lavina Murray Is Dead at 74

Mrs. Lavina S. Murray, 74, 1860 California Avenue Northwest, died yesterday at Freedmen's Hospital after an illness of two weeks.

Mrs. Murray, who had lived in Washington for the last 70 years, leaves a son, James Seeney, an adopted daughter, Mrs. Sadie Davis, and a grandson, James Seeney, jr.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 1 p. m. at Malvan and Schey's Funeral Home, 424 R Street Northwest. Burial will be in Harmony Cemetery.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

COSTLY BLAZE—Ten carloads of crude oil, vitally needed on the Atlantic coast, went up in billowing smoke and flames yesterday when a tank-car train was derailed at Columbus, Ohio. Firemen were powerless against the spectacular fire, fed by nearly 100,000 gallons of oil. Pennsylvania Railroad, transporting the train from Southwestern oil fields to Philadelphia, estimated the damage at "thousands of dollars"

No Nonessential Spending, Citizens Ask

meant postponement of long-range planning for the future, and added:

"The inevitable curtailment of many lines of business and the consequent decrease in employment opportunities which must follow the termination of the defense program, recommends a policy of planning to provide employment through capital improvements at that time."

In presenting the trade group's position on major items not vitally necessary to either defense or the community, Smith said it "does not seem to be good business" for Washington to compete for labor and materials at rising costs.

"Neither," he declared, "does it seem that we would be, by so doing, properly cooperating with the dedoubt that capital improvements fense program, for these can be no doubt that capital improvements entered into by our city government are in direct competition with defense requirements."

Smith also said the Trade Board felt that projects necessary to defense should be paid for by the Federal and not the municipal government.

The Board of Trade sentiments were echoed in nearly every particular by the majority of other group spokesmen.

Water Rate Rise Protested

The Federation of Citizens Associations, through Harry Wender, its first vice president, lodged vigorous protests against the proposed increase in water rates to small consumers as a medium of raising money for expanding supply facilities.

Wender said his group was "thoroughly opposed to the alarming proposal," and because the expansion is necessitated by defense activities here he said the small consumer should not be "saddled" with the extra cost.

Both Wender and A. J. Driscoll, president of the Mid-City Citizens Association, suggested that the Federal Government, which now receives its water free, should be forced to share expenses of the expansion project.

Both spokesmen also contended that the six-million-dollar Federal share toward District expenses should be increased and Federal money should pay for all actual defense needs.

The Federation also indorsed the following projects:

Extension of parking meters; reopening of the highway testing laboratory; at least 100 additional policemen; funds for the development of recreational properties; funds for rodent control; improvements in the methods of handling juvenile delinquents; funds for incendiary sabotage protection and funds for a police school to permit marksmanship training for all officers at municipal expense.

Rufus Lusk, president of the Washington Taxpayers Association, was one of the first to propose cuts in the new budget. He said many District departments could operate on much less money than at present. He also attacked functions of the Board of Public Welfare and urged the Commissioners to follow through on plans to curtail the agency's powers.

Lusk then dwelled on the so-called low morale of the Police Department and suggested that an outside expert "go over the force with a fine-tooth comb."

Speaking of the proposal to increase direct relief funds by $600,000, he said:

"The only excuse for raising this amount is that the defense program will throw people out of work. This is not true in Washington. Employment here has never been at the peak it is today."

In closing, Lusk advocated that street lighting expenses be taken from the gasoline tax revenues instead of from the general fund.

Requests for 30 additional police motorcycle officers and an increased personnel at the Department of Vehicles and Traffic came from George Keneipp, manager of the Keystone Automobile Club. Demands for a larger staff at the Traffic Department, especially in the permit sections, also were made by Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the local club of the American Automobile Association.

Cuts Are Contemplated

In the face of tentative proposals by the Commissioners to cut personnel of the police accident prevention unit, both Keneipp and Cleveland urged that at least 12 more men and two scout cars be added to the group.

Indorsement of the proposed new police precinct at Forty-second Street and Benning Road Northeast was presented by E. F. Harris, president of the Federation of Civic Associations. He also asked for a school site at Fifteenth and Hamline Streets Northeast and development of a 6-acre tract in Kenilworth for recreational purposes.

An increase to "not less" than $15,000 from the current estimate of $7500 for traffic education work was recommended by Julian Brylawski of the Traffic Advisory Council.

He described work done last year in "educating" Washingtonians in traffic safety and appealed for continuation of the program on even a larger scale.

Present funds granted the Health Department were described by Miss Eleanor Fowler, of the Washington Assembly of C. I. O. auxiliaries, as a "blot" on the community. She said the department should have "twice" the amount of money it gets and predicted a "health crisis" here unless "something is done."

Sidney Katz, of the Maryland and District Industrial Union Council, was the only witness to agree that Washington "could stand" the estimated 65-million-dollar budget estimate.

He suggested the estimates be reviewed to determine priorities and proposed further that a citizen committee to make recommendations be appointed by the Commissioners.

A flat sum of $88,000 was suggested by Henry Rhine, of the United Federal Workers, to increase the District by 10 cents an hour. He the wages of per diem employes of said his figure was based on an estimated 3300 "permanent" per diem workers.

Col. Charles I. Stengle, representing the American Federation of Government Employes, charged the public school custodial workers—janitors, engineers, cleaners, etc.—are "vastly overworked," and proposed a "flying squadron" of auxiliary employes who could fill in when regular employes become sick or are forced to take leave.

He said there are some 75 eight-room school buildings in the city which are taken care of by one custodian, who must act as janitor, steam engineer and general handyman for teachers. Some of these, he said, work 72 hours a week.

Among others who testified at yesterday's hearings were:

Ernest Henry, of the Petworth Citizens Association; Marvin M. McLean, Brookland Citizens Association; E. J. Read, Southeast Council of Citizens Associations; Dr. E. E. Richardson, Congress Heights Progressive Citizens Association.

William P. Thomas, jr., National Gateway Citizens Association; S. Jay McCathran, jr., D. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers; Z. F. Ramsaur, Northeast Boundary Citizens Association; J. Louis Gelbman, Congress Heights Citizens Association; Bernard T. Dodder, Burroughs Citizens Association.

Henry Austin, Bradbury Heights Citizens Association; Marvin M. McHarry V. Porter, Southwest Citizens' Association; Harold H. Lund, District of Columbia Tuberculosis Association; Odetta O'Hara, Association for the Education of Handicapped, Shut-in Children; A. D. Calvert, Lincoln Park Citizens' Association.

Arthur Sundlun, Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association; Daniel B. Lloyd, Manor Park Citizens' Association; B. G. Ladd, Southeast Citizens' Association; Mrs. H. P. Chandler, District of Columbia League of Women Voters; S. A. Wood, Columbia Heights Citizens' Forum, and Mrs. William A. Walters, Council of Social Agencies.

Fidler Tells Of Film 'Bribe'

insisted vainly that the hearings be ended for lack of evidence.

Fidler's testimony was given after Chairman Clark (Democrat), Idaho, had placed in the record an exchange of letters between Maurice Saffle, branch manager for Loew's, Inc., at Seattle, Wash., and Fulton Cook, St. Mary's, Idaho, theater owner, over Cook's refusal to exhibit "The Land of Liberty." Cook described the picture as a propaganda film.

Saffle wrote Cook that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, controlled by Loew's, was distributing the picrequest of the United States Govture at its own expense "at the ernment." He said all rentals on the picture were to be turned over to the Government, adding:

"In fact, they (the Government) are so interested in the playing of the subject that we have been asked to wire immediately the names of those exhibitors who eliminate it."

Cook replied that he thought "propaganda pictures are distasteful to the public," adding that it was "of little interest to me what you or the United States Government may feel about what I show in my theater."

Fidler testified that he had been offered " a considerable sum of money" in "a roundabout way" if he would praise the film, "The Prisoner of Zenda."

He said the offer was made through Russell Birdwell, an advertising executive for David O. Selznick. After he had rejected it, he said, he gave a favorable view to the picture because he thought it good entertainment.

When Senator McFarland asked if he looked upon this as a "bribe," Fidler replied that he supposed that was true. He said, however, that he felt there was nothing illegal about the proposal.

Lastr Birdwell telegraphed Chairman Clark denying Fidler's charges and demanding the right to appear before the committee. Clark said Birdwell would be permitted to testify later.

Fidler said that attempts to suppress his newspaper column culminated recently in a call made on Norman Chandler, managing editor of the Los Angeles Times, by a group of movie producers. He said Louis B. Mayer, Harry Warner, Frank Y. Freeman, Harry Brand, Howard Strickler and Raymond Griffith were in this group.

The witness said that when Chandler refused to eliminate the Fidler column from the Times, many of the movie companies cut their advertising in the paper to a minimum.

He said that his criticism of "Conquest," starring Greta Garbo and Charles Boyer, had caused Louis B. Mayer of M-G-M, to protest to the National Broadcasting Co.

Don Gilman, an N. B. C. vice president, then wrote a letter to New York saying that Fidler's reviews should be held off the air for 30 days after a picture was released, Fidler testified.

He said that the film studios, N. B. C. and Columbia Broadcasting System then got together to rule that all "A" pictures would have to have favorable reviews and "B" pictures receive some measure of approval.

A statement earlier in the day by Chairman Clark that "75 per cent" of newspaper columnists appeared to be engaged in attempts to "smear" the committee's inquiry, brought a comment from Willkie that "that makes Dorothy Thompson and Gen. Hugh Johnson fellow conspirators."

FASTEETH, an improved powder to be sprinkled on upper or lower plates, holds false teeth more firmly in place. Do not slide, slip or rock. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. FASTEETH is alkaline (non-acid). Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

NEW FRUITY LAXATIVE

Relieves Constipation Without Chemical Drugs

An excellent new laxative called TAM acts entirely through sun-ripened leaves and fruits. It tastes like a fig and acts like a charm. TAM indirectly helps to clear away headaches, bad breath, sallow skin, tiredness, gas and other conditions which frequently accompany constipation.

When you realize that so many headaches today depend on chemical drugs, you can see why we are so enthusiastic about pleasant, fruity TAM. Buy it and try it. Large 15 oz. jar $1. 6 oz. jar.... 49¢

Washington Blitzed by Room Hunters!

Invading Army of New Workers Needs Quarters at Once

THERE'S a marvelous chance for you to make extra money today! Uncle Sam is calling more government workers here daily—to the tune of 4,000 per month! Their first need on arriving in this city is a place to live. As a result, the demand for rooms will become increasingly acute week after week. During the next few months, it's predicted, hundreds of new vacancies must be provided. If you have an unoccupied room or two, this is a grand time to obtain suitable tenants!

Merely follow this simple rule to locate roomers: Advertise in the Washington Post's Want Ad columns right away. And before you know it, prospects will start looking at the vacancies. Post ads cost little — and they pay for themselves many times over. Just call NAtional 4200 and ask for an ad taker.

Takoma Park Section Opens Roll Call Drive

The Takoma Park branch of the District Red Cross began its roll call last night with a declaration by Roll Call Chairman Edgar Morris that "in this great task eachc one of us must bear his burden."

More than 150 persons attended the meeting held in the Takoma Park Elementary School, Dahlia Street and Piney Branch Road.

Morris urged the cooperation of the Takoma Park area in the total District goal of 200,000 members.

David Jaques, of the foreign service division of the national Red Cross, described the work of the American organization in England. He stated that the British people are particularly grateful for the clothing and bandages the organization has sent.

Others who spoke briefly included Commissioner Guy Mason, Otto Lund, manager of the District Chapter of the Red Cross; Mrs. Irene Waldo, roll call secretary for the District; Mrs. Anna F. Lingle, chairman of the Takoma Park branch; Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox and Brig. Gen. Fred Osborne. Music was furnished by the United States Navy Band Orchestra.

Cooperating in the roll call drive in the area are the Takoma Park (D. C.) Citizens Association, the Takoma Park Chamber of Commerce, the Maryland-D. C. Citizens Association, the Takoma Park Women's Club and the Parent-Teacher Association of the Takoma Park Elementary Schools.

Mrs. Mansfield's Funeral Today at Daughter's Home

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Mansfield, 87, a resident of Washington since 1933, will be at 3 p. m. today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Henry E. McGhee, 1352 Locust Road Northwest. Interment will be in Glasgow, Ky.

Mrs. Mansfield died at her daughter's home Sunday. She was a native of Scott County, Va., and passed most of her life in Glasgow, Ky., where her husband, the late Frank Mansfield, was a farmer.

Surviving, besides Mrs. McGhee, are two daughter, Miss Myrtle C. Mansfield and Mrs. Vincent M. Przygocky, both of Washington; and five sons, Edward, St. Joseph, Mo., Taylor, Clovis, Calif.; Walter E., Los Angeles, Calif., and Mack and Clarence, Glasgow.

Funeral Tomorrow For W. F. Reardon

Funeral services for William F. Reardon, 60, of 2217 Nichols Avenue Southeast, will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. at the Thomas F. Murray funeral home, 2007 Nichols Avenue Southeast. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mr. Reardon died at work of a heart attack Sunday in Union Station. He had been employed in the baggage department there for more than 25 years.

He leaves his wife, Lillian J. Reardon, and one daughter, Rose Anna Reardon, both of 2217 Nichols Avenue Southeast; his mother, Mrs. Thomas E. Reardon, of 2205 Nichols Avenue Southeast, and one sister, Mrs. Charles W. McCullum, of 1312 Holly Street Northwest.

Hollywood Writer, a Parolee, Held in Murder, Jokes in Jail

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Sept. 15.—Ernest G. Booth, handsome Hollywood film writer, laughed and joked with jail attendants today as he issued a written statement denying he bludgeoned to death Mrs. Florence Stricker, 42-year-old heiress.

"Murder is stupid," read Booth's statement. "Obviously, if I had any connection with this crime I would have prepared an alibi. My own innocence is my answer to any accusation."

Booth, 43, was held on suspicion of murder. Police said Mrs. Stricker, wife of a Los Angeles physician, Dr. George H. Stricker, was killed by blows from a hammer. Her skull was crushed, her bedroom ransacked and three diamond rings and a diamond pin were missing. Her body was found by Dr. Stricker late Saturday.

Booth began writing while he was a Folsom Prison convict. While serving time he wrote "Ladies of the Mob," "We Rob a Bank," "Stealing Through Life," and others. Clara Bow starred in the movie, "Ladies of the Mob."

Mrs. Valverda Booth, the writer's wife, was held in jail also on a technical charge of burglary. Officers said this was to prevent her from returning to the Booth home until they completed their investigation there.

The slain heiress was the daughter of George Frey, once mayor of Findlay, Ohio. Her fortune was estimated variously at from $200,000 to two million. Her father bequeathed her large real estate holdings in Ohio and California.

Police said they found in Booth's home two loaded pistols. They said that regardless of how he fares in the murder investigation he would be prosecuted under a law prohibiting former convicts from owning firearms. Booth denied owning the guns.

Booth was sentenced in 1924 to serve 25 years for an Alameda, Calif., bank robbery but was paroled in 1937.

Officers took Booth and five other men to the Stricker home. Watching in the house next door was Mrs. C. P. Garman, who told police of seeing a man hurrying into the home Saturday morning.

Deputy District Attorney Vernon L. Ferguson said she pointed to Booth and declared:

"I believe that man most closely resembles the man I saw, but I can't be certain."

F. T. King Dies; Retired Merchant In Alexandria

Frank T. King, 74, retired Alexandria merchant and prominent churchman, died early yesterday at his residence, 212 South St. Asaph Street, following a long illness.

His funeral will be today at 2 p. m. from Grace Episcopal Church, with the rector, the Rev. Robert C. Masterton, officiating. Interment will be in the family plot in Presbyterian Cemetery.

Mr. King was president of the former Charles King & Son Co., wholesale concern, one of the largest warehouse firms in the Northern Virginia area, which went out of business about six months ago. The business was founded by his father, the late Maj. Charles King, an officer in the Confederate Army.

He was active as a member of Grace Church, and at the time of his death was senior warden, a position which also had been held by his father. He also was affiliated with the Alexandria Masonic bodies.

He is survived by three sons, Capt. Charles W. King, of the Army Air Corps; Arthur M. King, of Alexandria; Maj. Stuart W. King, of the Marine Corps; a daughter, Mrs. William B. Bailey, of Portsmouth; one brother, Marshall L. King, of Alexandria, and three sisters, Mrs. Charles W. Hulfish, Charlottesville; Mrs. Elwin Schneider, of Washington, and Miss Laura V. King, of Alexandria.

Kelley Orders New Jaywalking Drive

held blameless, five children met their death because they played in the streets and two of the youths had attempted to cross the street other than at a crosswalk. Where the drivers were charged one of the cases involved a child who was crossing in a crosswalk and the other child walked from between a line of cars but the driver was driving at an excessive speed.

"The conclusion to be derived must be that eight of these deaths could have been averted if the rules of safety had been followed," Van Duzer stated.

173 Are Injured

In addition to the fatalities, Van Duzer said, there were 173 children of school age injured as a result of their own carelessness. All of these children were known to be breaking some safety rule, he said. A rough analysis of the facts, he states, shows that six of the children injured were hitching rides on vehicles, 11 were coasting and 156 were playing in the street.

Van Duzer concludes:

"All of these injuries could have been prevented if the drivers, as well as the children, had been obeying common sense rules of safety. If the children themselves will not obey them or cannot understand them, it is the responsibility of parents and teachers to instruct the children on safety rules and to urge them to use the streets with the utmost caution. They should be taught to cross at crossings and never play in the street or to cross between parked cars."

Inspector Arthur E. Miller, in charge of traffic, revealed yesterday he had been visiting police precincts at the rate of two a day to lecture patrolmen on proper enforcement of safety regulations. Maj. Kelly said he would discuss plans for an educational program today with school authorities and Washington I. Cleveland, director of the local division of the American Automobile Association. They will meet at 10:30 a. m.

Clara Henderson's Funeral to Be Held Tomorrow

Funeral services for Clara Mannakee Henderson, 84, who died yesterday at her home, 5619 Colorado Avenue Northwest, will be held tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. from the Hines Funeral Home, Fourteenth and Harvard Streets Northwest. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

She was born in Brookville, Md., and moved to Washington over 60 years ago. Her husband, John Henderson, is vice president of the Washington Permanent Building Association.

Mrs. Henderson was an active member in the National Christian Church for more than 50 years and took a keen interest in the Ladies' Circle of that church.

She leaves her husband, John Henderson, and one sister, Elizabeth Starrow, both of 5619 Colorado Avenue Northwest.

8 German Ships Sunk, Russians Say

Estonian mainland.

Red guerrilla activity, it was declared, was becoming so much more effective that skeleton Nazi forces occupying 52 communities had been annihilated and several German expeditions sent to punish the raiders had been forced to return to base with great losses, leaving the guerrillas in control.

Elders Replace Nazis

German garrisons withdrawn for forced marches to the front, it was added, were in many cases "replaced by village elders recruited from among former Kulaks, White guards and criminals. No sooner had the German garrison left the district centers and neighboring villages than guerrillas began to eradicate the Fascist appointees. Some of them fled; many were shot."

This, and official claims that German artillery was not the master of every battlefield, formed the principal picture offered during the day by Russian sources.

The available information was to the effect that the Soviet army of the northwest still was successfully defending Leningrad fortifications.

[Finnish correspondents reported great fires have been set inside Leningrad by a steady German artillery pounding which is creating deadly havoc in parks and streets crowded with refugees from outside the city.

["There are many fires and the conflagration is spreading. The whole sky is already ablaze," one wrote.]

Don Basin Menaced

As to the south, where Sunday the Soviet command acknowledged the fall of the railway junction of Kremenchung, 175 miles below Kiev, there was little news.

[An authoritative quarter in London declared that the Russian evacuation of Kremenchung and a developing German thrust into the Perekop area to the south apparently had laid open the river Don, with its great industrial basin, to a German thrust which would meet no natural obstacles of consequence.

[Perekop lies 50 miles southeast of the lower Dnieper River on the narrow land neck connecting the Russian Crimea with the mainland.]

All-Time-High in Determination

In the roll call that opens here September 22 the Red Cross needs volunteers with determination, an official declared yesterday—determination like a certain victim of the Mississippi River flood. A man's hat was seen floating back and forth on the rampaging waters. "That's Joe," a native explained calmly. "He said come hell or high water, he was going to cut the grass today."

Excuse Is Good, Fine Better

A man brought before Police Judge George Neilson yesterday on a charge of speeding last Thursday night gave, perhaps, the best of all possible excuses. "I was in a hurry, your honor," he explained, to get to my radio and hear President Roosevelt."

But the judge, if impressed, didn't waiver. Result: A $20 fine.

Shake-ups Loom In OPM Divisions

Shakeups appear imminent in OPM's Division of Contract Distribution and in the Priorities Division. Administrative experts are going over each job and its duties in both divisions. The statement is freely made that no one will hold a job in either division who "isn't producing." The contract division now has a small staff but it's expected to be built up to around 700 employes under its new chief, Floyd Odlum. On the other hand, Donald Nelson, the new priorities boss, is considering a plan to reduce his staff, perhaps by 300 employes. Director General William Knudsen is counted among the officials who believe priorities can do a better job if its staff of 800 is reduced.

Sherman Minton, the former Democratic Senator, who recently was appointed to a Federal judgeship in Indiana, is reported to be interested in the job of solicitor general . . . Ed Prichard, who is often described as the "future governor of Kentucky," has quit the Justice Department to join the OEM legal staff . . . A quiet investigation is being made of five OEM bigwigs to determine which of them tipped off Time Magazine on confidential lend-lease figures.

Draft board clerks, and there are thousands, will be brought under Civil Service by the Ramspeck Act on January 1. Selective Service recommended that the clerks be brought under, and Justice Department decided it was legal, so Civil Service Commission will do the job . . . Junior calculating machine test will be given September 29 . . . Douglas Miller, author of "You Can't Do Business With Hitler," went to work yesterday for Col. William Donovan . . . C. I. O. unions are planning another mass meeting to demand that Labor Secretary Perkins reinstate Helen Miller, who was fired . . . Paul E. Banning, formerly assistant commissioner of Treasury's Bureau of Accounts, has been appointed special assistant to the Public Printer. An old-line Government employe who has held good jobs in half a dozen agencies, Banning will help coordinate productive and administrative work at GPO.

Review Members Listed

Civil Service Commission yesterday announced membership of several boards of review. The Agriculture board is composed of Michael Levine, chairman, and Peter Bilkert, alternate. The department member is Dr. W. W. Stockberger and Dillon Myer is his alternate. Howard Edson is the employe member and his alternate is Daniel R. Stansbury. The commission appointed Thomas A. Flynn, jr., chairman of the boards for Federal Trade, GPO, ICC and Railroad Retirement. Otis Johnson is the department member at Federal Trade. Robert B. Dawkins is the employe member and his alternate is Floyd O. Collins.

At GPO, the department member and alternate are Joseph Aronoff and Alton Tisdel and John Clements and Carper Buckley are the employe member and alternate. Edward Cox and John Ragan are the department member and alternate at ICC. The employe member and alternate are C. P. Morris and Henry Barringer. Railroad Retirement has chosen Walter Maischeck and Harry Herwits as the agency member and alternate and John Lane and Pat Reilly for employe member and alternate.

Milton Hall was named chairman of the Tariff Commission board of review. His alternate is Peter Bilkert. Edwin Martin and Mark Albertson are the department members and the employe members are William Dedicott and Daniel Alexander.

Herbert Wechsler, Columbia law professor, has been appointed executive secretary of the Board of Legal Examiners that will examine applicants for Federal legal jobs. The board announced that it would announce its first test within a few months for jobs that will pay from $1800 to $3200. Aptitude tests will be given by the board. These tests are to be designed to test capacity rather than specific legal knowledge. Oral tests also will be given. The first test will be open to senior students and practicing attorneys.

Parks Plan Play Centers With Fund

30 Recreational Projects and Start On Development Proposed by Root

Favorable action of the National Capital Parks' one million dollar item in the 1943 District budget would mark a step toward the development of 30 major recreation centers and playgrounds and completion of 156 recreational units in the Capital's ultimate recreation system, Superintendent of National Capital Parks Irving C. Root said yesterday.

The parks office asks one million dollars in the 1943 budget to begin work on the first 30 units, and proposed that legislation be sponsored to make the sum of 18 million dollars available to expedite completion of the 156 units.

Root said that under the proposal the 18 million dollar amount would be advanced by the Federal Government, to be amortized without interest by the District over a period of 30 or 40 years, "to enable District residents to enjoy the benefits of a modern recreation system without the necessity of greatly increasing the tax burden."

Includes System

The Park Superintendent emphasized that the areas proposed for development under the plan were not confined to lands within the National Capital Parks system, but included all lands within the proposed District Recreation System. This, he said, is in accordance with the program developed by the Committee for the Coordination of the President's Recreation Committee and approved by the Board of Education, the Community Center and Playground Department and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The budget item was submitted by the Parks Office because all agencies agreed it is the best equipped to plan, develop and maintain the areas, Superintendent Root stated.

Work proposed for the first 30 units would include grading and surfacing of field-game areas, construction of tennis courts and other court games, baseball and softball diamonds, football and soccer fields, erection of fences and backstops and the provision of lights, water and sanitary facilities.

Construction of more expensive facilities, such as swimming pools and field houses, would be delayed until funds were available for the development of the entire recreational system, Root said. He believes it could be completed within a ten-year period if the proposed legislation making the full 18 million dollar appropriation available were enacted.

Has Lagged Behind

The District's recreational system has lagged far behind programs for the improvement and expansion of other municipal facilities in Washington, Root charged. "No appreciable funds" have been appropriated for recreational facilities in the District during the last ten years although the population has increased 33 per cent, he pointed out.

He listed the first 30 units proposed for development in the following areas:

"Major recreation centers"—Anacostia Park, Banneker Recreation Center, East Potomac Park, Langston, Brightwood, McKinley-Eckington, Takoma, Southwest, Randle, Columbia Heights, Francis, Fort Chaplain, Hillcrest, Trinidad, Southeast, Turkey Thicket and Recreation Center.

"Minor units"—Dunbar, Rosedale, Mid-City, Rose Park, Lincoln, Sherwood, Hoover, Raymond, Virginia Avenue, Georgetown, Ely Place, Fort Dupont Park, Congress Heights and Phoebe Hearst Playgrounds.

Girl, Born Under Sign of 'V,' Of Course, Is Named Victoria

"LET'S CALL HER VICTORIA," said Mrs. Brown

Victoria Jeanne Brown, entered this world early yesterday with the sign of victory written all over her face in general and on her forehead in particular.

The Brown family was expecting and Sunday night at 10:30 p. m. Mrs. Mildred Brown told her husband, Horace Brown, that they had better get going. Off they went in a taxi to George Washington Hospital.

The authorities at George Washington said they were sorry that they just did not have a single bed vacant, but that Emergency Hospital . . . the Browns were off, for time was fleeting.

At Emergency the doctors also were sympathetic, but no beds. Maybe at Casualty Hospital . . . Would Mr. and Mrs. Brown have a seat while the doctor called the other hospitals? No use dashing around in a cab. No luck. None of the hospitals had any beds.

And the Browns were off again, this time back to George Washington Hospital.

The doctors there were sorry but still no beds. How about Gallinger? Into the night once more. But when they neared their home at 468 K Street Northwest, Mrs. Brown thought perhaps Gallinger was just a little too far. So they went home and called George Washington again.

At 1:30 a. m. in her own bedroom whence she had started so long ago, Mrs. Brown gave birth to her baby, assisted by two internes from George Washington Hospital.

Mrs. Brown had thought she would name it Gladys Jeanne Brown. On the baby's forehead was a faint "V." Perhaps a portent.

But later when she could think about it, Mrs. Brown looked at her husband and said, "Let's call her Victoria."

"Sure like Victory," he said.

Ruhland to Get Sibley Probe Report Today

Results of a Health Department investigation of complaints of a recent outbreak of infant dysentery at Sibley Hospital will be reported today to Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer.

A "several weeks study" of conditions at the hospital has been completed by Dr. Ella Oppenheimer, it was learned last night, shortly after Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House District Committee, launched a preliminary inquiry to determine if a subcommittee investigation is warranted.

Dr. Oppenheimer, the department's director of maternal and infant welfare, declared that hospital authorities "plan to revamp the setup" in the maternity ward and nursery. She said she is "satisfied that things will be straightened out at Sibley," but declined to comment on the findings of her investigation until the report has been studied by Dr. Ruhland.

Five Deaths Reported

Health Department records show five dysentery deaths in Washington since September while 50 cases were reported this month and last. Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, assistant health officer, last week declared that a "preponderance of all reported cases originated at Sibley Hospital."

Maternity wards and the nursery at Sibley remain closed to admissions, Dr. Oppenheimer said, in describing the situation as "all under control."

Randolph ordered an inquiry immediately after receiving a letter from a Washington newspaperman declaring that twins born to his wife in the hospital died of the disease.

Randolph's attention was first called tothe hospital several days ago by Charles Dupee, 1346 Nicholson Street Northwest, who complained that his child recently contracted the disease in Sibley.

Full Report Asked

The District chairman called on Dr. Ruhland for a full report on infant deaths in the District for the last two years. At the same time he wrote Sibley authorities to list the number of babies born each month during the same period, the number of deaths, cause of death and number of babies transferred to other hospitals.

Dr. Seckinger reported that of a number of children removed from Sibley and placed in other Washington institutions for treatment, 16 were sent to Children's Hospital.

Randolph asked Children's Hospital officials to furnish him with data on transfer of dysentery cases from other hospitals and asked them to list the hospitals from which the transfers were made.

"We are not ready to say where the fault lies," declared Randolph, "but we are going to find out."

"If the District doesn't have authority to cope with the health situation in Washington, it should be given authority."

Water Inquiry Sought Here By McCarran

Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, chairman of the District Committee, last night was scheduled to ask the Senate tomorrow to authorize an investigation of the District Water Division by "impartial experts."

McCarran's decision to seek a formal inquiry, he said, followed disclosure to him that of the 110-million-gallon daily output of the District water system, "20 per cent is not accounted for—at least."

Following announcement from the District Building last week that District residents may be asked to pay radically increased water rates, McCarran asked Renah F. Camalier, District Committee counsel, to make a study. The Senator decided yesterday, however, that the inquiry should be conducted "without fear or favor by an impartial and competent agency."

Beckett Explains

Humphrey Beckett, Water Division superintendent, explained last night that "no water system delivers its entire output to consumers and that 80 to 90 per cent of output accounted for is not considered bad."

Beckett attributed the apparent loss to leaks in the distribution system and unmetered use of water to wash streets, pave roadways, fight fires and for other purposes.

The proposed inquiry, McCarran declared, should cover the entire organization and operation of the Water Division. He is particularly interested in the arrangement by which the War Department operates the water supply system and the District distributes the water. Furthermore, he said, he would like to have full details on delivery of water to Arlington County, Va., and its use without charge by the Federal Government.

Beckett stated that Arlington pays the United States $50 per million gallons for District water while Maryland buys from the system whenever suburban areas suffer a shortage, at an average rate of $80. In each instance, he said, revenues are credited to the District water fund and the rates are fixed by acts of Congress.

Rise Not 115 Per Cent, He Says

Beckett denied that the proposed rate increases would be as high as 115 per cent, as published. The water division, he said, figures the maximum increase requested at 57 per cent, taking into account the fact that District consumers are not now permitted to buy a minimum of 4800 cubic feet.

The proposed boost would raise the metered consumption rate from $8.75 to $12 a year and would reduce the minimum allowance from 7500 to 4800 cubic feet.

The proposed rates, he said, are the result of recommendations by the Fire Safety Board. The board, he pointed out, recommended an increase following a water system study for which Congress in 1938 appropriated $20,000. Rates proposed by District officials, he said, are slightly above those suggested by the board because, it is felt, the city's rapid growth of the last two years has created a need for water system expansion greater than was anticipated.

Conciliator Hopes For Truck Strike Settlement Today

Prospects of a settlement of the Washington truck drivers' strike were described as "more hopeful" last night as the strike entered its ninth day.

Frank J. Sheehan, Labor Department conciliator, said several meetings were held between representatives of the strikers and management and some progress had been made. As a result, Sheehan said, the scheduled meeting of a three-man conciliation panel was postponed yesterday. He said the dispute may be settled sometime today.

Natie Brown Pleads Not Guilty

A plea of not guilty was made yesterday by Natie Brown, 31-year-old local prizefighter, charged with robbery in connection with the $3200 Valley Forge Distributing Co., pay roll holdup on August 2.

Brought into court under a $5000 bond, Brown was accompanied by his attorney, Charles E. Ford, who fought against a continuance in the case which was requested by the United States district attorney's office. The continuance was granted by Police Court Judge Hobart Newman until September 29.

Harry Roth and Samuel Greenstein, who were arrested in Philadelphia last week, were "positively identified" in a police line-up last night by Samuel Felkner, manager of the Valley Forge Co., and Mrs. Pearl Baum, cashier.

Mechanic Badly Hurt While Repairing Truck

John W. Bowers, 34, of 818 Eighth Street Northeast, was seriously injured yesterday when crushed by the wheels of a truck while doing repairs on another truck at the Stewart Motor Co., Third and H Streets Northeast.

Police are seeking a 14-year-old boy who, they said, operated the truck, and left the scene after the accident.

Harris Reelected By Civic Group

Edward F. Harris, acting president of the Federation of Civic Associations, last night was reelected president of the Lincoln Civic Association for a sixth term at a meeting held at the Francis Junior High School, Twenty-fourth and N Streets Northwest.

Mrs. Rosetta T. Dutch was reelected vice president of the organization. Other officers elected included Mrs. Sarah T. Honesty, secretary; Mrs. Mae Burrell, treasurer; and Rudolph Burrell, chaplain.

Named as delegate to the federation were Harris, Mrs. Dutch, Mrs. Edna W. Payton, William H. Shields and Walter H. Brooks.

Lutherans Vote to Unite 2 Churches

St. Mark's Members, About to Lose Home, Will Merge With Incarnation Unit

Merger of two half-century-old Lutheran churches here was approved last night by unanimous vote of the congregations at separate meetings.

The action will add the 200 confirmed members of St. Mark's, Eighth Street and Independence Avenue Southwest, to the 350-member congregation of Incarnation, Fourteenth and Gallatin Streets Northwest. The new church will be known as St. Mark's-Incarnation.

Because Independence Avenue is being widened, 52-year-old St. Mark's Church, along with other buildings, must be dismantled. The congregation must leave by the middle of October. Furnishings of St. Mark's will be removed to Incarnation, which is presently worshiping in a chapel until a new church building can be constructed. Incarnation is one year younger than St. Mark's.

The Rev. J. Luther Frantz, pastor of St. Mark's, will retire when the merger takes place. A minister for 40 years, the Rev. Frantz has been with St. Mark's for eight years. He also served earlier as pastor there for ten years. The Rev. Henry Manken is pastor of Incarnation.

Details of the merger will be arranged by a committee headed by Austin Cooper, of St. Mark's, and John Fahrenbach, of Incarnation.

Widening of the avenue also will force the congregation of Marvin Methodist Church, Tenth Street and Independence Avenue Southwest, to leave. The 200 members of Marvin will join other Methodist Church congregations.

Closed D. C. Bank May Pay More To Depositors

Justice Jennings Bailey yesterday passed an order nisi in United States District Court which if effective will pay 3 per cent interest to 2000 former depositors of the closed United States Savings Bank and 12½ per cent interest to 5000 others.

The order will become effective if it is approved by Justice Oscar R. Luhring at a District Court hearing September 23.

The bank closed March 14, 1933, and passed into the hands of a receiver one year later. Col. Wade H. Cooper, former president of the bank, stated yesterday that 100 per cent on the principal has long ago been paid all depositors.

The interest payments proposed would total $800,000 of actual deposits at 12½ per cent rate, and one million dollars at the rate of 3 per cent.

Capital News In Brief

Police Seeking Friends Of Mrs. Suzanne Hart

An elderly woman, visiting friends here, went out for a walk yesterday, and just got lost. Last night police were attempting to find the friends.

In response to a call by a passerby, police found the woman, confused and hesitant, at the corner of Connecticut Avenue and California Streets Northwest. She identified herself as Mrs. Suzanne G. Hart, of Portsmouth, Va., but could not remember the names or address of her friends.

Police Sergeant Rescues A Damsel in Distress

Like ye knights of olde, Police Sergt. C. J. Hite, of No. 2 Rescue Squad, saved ye faire maiden yesterday. By means of a 24-foot ladder, he climbed to the second story and rescued Helen Wheeler, 3, of 2721 Thirty-first Street Northwest. Helen had locked herself in.

Alices in Wonderland— But They Grew Hungry, Too

Miss Patricia Martin, of 3631 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest, and Miss Myra Platshon, of 3537 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest, left for Miami, Fla., at 11:30 a. m. yesterday, and were back at their respective homes at 10 p. m. last night.

The Misses Martin and Platshon, whose ages are 10 and 9, did not get to Miami, perhaps because they had only 63 cents between them. While police sought them in the neighborhood, they played at Union Station until night, and hunger, called an end to the adventure.

Pushcart Yields Bootleg Whisky

Two alert policemen didn't think a pushcart dealer was actually selling the load of wood he pushed around the Washington Streets. So they investigated with the result that they found two five-gallon cans filled with whisky. The culprit is now awaiting grand jury action under a $500 bond on charges of violating the liquor tax act. Arresting officers were W. McEwen and W. J. Weber, of the Second Precinct.

phere," Nelson said.

"They would like you to believe that a Hitler victory in Europe and over Britain would not affect us adversely. We would trade with Hitler after the war, they say, and everyone would be happy."

Any such trade with Hitler, he insisted, would be on Hitler's terms alone.

"It is all-important for us to realize that we are either going to accept a great many temporary controls now," Nelson warned, "or live in a world where permanent, iron-tight controls are the order of the day."

Benjamin H. Namm, national chairman of "Retailers for Defense" and chairman of the Retail Advisory Committee to the United States Treasury, said that the purchase of defense savings stamps was not only a financial investment, but also "an investment in freedom." He added that buying of defense bonds and stamps will act as a brake on inflation, and as a postwar cushion.

Program Outlined

He outlined the retailers' 14-point program as follows:

To practice and preach "Our Country First and Foremost;"

To act as purchasing agent for the public;

To prevent unwarranted increases in price;

To eliminate unfair trade practices;

To maintain retail employment at highest possible level;

To give encouragement to employes who wish to servs their country;

To disseminate defense information;

To urge informative labeling of merchandise;

To eliminate scare advertising;

To inform consumers of price increase causes;

To aid in the development of substitutes;

To develop simplification of merchandise types;

To help sell defense savings stamps;

To help unify the people through advertising, display and consumer appeals in support of national defense.

First Lady Buys Stamps

"Retailers for Defense" week—with the official sanction by President Roosevelt and Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau—got under way at noon when Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt bought $5 worth of stamps from Nelson, who is honorary chairman of the drive, in ceremonies broadcast over the Nation.

Both the First Lady and Nelson commended the retailers for their spirited support of the defense stamp campaign.

During the afternoon, the merchants attended a stamps sales clinic, with 20 Powers models assisting.

Chairman Namm said that the "Retailers for Defense" drive will not be limited to the week's campaign, but that the retailers are enlisted "for the duration . . ."

Kelly to Name Board to Check On D. C. Detectives This Week

Appointment of a three-man police board to investigate the records of the 70 detective sergeants of the Metropolitan force will be made this week by Maj. Edward J. Kelly, it was learned last night.

As predicted by The Post on Saturday, the three men, all holding a captain's rank, will man the board. Each captain to be named has had Detective Bureau experience. It is understood the board will consist of Capts. John H. Fowler, Clement P. Cox and Clarence Talley.

Purpose of the inquiry is to "weed out the deadwood" within the bureau, which was termed the "weakest link" of the department during the recent Congressional investigation.

The board of inquiry will attempt to ascertain how each detective sergeant received his promotion, how many cases have been cleared by the individual detective and the individual's adaptability to his job.

Meanwhile, swearing-in ceremonies for three officers was conducted yesterday at Police Headquarters. Ira E. Keck, former assistant chief of detectives, was promoted to the rank of inspector, succeeding Inspector William E. Holmes, and will head the Second Police District; Acting Captain Clement P. Cox was given a permanent assignment of that rank succeeding Chief of Detectives Richard H. Mansfield to be assigned as commander of the Eighth Precinct, and Lieut. Robert J. Barrett, No. 3 Precinct was designated acting captain, second in command of the Detective Bureau, succeeding Inspector Keck.

Georgian Named 'Perfect Selectee'

The title of "The Perfect Selectee" was conferred upon Private Earl L. Short, of Commerce, Ga., yesterday at Fort Belvoir, Va., in the finals of a most rigid inspection in which 6500 soldiers participated.

As an additional reward, Short will be given a 10-day furlough. Six runners-up will get a five-day furlough.

A board of four judges, composed of Army officers, awarded the title to Short after stiff competition. The qualifications were: posture, general appearance, military bearing, courteous speech and the manner of saluting. One selectee from each of the seven battalions in Group 1 at the camp was selected during elimination tests several days ago. The runners-up were:

Privates Edward J. Danser, Philadelphia, Pa.; Harry E. Bowles, Logansport, Ind.; James Henderson, McKeesport, Pa.; Gerald B. R. Van Nane, Staten Island, N. Y.; Richard J. Urian and Corpl. John D. Day.

Randolph Speeds Court Revision Bill

Subcommittee Report Also Asked On Fire-Safety Measure for D. C.

Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House District Committee yesterday called for subcommittee reports on the court consolidation and fire-safety bills so the measures might be ready for full committee consideration Monday.

Moving to speed up action on District legislation following the Congressional recess, Randolph gave top priorities to the bills which, he said, he hopes to put on the House calendar next week.

Perfecting amendments to the court bill which would replace the present Police and Municipal Courts with a single tribunal, have been offered by leading members of the bench and bar here, and Randolph said he would ask that revised legislation be prepared by Representative McGehee (Democrat), of Mississippi. McGehee is chairman of the Judiciary subcommittee which conducted hearings on the measure.

In addition to the single city court of a chief judge and nine associate judges, the court bill would establish an intermediary court of appeals.

Representative Harris (Democrat), of Arkansas, chairman of a special subcommittee, is expected to revise legislation to modernize the District fire code when he returns to the city today. Fire underwriters have advised Randolph that the measure, as now drafted, would give one manufacturer of safety appliances a monopoly here.

Subject to last-minute change of plans by House leaders, floor consideration of District legislation is scheduled Monday, the District's next legislative day.

Bills to authorize small loan companies to operate in the District, to amend the alcohol beverage control law and to raise the pay of policemen and firemen are now on the House calendar.

Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens Elect Officers

The Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens' Association held its first fall meeting last night in the A. R. Shepherd School, electing officers and laying plans to attack Washington's transportation problem.

Better Sixteenth Street bus service is among the things to be discussed at future meetings.

Elected last night were: Harry Hensley, president; Myron Witters, vice president; R. E. Barry, treasurer; L. S. O'Flaherty and M. J. Cairns, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations; Earle Sapp, Oliver Sweet and J. Preston Swecker, members of the executive committee. A secretary will be elected at the next meeting.

Folk Festival Aides Map Plans

Sponsors of the National Folk Festival met at the Hotel Burlington yesterday and made plans "for a Nation-wide series of festivals in every State and in as many communities as possible next May." The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Sarah Gertrude Knott, head of The Washington Post Folk Festival Association.

Mrs. Helen H. Mills, of Peoria, Ill., chairman of the International Music Relations clubs, promised that her organization "will cooperate with the Folk Festival in any national or international move." Other members of the Folk Festival attended from Washington and various parts of the country.

The Coming Generation Votes on Its Favorites

Their Preferred Player List Has a Surprise; Mrs. Major's Poll Also Takes a Definite Stand; Of "The Wookey" and Some Other Things

By Richard L. Coe
Substituting for Nelson B. Bell

IT ISN'T SO SURPRISING that Errol Flynn and Mickey Rooney lead the parade of film stars most popular with young Americans. That they do, of course, is fine, admirable but hardly unexpected. Nor is it astonishing to find Spencer Tracy, Gary Cooper, Deanna Durbin, Gene Autry, James Stewart, Clark Gable, Bette Davis, Judy Garland, Alice Faye, Ann Sheridan and Gloria Jean on the list.

HEDY LAMARR

But it is something of a shock to find Hedy Lamarr in such a company.

Not that Miss Lamarr shouldn't be in any company she has a mind to. Perish the thought. Miss Lamarr is pretty choice company just on her own and she can come bother us any time she gets the urge. Yet even Hedy must admit that from the roles she's played even Little Eva would be flattered to appear with such clean livers as the above 13. From "Ecstasy" to "Algiers," "I Take This Woman," "Boom Town," "Comrade X," "Come Live With Me," "Ziegfeld Girl" and her current assignment, "H. M. Pulham, Esq." Hedy has been playing girls a bit on the rowdy side. True, they were more sinned against than sinning and it's probably this quality, apart from her evident charm, that catapaulted her into such respectable company.

This poll is the fourth annual Survey on Youth made by Young America, the newsweekly, and conducted under personal supervision of teachers in American classrooms.

The survey further indicates that the average 13-year-older goes to the movies 4.3 times per month, that he goes with a friend, that he chooses his pictures in order to see his favorite star. How do you feel now, Miss Lamarr, with such noble folk to keep you company?

Mrs. Major's Children's Theater Season Nears

Meanwhile Clare Tree Major has been conducting her own poll on the preferences of her 6 to 14-year-old audiences. Mrs. Major's deductions are based largely on her 17 years in presenting plays for juvenile audiences and her years as director of the Children's Theater. Her annual repertoires are selected from a list of 25 plays submitted to boys and girls in 500 towns and cities. Teachers and parents also indicated their preferences. Both ballots for the current season resulted in the choice of one fairy tale, "Sleeping Beauty," and five "real-world" stories depicting a cross-section of American life: "Penrod," "Little Women," "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," "Toby Tyler" and "Poor Little Rich Girl."

Judging from the number of grownups who told her throughout the country last winter of instances of war strain among the very young Americans, Mrs. Major thinks this unprecedented request for only American plays is indicative of the shrinking of our children from Europe's mass physical suffering. Her Washington season will open Saturday morning October 18 at 10:30 with "Mrs. Wiggs" in the National Theater. Subscriptions tickets are now available for the entire series at 1734 F Street.

Yes, "The Wookey" got a resounding if somewhat divided reception at its New York opening. Arthur Pollock, brother of Playwright Channing Pollock, once a Post writer, reported in the Brooklyn Eagle that "'The Wookey' got cheers at the end, good loud cheers." Howard Barnes, in the Herald-Tribune, saw "the great little man in England brought to vivid and unforgettable dramatic life." And in The Times Brooks Atkinson found him "the ideal man of freedom." But of course if you saw "The Wookey" on E Street you already know this. We just mentioned it for the doubters. As for "Two-Story House," its title has been changed to "Cuckoos on the Hearth" and opens in New York tonight at the Morosco. We'll keep you posted. (That's a boast!)

Hollywood, Sept. 15.—It doesn't take Hal Wallis long to put through an idea. Director Henry King, who's been flying his own plane since 1918, has just returned from Dayton, Ohio. "With all the commercial and training planes in the air, how did you get through?" I asked. "Believe it or not, I never saw one until I reached St. Louis, and then it was on the ground," King said. His love of flying developed while in Italy making "The White Sister" with Lillian Gish and Ronald Colman, if you can remember that far back. He tells me how careful Clipper ships are. They carry two whole crews—one running the ship and an extra one of co-pilots, who have actual experience of going through every kind of emergency and weather, so when they get a ship themselves, they'll know exactly what to do.

One of the greatest writing teams of our time is Charlie Brackett and Billy Wilder. They've done "Midnight," "Ninotchka," "Ball of Fire." Seems a pity it's breaking up. Wilder wants to be a director . . . Found Claudette Colbert on "Remember the Day" set, playing cut-throat gin-rummy with John Payne. Claudette completely deglamorized playing a school teacher, wearing long skirt and shirt-waist. In the scene, they asked the school principal about the possibility of income taxes. Said he with vehmence, "The House of Representatives will never dare pass an income tax law." (That was in 1916.) At which we all howled.

Ty Power was having a scar put on his face where George Sanders was supposed to have hit him with a riding whip in "Son of Fury." Ty was on the crest, so excited about having done "Liliom" back East. Said, "I feel made over. I sat from October to February waiting for a picture, and not able to get away. While the play was hard work, I'm now entirely rested." The thing that pleased him most back there was that the critics didn't carp; they said he wasn't just trading on a picture name, but that he gave his all.

Could get nothing out of Don Ameche and Archie Mayo on the "Confirm or Deny" set. They were also deep in gin-rummy, the game that's almost like a scourge of locusts. There was poor Joan Bennett, languishing alone, wearing khaki skirt and blouse, and not even able to show a clean face. She was inside a London cave-in during a bombing scene, with a time bomb about to explode any second. There, too, was Arthur Shields, who tells me in Dublin they have more motion pictures per capita than in New York. He blesses John Ford, who brought him three times to this country for pictures.

'Separate Rooms' Arrives At the National—and How!

By Richard L. Coe

"SEPARATE ROOMS." Ben F. Stein presents a comedy in three acts by Joseph Carole and Alan Dinehart in collaboration with Alex Gottlieb and Edmund Joseph. Directed by Mr. Dinehart. At the National Theater.

THE CAST:

Gary Bryce ..... Lionel Jacoby
Tazzeri ..... Kirk Brown
Dan Stackhouse ..... Lyle Talbot
Scoop Davis ..... Warren Douglas
Pamela Barry ..... Anna Sten
Jim Stackhouse ..... Alan Dinehart
Linda Roberts ..... Virginia Smith
Leona Sharpe ..... Madora Keene

"Separate Rooms" is one of those comedies that makes the professional reviewer want to knock off work for a couple weeks and write a play. Or else maybe just knock off work. Audiences eat it up while it bites holes all over the critical hide.

This is, to be sure, a late date to be cracking wise about the National's present tenant. It's had a run of nearly two years in New York. Last evening's first nighters roared like things possessed and on the way out even a drowsy eavesdropper could hear praise for play, costumes, acting, direction and setting.

Of course, "Separate Rooms" has attained a contemporary celebrity as having ignored adverse critical notices from the start by going into a record-breaking run and, one assumes, making a sweet cache of dough.

Now your reporter admits he had heard something of this, but he also must admit he was ingenuous enough to think those smart writin' folk on Manhattan Island had been riding their high horses. "Bah," we'd said to ourselves, "we're going to have a wonderful time." What we had was one more illustration of our pet professional "theory"—a little item we'll let you in on if you can bear it:

Our Secret Formula!

Any entertainment which pleases its audiences is successful entertainment. "Separate Rooms" pleased its audience. Q. E. D.: "Separate Rooms" has achieved its raison d'etre.

But that doesn't mean that "Separate Rooms" is a good play. Its laughs are vulgar and witless. Its plot can be summed up in a compound sentence. Its acting—with the exception of co-author Alan Dinehart—is outrageously hammy, amatuerish even. It has, in fact, all the qualities of a perfectly deadly evening in the theater.

The story concerns an actress who inveigles her playwright into marriage and when her brother-in-law threatens to expose her filthy past, she reforms to become a wifely little minx.

The jokes are not merely predicated on the double-entendre. They would be startling even in that much-maligned form of entertainment known as burlesque. Some one may tell you that they've heard the same sort of gags in the better revues, but they forget they usually heard them in a far more subtle fashion. And quite a while ago.

Of the players, Mr. Dinehart is not only the best, he is also always engaging. Anna Sten, of the films, flaps about in ill-advised attempts to be hoydenish. She looks well, but her accent seems strangely in contrast to the female the playwrights have conceived. Lyle Talbot is far from credible as the perplexed husband. The balance of the cast evidently has been active in the summer theaters.

So if you hear about reviewers running around the streets screaming or beating up their lady friends this week, just take it lightly and extend a little sympathy, for they've been batting their heads against stone walls. Their world is topsy-turvy. Like Sisyphus and Penelope, they're in a fruitless business.

For "Separate Rooms" is a hit and there's apparently nothing anybody can do about it. Now we're gonna go out and eat worms.

They Missed the Buss in Old Days

The question is: When is a kiss a kiss?

The reason for bringing up the subject is a picture called "The Prime Minister," starring John Gielgud and Diana Wynyard, which was produced by Warner Brothers at its Teddington studio near London.

There aren't any long kisses in it, a la Gilbert and Garbo. Nor are there any quick but meaningful kisses such as Marlene Dietrich and George Raft exchange in "Manpower." Nor any sweet, he-man kisses of the type Gary Cooper planted on Joan Leslie's lips in "Sergeant York."

All you'll see is the type good Queen Victoria would have approved of—the paternal peck on the cheek or the respectful smooch on the back of the hand.

In his youth, Disraeli, the film's central character, had quite a way with the ladies but, according to the rules of the day, that was all he was allowed.

From Dialect to Indian Eloquence

Two years of steady employment in Hollywood has netted Eddie Conrad a wide assortment of roles, every one of which, however, to his increasing annoyance, was a dialect part.

"I played Russians, Italians, Germans, French, Poles, even at Latvian in 'Foreign Correspondent,' some of which language I had to learn. I was afraid I was getting 'typed,' that casting directors would forget that I could speak English," he said.

Then came the call for his recent role in the Leon Errol feature, "Hurry, Charlie, Hurry." Eddie asked dolefully what nationality they wanted this time, and was ecstatic when informed that the part was American.

Ecstatic, that is, until he received the script and discovered that he was to be an American—an American Indian, and his dialog consisted mainly of "Hows" and "Ughs."

Sings New Song in 'Chocolate Soldier'

An original number, with lyrics by Gus Kahn and music by Bronislau Kaper, which has all the earmarks of a hit tune, was sung for the first time by Nelson Eddy for a sequence in "The Chocolate Soldier." Titled "My Lady Sleeps," Eddy sings the song to Rise Stevens, Metropolitan Opera star making her screen debut in the picture in a serenade from her gardens.

BERNHEIMER'S THEATERS

Dodgers Beat Reds in 17th, 5 to 1

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

The fact that he is the only American League manager unsigned for 1942 is not haunting Bucky Harris to any visible degree. For a man whose job is supposed to run out in a couple of weeks, Harris is a very smug citizen. The impression is that Harris' job isn't going to run out

POVICH

The Boy Wonder of 1924-25 is now sprouting gray shoots from his scalp in profusion, but it is scarcely from worry over continued employment. Indeed, Harris' late-season actions are those of a man who may be about to inherit a hundred grand from somebody; or at least has a complete understanding that his job is not in danger. The latter seems to be nearer the truth.

Harris is attacking the Nats' late-season problems with all of the zest of a manager who is going to be back. He recently took a secret scouting trip to inspect players who, if bought, could not be delivered to the Nats before 1942 and, of course, he was scarcely lining up this talent for another manager. He talks of the 1942 prospects—Roberto Ortiz, Early Wynn and the Chattanooga infielders—in the mood of a man who will have to deal with them next year. If Harris isn't coming back, he's going to a powerful lot of trouble to line things up nicely for his successor. What do you think?

Griffith Likes to Stall

Fact is that Clark Griffith has never blamed Harris for any of his ball club's sins. It would please Griffith more if Harris would himself to the coaching lines and attempt to instill some fire into the cold-fish athletes on the club, but Harris' duty, as he sees it, is on the bench, and he has won that argument with Griffith a couple of times. He has won other arguments with Griffith, incidentally, arguments that wouldn't be won by a manager who is actually on the spot.

The fact that Harris isn't demanding another contract before the season ends can be tossed out of the reckoning, because stalling about such things is one of Griffith's little idiosyncracies. The old gentleman has made it a practice never to give a manager a new contract until the season ends. He secretly likes to keep the public guessing.

If all these signs are false and Griffith is, indeed, going to fire Harris, he'll say so promptly with the end of the season. The Nats' owner is a much-maligned man in many matters but for all his reputation of driving a hard bargain he's a considerate sort of employer. He won't keep Harris guessing until it is too late for Bucky to angle for another job. If Harris is going to be fired, he knows it now, and as we were saying he doesn't act like a man whose job with the Nats is about to expire.

Dodgers' Luck Holding Out

The luck of the Brooklyn Dodgers is holding out, and if they get into the world series they ought to make a deep bow to the Fickle Lady. The Dodgers would not now be in the lead in the National League pennant race if the Cardinals, like themselves, had been able to escape serious injuries to key players. In contrast to the Dodgers' good fortune in keeping their first-string line-up intact, the Cardinals have had a long succession of injuries that they've been forced to outride.

Latest stroke of fortune for the Dodgers happened in the Yankee camp. The Brooks won't have to contend with Charley Keller if they get into the world series. Keller last week suffered a chipped bone in his ankle and will get no closer to the Dodgers than the bench. If the Dodgers were able to write the script for the world series, they couldn't have plotted a much better break for themselves than Keller's absence unless they could get Joe DiMaggio out of there.

The Yanks without Keller are not nearly as formidable as the Yanks with Keller. In 1939, the fellow demonstrated that he is lynamite in a world series and for most of this season he has been driving more runs across the plate than even DiMaggio. In 1939 he ruined the Reds with his four series home runs and his mere presence in the batting order puts a horrible pressure on the pitchers.

Keller's Substitutes Weak

One of Keller's charms was that he was never troubled with left-handed pitching. The same cannot be said for the man who will replace him, George Selkirk. No club would exactly sneer in the face of Selkirk, but the fact is that he has never been able to break into that regular Yankee outfield even though it contains, in Tommy Heinrich, a .269 hitter. Selkirk will be bringing a mere .236 batting average into the Yankee line-up.

Joe McCarthy has another choice to replace Keller, French Bordagaray, but that is not a very exciting prospect. Bordagaray has been a mere .271 hitter this year and never was regarded as anything except an emergency replacement. McCarthy's strategy may take the form of playing Selkirk against right-handed pitching and Bordagaray against left-handers. He will probably be yearning for Keller before the series is over.

Best commentary on the absence of Keller is found in the revised betting odds on the series. Before Keller was forced out, Broadway betting men were quoting the Yankees as 8 to 5 favorites freely. Latest odds show that the Yanks are only 6 to 5, and those odds are not being quoted very freely. In many establishments, the betting men ask the customers to lay six to their five and take their choice of the game.

Yanks' Timely Hits Defeat Indians, 4-2

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 15.—The New York Yankees were held to six hits today, but made every one count, and beat the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 2, for Lefty Gomez' fifteenth triumph of the sesen.

Tom Henrich opened the attack on Southpaw Al Smith with his thirtieth home run in the first inning. A walk, a sacrifice and a single by Jihnny Sturm added a run in the third. Singles by Gomez and Sturm and a double play let one across in the sixth, while in the seventh two singles and a walk loaded the bases and a final New York run trickled across on a force-out.

The Indians made three singles and a run in the fourth, but were checked on a total of five hits for eight innings as Gomez pitched one of his best games.

Nats Again Defeat Detroit 'Cousins'

Dutch Leonard Checks Tiger Bats as Griffs Win, 8 to 5; Travis Collects His 200th Hit

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

The Nats beat their favorite playmates, the Detroit Tigers, again yesterday. Like creatures of habit, they slapped down the Tigers for the fifteenth time this season in the 21 games between the two clubs. It wasn't much trouble. Dutch Leonard merely held the Tigers to eight hits and the Nats banged three Detroit pitchers for 11 blows nicely timed. The score was 8-5.

The Tigers lost the ball game in the ninth inning when the Nats put it beyond reclaim with three runs, but they lost Manager Del Baker in the first inning. Baker got the thumb from Umpire in Chief Cal Hubbard, whose ears perked in great interest when Baker volubly disputed a decision at first base by Umpire Harry Geisel. Hubbard bade Baker begone for the rest of the afternoon.

..Travis Gets 200th Hit

The game produced a couple of interesting statistics in addition to the extension of the Nats' strange mastery over the Tigers. The Nats were winning their fourth straight, Leonard was recording his seventeenth victory of the year and Cecil Travis slugged a single with the bases full to become the first player in either league to achieve 200 hits this season.

The customers observed with complete approval the maiden effort of Second Baseman Charley Letchas, late of Chattanooga, in the Nats' infield. They approved of him, particularly, when he stepped to bat in the first inning and whaled a single into rightfield to drive home the first run of the ball game. They liked him, too, when he flipped Tebbetts' grounder to Travis with a sure-handed effort that launched a double play in the fourth inning.

Travis was the only landmark in Washington's infield yesterday. Playing first base was big Jack Sanford, up from Chattanooga, and at third base Jimmy Bloodworth started what may be a new career for him with the Nats. It was an errorless job by the Nats' infield yesterday. Sanford banged out one hit in three times at bat.

It All Happened Early

Fritzie Zivic Kayoes Aron In 'Comeback'

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Sept. 15.—Fritzie Zivic of Pittsburgh, who recently lost the welterweight championship of the world, stepped along the comeback trail in spectacular fashion tonight by kaoying Milt Aron of Chicago, in 1:58 seconds of the fifth round of a 10-round bout which featured an all-star show witnessed by more than 20,000 persons.

Aron weighed 152½; Zivic, 147½.

Boxing smartly, lean Fritzie readied his man for the kill in the first four rounds with a neat display of infighting. In the fifth he caught Milt with a vicious right cross square on the button as the Chicago battler moved in, knocking him flat on his back. Aron was counted out flat on his face.

The large crowd cheered lustily at the sudden finish of the feature bout but most of the card's sensations were packed in the battle between Mose Brown, 171½, of nearby McKeesport, and Irish Jimmy Webb, 171, of Houston, Tex. Brown, a paralyzing puncher, scored a technical knockout, his third straight knockout victory over Webb, in 50 seconds of the sixth round of a ten-rounder.

Brown did not escape unscathed. While the crowd roared, Webb rallied after being knocked down in the third and fifth and carried the fight to the McKeesport slugger. At times Brown appeared weary and his left eye was cut, but never did he go down. Webb's right eye and nose were bleeding freely when the end came.

In the opening bout on the card, bouncing Petey Scalzo, 130, of New York, former featherweight champion, gave Corporal Mike Raffa, 129, of Newell, W. Va., and Fort Knox, Ky., a ten-round boxing lesson tonight to grab a clean-cut decision. Scalzo outboxed Raffa throughout and scored repeatedly with a hard over-hand right. One of these shots closed Raffa's left eye in the fifth round.

Harry Bobo, 208, rising young Pittsburgh Negro heavyweight, avenged a recent knockout defeat by Bill Poland, 193, New York boy, by hammering the young Jewish boxer into knockout defeat in 2 minutes 50 seconds of the sixth round of a 10-rounder which was the semifinal on the all-star card.

Flock Bags 5 Runs During 'Blackout'

Everything Happens in Last Inning; Reiser's Homer Starts Rally; Derringer, Allen in Duel

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Sept. 15.—The Brooklyn Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds put on one of the most peculiar ball games in the memory of man today, with practically all the peculiarities coming in the seventeenth inning, and the Dodgers finally bundling up the game like Arabs in the night.

The score was 5 to 1, giving the Dodgers their second straight victory here and increasing their margin over the idle St. Louis Cardinals to two games.

For 16 innings Paul Derringer, ace veteran of the Reds, and Johnny Allen, 36-year-old American League cast-off, and Chubby Hugh Casey pitched brilliant scoreless ball.

Then, with afternoon turning to twilight and twilight turning to night, the ball game became the grandest assortment of hoopla that 5961 baseball fans ever were called on to witness.

Here's What Took Place

What happened as the bleacherites lit bonfires of papers and scorecards was this in genral:

Pete Reiser, who had hit only a single in his six other times at bat, opened the seventeenth with a booming homer into the rightfield "sun" seats. Derringer, who had pitched his heart out, was through, but you couldn't tell for sure in the shadows.

Dolf Camilli whipped a single to left and Lew Riggs sent one to right. That was all for Derringer, who went out to his fourteenth defeat amid cheers, and Joe Beggs came in.

About now the funny stuff started. Benny Zientara fumbled Joe Medwick's grounder and let in a run. Dick West made another error. Manager Leo Durocher was yelling from the dugout to Mickey Owen, "strike out, strike out." But Mickey singled to left for two runs and the ball game went on. Somewhere along here Jim Turner relieved Beggs and threw what was believed to be a wild pitch, one more run scoring.

Somehow it got along to two down, with Dixie Walker hitting an infield fly to third for an automatic out, there being men on first and second at the time. Billy Herman finally fanned on purpose.

But there was still a good chance for the game to be called and the score revert to the sixteenth inning. Two walks, prolonged all possible, then a single by Harry Craft and an infield out produced the run that kept the Reds from being shut out shortly after 7 o'clock. Casey at last squeezed Eddie Joat's little popper and tossed to first to end the exhibition.

However, not before Manager Bill McKechnie of the Reds had suggested a couple of times to Umpire Larry Goetz that the moon wouldn't be up for hours.

Magnificent Pitching

About the only light on the field at this time was from the big red illuminated numbers on the score board and the fires in the bleachers, but the umpires saw it to the bitterest of bitter ends.

The farcical ending completely blotted out the magnificent work of Derringer and Allen in the daylight innings. For the normal nine frames Zientara, a rookie just up from Indianapolis, was the only Red to get a hit, a scratcher in the third that Reese couldn't quite handle.

Derringer was giving up many more hits, but when it came to scoring, he couldn't be touched. He made Camilli fan with the bases loaded in the third.

For Derringer it was the second extra inning defeat in a few days. Last week the Boston Braves beat him in 15 innings, and on June 22 the Dodgers beta him, 2 to 1, in 16 in the first game of a double-header.

Dodgers Squawk Early

The big Kentuckian showed all the form that made him a great pitcher until a training camp injury, since operated on, laid him low this summer.

The game also had some characteristic Brooklyn squawks. Even before Walker, leading off, could swing his bat the first time, Durocher was out there with a complaint.

It was 2:50 when the game started instead of the official 3 p. m. and Durocher thought that Dixie didn't have to get up there until 3 o'clock sharp.

Goetz called on Derringer to

Notice of World Series Ticket Sale Seen as Ill Omen

By the United Press

New York, Sept. 15.—The most terrible of all baseball jinxes was hung on the Dodgers today—starting the sale of World Series tickets before the pennant is clinched.

Many another potential pennant-winner has been ruined by such a premature anouncement, but it didn't phase Brooklyn's "beloved bums." After the Brooklyn management announced that reservations will be accepted immediately for the World Series games with the Yankees at Ebbets Field, the Dodgers went out and fought their way to a glorious seventeen-inning victory over the Reds in Cincinnati, 5-1.

The victory increased the Dodgers' lead over the idle Cardinals to two full games. With only 12 games left to play and seven of them with the Phillies, the Dodgers figure to hold their lead unless the terrible jinx of selling World Series tickets prematurely starts working on the heroes of Flatbush.

Disappointment Ahead

With only 35,000 seats at Ebbets Field, there are going to be countless thousands disappointed when they try to get tickets. The Borough of Brooklyn has a population of 2,327,160 and almost every person who has a radio set and has heard Radiocaster Red Barber tell in his drawling Southern voice of the heroics of the "bums" will try to get in to see them in action against the Yankees.

The applications for World Series tickets for the third, fourth and fifth games at Ebbets Field will be accepted by mail, addressed to the Brooklyn Baseball Club, Post-office Box 380, Brooklyn, N. Y. Applications must be made for a set of tickets, that is, one for each of the three games.

Berto Stars in Purdue Scrimmage With 60-Yd. Run; Illini Get New Set of Pass Plays

By the Associated Press

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 15.—Bruised a bit already, the University of Notre Dame varsity football squad had light drills today while Coach Frank Leahy put the second team through scrimmage.

Berto Stars at Perdue

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 15.—Tony Berto, Clinton, Ind., junior back, ran 60 yards for a touchdown today in a Purdue University football scrimmage in practice for the season opener with Detroit here a week from next Saturday. Coach A. H. (Mal) Elward also drilled his squad on assignments in plays and on forward pass attack, letting a lot of prospects throw the ball.

W. & M. Casualties Mount

Williamsburg, Va., Sept. 15.—William and Mary's footballers engaged in a defensive and offensive passing scrimmage today, with Coach Carl Voyles preparing his team for the season's opener here Saturday with the Newport News Apprentice School.

Casualties continued to pile up.

Redskins Polish Signals in Drill at Colorado Springs

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 15. The Redskins began the last lap of their training period to be climaxed with an intrasquad East-West game here on Saturday night. Coach Ray Flaherty put them through their paces on the Broadmoor Hotel's polo field in the shadows of Pikes Peak. Signal work took most of the two-hour session, and Flaherty gave notice that from here in he will enforce the $1 fine for each time a player misses a signal.

The squad of 45 players will be cut to 33 following the game Saturday night.

Andy Farkas, Steve Andrako and Wilbur Moore, who have been on the injured list, went through signals. Ed Justice, Clyde Shugart and John Stonebreaker are still ailing.

Dear Boss:

As you probably suspected, Boss, I gave up my chance to break in the movies so I could continue to try out with the Redskins. Tell the truth, I didn't want to be cooped up in a studio anyway. They can have their big money. I prefer a he-man's work like football. I want to see the world from a day coach.

Now, don't think for a minute that I couldn't have made the grade if I had wanted to. The picture thing looked like such a cinch that I would have felt badly about it had I stayed and taken their money.

Well, I might as well start at the beginning. This morning Coach Ray Flaherty was determined that I wouldn't go down to MGM for that screen test. He stationed Willie Wilkin, Jim Barber and Bill Young outside my door with instructions that if I tried to get out to pile on me. Of course, these big tackles want me with the ball club as much as Flaherty because they know I'm going to get them in the championship playoff.

So I disguised myself as a Filipine house boy and walked out backwards carrying a stack of towels. I understand they caught the dickens from Flaherty when he discovered I was gone.

Well, boss, I took MGM by storm. I strutted into the publicity office and they recognized me at once. I didn't even have to introduce myself. Chuck Cochard, the writer, said: "Yes, we know you. You are Haight, of the Redskins. There's a dozen stars on the lot just dying to meet you."

Sparring Partner Sues Billy Conn For Punching Him

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Sept. 15.—Billy Conn, who was knocked out recently by Joe Louis, today was asked to pay $9,000 for a single punch—a punch he denied giving.

James (Riggs) Lindsay, who billed himself the "fighting marine" during his ring career, claimed he was disabled permanently on December 20, 1939, by a punch Conn delivered in a sparring match. He asked $18 a week for 500 weeks workmen's compensation.

Conn and Johnny Ray, his manager, said Lindsay was not working for them at that time, and that if Lindsay was injured, he was not injured by Conn.

D. C. Fistic Body, Promoters Confer On Winter Fights

The District Boxing Commission held a "feeler" meeting for winter dates yesterday and entertained Lee Perrin, representing Uline's Arena, Joe Turner and Ray Alvis, who arrived as rival promoters but left arm in arm, indicating they may be together this winter.

Perrin, general manager of the Uline plant, applied for permission for two Monday shows per month, with Johnny Attel as matchmaker. The arena will seat 10,000 for boxing and they plan to go after big-name attractions.

Turner has his arena and Alvis has used Riverside Stadium for shows in the past. No definite dates were assigned any promoter, all being taken under advisement.

Gonzaga, N. T. S. Elevens Open 1941 Schoolboy Grid Season

Teams Meet At Eastern High Today

First Scholastic Game of Season Purple Favored Set for 3:30 P. M.;

To Gonzaga and National Training School elevens go the privilege of opening local 1941 schoolboy football hostilities today, the initial clash of the season being scheduled at Eastern High stadium at 3:30.

Both clubs figure to have excellent teams this year, though Gonzaga will again be favored. It will have more reserves and a heavier club hanging over the Trainers' heads, as well as the memory of a sound beating handed them last year.

Seven lettermen will be in uniform for the Purple and its new coach, Sam (Bo) Richards—Guard Fahey, Tackles O'Keefe and Harrington, and the complete backfield. That will be composed of Quarterback Reds Murphy, Halfbacks Lauck and Daly, and Fullback Elmer Raba.

They won't play today, but Fullbacks Bernie Nolan and Muffins Healy and newcomers Barrett and Mussolino, at center and guard, are expected to strengthen the team later on.

N. T. S. has already play one more-or-less formal game, with Charlotte Hall. It lost by an 8-6 count. Off that effort the Trainers stars today will probably be Quarterback "Porky" Lofty and Halfback Bob Connell. Hugh Anderson, rugged little ball carrier, has not reported to the team yet.

Probable starting line-ups:

Gonzaga	Position	Nat. Training
Claveloux	L. E.	Poff
O'Keefe	L. T.	Bates
Speaks	L. G.	Moore
Dillon	Center	Smith
Fahey	R. G.	Truel

Group Seeking To Buy Phils, Build Winner

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Sept. 15.—John B. Kelly, United States director of physical training, today said he is interested in purchasing control of the Philadelphia National League baseball team.

"A syndicate with which I am associated is anxious to give Philadephia a winning baseball team in the National League and we expect to make an offer within the next few days and hope we can acquire the controlling block of stock," Kelley said.

Kelly said James Peterson, a former pitcher for the Philadelphia Athletics, probably would handle negotiations with Gerald P. Nugent, president of the club. Mrs. Nugent, wife of the Phillies' president and vice president of the club, said no offer has yet been made for purchase of the stock. Peterson also said he had not made the Phillies an offer. Kelly asserted he was not at liberty to name the other members of the syndicate at this time.

From other sources came reports that if the Kelly group is successful they intend to put an additional $250,000 into the club for the purchase of players.

Kimbrough Sued By Hertz; Contract Breach Is Charged

By International News Service

Rockleigh, N. J., Sept. 15.—A $500,000 suit, alleging breach of a partnership agreement, was on file tonight in Hackensack, N. J., against John Kimbrough, former Texas A. & M. football star, and a process server awaited Kimbrough's arrival here at the training camp of the New York Yankees pro grid team to hand the giant fullback the complaint.

The suit was filed by Douglas Hertz, owner of the New York Yankees.

Hertz claims that Kimbrough had signed papers with other persons to manage his affairs and accepted a salary from a motion picture concern contrary to his contract with Hertz.

A restraining order was issued meanwhile, to prevent Kimbrough from accepting money from any source until he accounts to Hertz.

Hertz signed the Texan to play professional football this season with the Yankees at a reported salary of 35,000, some of which was to be obtained from advertising and movie contracts in which Kimbrough was to figure.

TED GETS HIS CHANCE FOR 'TRIPLE'

New York, Sept. 15.—With Charley Keller out for the season, if not for the World Series, Ted Williams has an excellent chance to become one of the comparatively few hitters to win his league's triple crown—the batting, the home run and the runs-batted-in championships.

CONSIDINE

The late Lou Gehrig did it in 1934 with a league topping average of .363, 49 home runs and 165 runs batted in. Jimmy Foxx did it the year before that, with .356, 48 homers and 163 runs bumped home. That same year, 1933. Chuck Klein, then with the Phillies, (Foxx was with the Athletics) won all three titles in the National League, with .368, 28 home runs and 120 runs driven in. Joe DiMaggio is among the notable all-time batters who have failed to finish in front in all three important departments.

Williams seemed destined to miss the three-prong title this year, until Keller decided to slide into second base the other day. Charley was even with Ted in home runs and ten runs up on him in runs knocked home. Williams, of course, was a mile out in front in actual batting percentage. From here in, Williams must battle Joe DiMaggio for the R. B. I. title. As of Sunday DiMaggio had 116 to Williams' 111. Keller's 122 runs batted in will remain static, of course. Williams was leading the home run parade on Sunday with 34, and with Keller gone and his 33 mark frozen, Ted's closest opposition was Tommy Henrich, with 28.

A probing of the batting average lists reveals some starting finds. Sunday's averages showed that Williams had made 168 hits in piling up his dizzy .409 average—49 percentage points ahead of second place Cecil Travis. Yet Travis had made 199 hits. DiMaggio, at .358, had made 177 hits to Williams' 168 and Jeff Heath, in the fourth place, had made 180. Hopelessly down in the batting championship race was Doc Cramer, of Washington, who had made two more hits than Williams had—170. Yet Cramer's batting average was .281. The answer, of course, is that Williams is so tough to so many pitchers that he is given many more walks than lesser hitters. For instance he had been officially at bat only 410 times to Travis' 548 and DiMaggio's 494.

Hard to Believe—Natie's Case

It's hard to believe that Natie Brown, the good-natured pug who twice fought Joe Louis, played a part in that $3,200 payroll stickup in Washington. At the police line-up, when one of the alleged confederates identified Brown, it took eight Washington cops to pull him off his accuser. Nothing in Brown's public record in and out of the ring suggests a Robin Hood strain. Boxing writers liked the fellow because they always could get an honest and usually witty comment out of him on the caliber of another fighter or the state of the game.

The only time we ever remember Brown wavering from the truth came one day in 1934 when we saw him on a broadcast before the Louis-Carnera fight. Natie had been a well-paid Carnera sparring partner, because he had got ten rounds with the then comparatively unknown Louis, and knew Joe's style. But when the announcer asked him to comment on the outcome of the fight, Natie said, "Louis will knock out Carnera in about six heats. It won't even be a contest. This fellow Louis is going to be the next champ. He's got so much more class than Carnera that it's laughable."

Then, out of the corner of his eye, Natie caught sight of one of the mobsters who had sliced into poor Preem. The guy was sitting in the back of the broadcast room, his hand in his trigger pocket and a cold George Raft glint in his eyes. Natie spoke on for a moment on sheer momentum. Then his neck got red and Natie yammered, "Haw, haw. Can't you radio folks take a joke? I mean Carnera's gonna win."

Dempsey to Aid Hale America Plan

Philadelphia, Sept. 15 (AP).—Jack Dempsey was chosen today for a major job in the "Hale America" program.

His appointment as Deputy U. S. Director of Physical Training for boxing was announced by John B. Kelly, Assistant U. S. Director of Civilian Defense in charge of national physical training.

"Not only is Jack a living example of health and physical perfection," said Kelly, "but he stands unchallenged a a popular sports hero.

"His job will be to see that all boxers are properly conditioned and also to carry a personal physical fitness message to the men, women and children of the Nation."

Odd Fellows Pin Honors Go To Humphreys

The Odd Fellows started their twenty-seventh season last night at the Brookland Recreation drives with Walt Humphrey, Columbia No. 2, best man for the single with a 185 count while old reliable Frank Donaldson, Amity No. 2, won set honors with his 398. Columbia No. 1 and Golden Rule split team highs with 802 and 1719. Harold Hodges, last year's champion, aided the Golden Rulers with a near high 394 set. Donaldson's nice set enabled his Amity No. 2 lads to take three straight from Loyalty.

Del Ray

Hap Newman's Columbian League had its inaugural last night at Del Ray with Miss R. Bernhardt taking high single with a 125 count while Miss E. Collum was best for set with her 323. The Flashes and Dixies split team highs after pinfalls of 473 and 1319, respectively. Both the Flashes and Marvels won all three from opponents.

Silver Spring

The Georgia Avenue League at Silver Spring discovered that young and lanky Al Cissel, Arbaugh's Restaurant, was best man for the night with a splendid 700 game which he turned into a 414 set, which sparked his team to high game of 643. Sherer's Men's Shop won high team set with a 1722 total. Jacobsen's Florists and Valdemar Landscapers won all three from Takoma Engineers and Carter-Lamhardt, respectively. Jacobsen's is out in front with 6-0.

Georgetown

The fast Georgetown Commercial League had its initial play last night at Georgetown, with the old reliable Sam Benson taking high individual game for his Hillows Cafe boys, while Flood, Richardson's Market, was best for the set with a 369. Georgetown Recreation and Hardy's Texaco Station split team highs with 571 and 1646, respectively. Hillows won all three from Washington Printers.

New Recreation

With Lieut. James Henry McIntyre, Air Service, rolling the first ball, the Recreation Businessmen's League got off to a good start at New Recreation with New England Restaurant, Fraternity Press, Homer Optical and New Recreation Lunch whitewashing their opponents at the night. J. Jake, New Recreation Lunch, was top man for the opening play with a 158 single and 375 set.

Anacostia

The Laundry League got off to a good beginning at Anacostia Spillway with Beach, Elite No. 2, best for the night with his 139 high single and 369 set. Carrol and Manhattan No. 1 split team highs after pinfalls of 577 and 1645, respectively, with both teams whitewashing opponents. Bergmann's No. 2 and Elite No. 2 also won all three.

Arcadia

The Navy League at Arcadia found that Joe Small, Aeronautics, and Bill Martin were tied for high individual set with 383 each although the former took high single honors with his 143. The Supplies and Accounts quintet won high-team game with its 609, while Adjutant and Inspectors were best for the set with a 1751 pinfall.

Bill Brodbeck, GW Soph Back, Out of School

Coach Bill Reinhart let it be known yesterday that he is not entirely satisfied with the progress of his George Washington University football team, which is entering its second week of practice. A good exxample of Reinhart's dissatisfaction was the fact that he sent the team through a drill Sunday afternoon.

Blocking seems to be the weak point for the Colonials. The downfield and offense blocking has not been what Coach Reinhart thinks is needed to carry the team through a tough schedule.

To add to Reinhart's worries, came announcement that Bill Brodbeck, highly touted sophomore back, will definitely not return to school this year. Brodbeck, a 215-pound fullback, was expected to be a big factor in the Colonial offense with his running and passing.

Another problem facing the G. W. coach is to find a tackle to replace Dan Snyder in the starting line-up. Snyder, who was injured Saturday in scrimmage against Maryland, will be out for about three weeks, according to Dr. Richard Castell, team physician.

Three sophs are fighting for the post left vacant by Snyder's injury. They are Dan Rosa, Walt Murphy and Bob Leonetti. Coach Reinhart has now lost three veteran tackles for the opening game.

Post Chess Meet Opens Action

The third in a series of Post Trophy Tournaments, to determine the winner of a magnificent set of hand-carved ivory chessmen costing $250, was begun at the Washington Chess Divan last night. The 35 remaining contestants are competing in four groups, two of which play each Monday evening at the Divan's quarters in the Parkside Hotel, and two of which meet each Tuesday evening, commencing tonight, at the Capital City Chess Club in the Hotel Gordon. The current series s known as the Mundelle Memorial Tournaments, in honor of Watson B. Mundelle, veteran Washington player who died recently.

A few of the games tonight will be staged at the Federal Security Chess Club in commemoration of the opening of its new quarters in Room B, at 2437 Fifteenth Street Northwest.

Carl A. Hesse, local master player, will meet all comers free of charge in a simultaneous exhibition to be played on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Washington Chess Divan.

Hoyas Lower Price For Schoolboy Fans

High and prep school students will be admitted to the Georgetown-Mississippi September 26 game for 25 cents, Rome Schwagel, graduate manager of athletics, announced last night.

Tickets will go on sale Thursday morning at the Georgetown Athletic office and next Monday morning at Griffith Stadium. A section of the bleachers will be reserved.

Hoyas to Scrimmage Middies Twice

Two Skirmishes Set For Tomorrow and Saturday at Academy

Public Is Excluded; Navy Will Inclose Field With Canvas

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Sept. 15.—Georgetown University, whose 1940 pigskin clan went places on the gridiron, will scrimmage Navy informally in football here Wednesday and Saturday.

Capt. T. S. King, Naval Academy athletic director, said the general public would be excluded from the sessions, to be held on a practice field surrounded by canvas.

It will be the second meeting of the teams on the practice field. The Hoyas and the Middies gave spectators a preseason treat at their joint session last year.

Capt. King said Georgetown would be the last college eleven to practice with the Middies before the Navy's opening encounter with William and Mary, September 27.

Penn State scrimmaged Navy last Friday and Saturday while approximately 2,000 naval officers, midshipmen, Navy Athletic Association members and newspapermen looked on. The Academy's athletic director said a fewer number of fans would be permitted to see the Georgetown-Navy scrimmages this week.

The Tars held a light workout to-injuries.

day, without contact work. Swede Larson, Middie mentor, had his teams run plays against various types of defense during hour and a half dummy-drill.

None of the sailors were injured in the practice against Penn State.

R. A. Jennings Paces East Potomac Public Links Qualifiers

Seay's 138, 2 Over Par, Low for Day

Leapley Medalist At Rock Creek; Smith, Champion, Second to Jennings

The defending champion, LeRoy Smith, of East Potomac, was safely under the qualifying limit but took a back seat to the man he defeated in last year's finals as the annual D. C. public links golf championships got under way yesterday on three courses.

With qualifying play lengthened to 36 holes, Smith turned in a 155 over his home range to place second to R. A. Jennings, 1940 runner-up, for the medal. Jennings had 149 over the par 72 layout, with consistent rounds of 75 and 74. Andy Oliveri, two-time champion, did not start.

Forty-seven players teed off for the morning round on the Potomac links, but only 34 turned in cards. At Rock Creek, where 17 hopefully hit off yesterday morning, the percentage of casualties was even greater. Seven hardy souls found their way to the thirty-sixth hole and reported their score.

Seay Has 138

Lowest total of the day was recorded at Anacostia, where W. W. Seay pounded around in 68-70, 138. The perennial pay-as-you-play qualifier was seven strokes better than Joe Lockwood, who managed for second with 145 over the par 136 course.

Rock Creek's qualifiers were paced by slender, 130-pound Bill Leapley. He started out with a one-under-par 33 in the morning, and wound up with 39, 37 and 39 for a 148 total.

Jack Crook beat out Bill Bailey by a stroke for second with 151.

Crook Has 32

Crook's opening nine was the lowest of the day. He hit the first turn in 32, but sagged woefully to 45 on the stiffer "B" course. In the afternoon he had nines of 36 and 38, sinking a 12-foot putt on the final green to nose out Bailey, who had finished earlier.

The flight of 16, eight from East Potomac and four each from Rock Creek and Anacostia, goes into the opening rounds of match play tomorrow. Two rounds will cut the field to four, and two more tomorrow will decide the 1941 title.

The Medal-Winning Team in the Match Play Pro-am

Top Grosner Tournament With 66; 2 Teams Tie for Second With 67s; Match Play Today

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Al Houghton, the Beaver Dam pro and Washington Open co-champ and Charley Malone, who's making the golf headlines as consistently as he did the football banners, won the medal with a best ball 66 in the Grosner Match Play Pro-Amateur yesterday at Manor Club.

The field was disappointing in numbers as only 18 teams played for the 16 match play berths, but several well-known out-of-town entrants showed up at the last minute, including Harry Haverstick, the Lancaster, Pa., amateur who went to the third round of the nationals and pros Reg. Kirkwood, of Philadelphia and W. A. (Lefty) Stackhouse, Seguin, Texas. Both came here from the Atlantic City Open.

Medalists Bag 14 Pars

Houghton and Malone played good partner golf and dropped 14 pars and a quartet of birdies for the round. Malone birdied the fourth, barely missing the green in two from the new back tee while his pro partner rammed home birds on 8, 12 and 16, only one a long putt. Houghton was shooting around 70 himself and Charley saved them several times on the back nine from missing par figures.

Lewis Worsham, jr., and Ralph Bogart, 1939 winners and comedalists last year, losing in a third playoff, just missed a medal tie again this year. They needed a par four on the eighteenth for a 66 but both missed the green in regulation figures and took fives for a 67.

Cliff Spencer and Claude Rippy could not better a 67 despite two eagles, Spencer chipping in from off the ninth green for an eagle 3, while Rippy knocked a wedge shot into the cup from 75 yards off the twelfth green for an eagle deuce. They were off to a bad start, however, missing par on the first and third holes.

Two Teams Tie at 68

Two teams tied with best ball of 68 for the third lowest score of the day, Levi Yoder, the Annapolis Roads pro, and Ken Lafferty, host club amateur, who paired well together, and Rut Coffey, Hagerstown's mid-Atlantic P. G. A. champ, with Erford Barnes, of the Maryland four-ball championship duo.

The defending champion team was broken up when Otto Greiner could not obtain leave from work. Kirkwood, who has been playing big-time tournament golf for a year, arrived late from Atlantic City and with M. W. Whittlesey, of Manor, for a partner turned in a 69. Stackhouse, a prominent Texas pro, also took a substitute partner, Leland Abrams, and barely made the grade with a 74. Stackhouse was off his game after the

Two Date Changes In Golf Tourney Dates Announced

Mrs. Myron Davy, captain of Washington's intercity women's golf team, announced last night the second match of the season with Baltimore had been moved back from October 3 to October 13, at Congressional Country Club. Reason was the conflict of the match with the Congressional Invitation Tournament, October 1-2-3.

Maryland State Golf Association officials switched the pro-amateur tournament at Woodholme this week from Wednesday to Friday, due to a conflict with the Grosner championship at Manor.

A field of 175 women golfers will compete today for the Times-Herald Cups, 87 Class A players at Congressional and 88 Class B linkswomen at Kenwood.

Bosox Defeat Chisox, 6 to 1; Sweep Series

By the Associated Press

Boston, Sept. 15 (AP).—For the first time this season the Boston Red Sox ran a winning streak into seven consecutive games today as they cleaned up the three-game series with the Chicago White Sox with a 6-to-1 victory.

It was the end of the Chicago-Boston 1941 season; the Red Sox took 16 of the 22 games.

Ted Williams got his thirty-fifth homer with two on in the four-run seventh. Mickey Harris started the scoring in the seventh, when, with one out, he singled. Dom DiMaggio beat out a bunt in front of the plate and Finney's single to center scored Harris.

After Joe Cronin popped out, Williams got his homer off John Rigney, his only hit of the game in three times at bat.

Montreal Wins Way Into Cup Finals, 11-8

Montreal, Sept. 15 (AP).—The Montreal Royals moved into the International League's Governors' Cup finals tonight by defeating the Buffalo Bisons, 11 to 8, in a wild seventh game of the best-of-seven series.

A crowd of more than 15,000 watched the Bisons use 18 players in a vain attempt to stop the Royals in a game that saw six errors by the Herd and three by Montreal.

Buffalo shoved across three runs in the first inning while routing Al Sherer, but the Royals made six hits, three errors and a walk good for eight counters in the same frame, and stayed in front all the way after that.

The Royals open their best-of-seven final series with Newark Wednesday night at Newark.

Philadelphia, Sept. 15.—A tenth-inning single off Pitcher Fred Caliguiri's glove gave the St. Louis Browns their third straight triumph over the Philadelphia Athletics today, 4-3.

Harlond Clift's sizzling drive came with the bases loaded, and sent Joe Grace in with the counter. Grace had opened the extra inning with a double off the scoreboard.

The Browns gave Pitcher Bob Harris a 3-0 lead in the fourth when Roy Cullenbine tripled, Grace walked and John Berardino smashed a long two-bagger. Rick Ferrell promptly brought Berardino home with a single.

Hasty Notion Beats Favored Boston Man in Albemarle Purse

Late Drive Nets Length Triumph

Masked General Runs Third, Seven Lengths Back; Victor Pays Backers $29.30

By Clocker Mike.

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 15.—Hasty Notion, claimed by Brad Brodsky from J. E. Widener for $3,500, came back today in the Albemarle Purse and got up in a stretch drive to score by a length over the odds-on favorite Boston Man. The latter was about seven lengths in advance of Masked General.

Hasty Notion, a three-year-old son of Haste, was a little lacking on early foot, and in the opening quarter he had only one horse beat. Boston Man at this stage was well in front of the field and had never been turned loose. Nearing the half mile pole it appeared that Masked General was the horse to beat when he went through on the inside of Trois Pistoles to move into the job of chasing the leader.

However, on the turn, Bobby Merritt sent the ultimate winner to the outside and he began picking up horses. First it was Trois Pistole and then he went around Masked General. At this stage, Lynch served notice on Boston Man and it appeared that he was going on about his business to register an easy score. This, however, was Hasty Notion's day and he was not to be denied. Merritt kept to his task and when they reached the sixteenth pole he had reached the leader. Hasty Notion drew out in the final sixteenth and was going away under hard punishment by Merritt.

The win, the first of the year for Hasty Notion, was not expected by the crowd of 8,000 and he returned the good sum of $29.30. He was making his fourth start for Brodsky and has not been worse than fifth while racing in handicaps. The good router, under the light weight of 100 pounds, covered the mile and a sixteenth over a fast track in 1:45 3-5. Boston Man was made 4-5 due to his being beaten only a neck by War Relic, which beat Whirlaway in Saturday's Narragansett Special.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PONY BALLET, $3.30, $3.00, $2.70; SHE DAST, $10.00, $6.40; VOUCHER, $4.30.

PONY BALLET, much the best, was never extended and won well in hand. SHE DAST moved up gradually while racing on the outside, but was no match for the winner. VOUCHER was never far out of it and came well in the closing stages. QUEENS DELIGHT was closest to the leader until entering the stretch and then faltered.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 2:29. Off at 2:30½. Winner, J. Thoue's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOANNY, $10.70, $8.00, $6.10; TINY TRICK, $28.30, $20.50; HAPPY HOSTESS, $8.60.

JOANNY went around BLABLAH when asked, opened a long lead and was an easy winner. TINY TRICK came from far back after being in close quarters early. HAPPY HOSTESS was close up from the start and hung on well. DOCKET was in close quarters on the turn and went to the extreme outside to be going best at the end. BILL K. ran an even race, but could not better his position.

Daily Double, PONY BALLET and JOANNY, Paid $24.60

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1500. The Elkton. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:00. Off at 3:01. Winner, Circle M. Ranch Stable's dk. br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CURIOUS ROMAN, $7.00, $3.70, $2.70; BARUNA, $4.20, $2.70; CANDLESTICK, $2.70.

CURIOUS ROMAN took the lead at once, was steadied along while setting the pace and was forced to a drive to stave off the bid of BARUNA. The latter moved into contention after a quarter while racing on the outside, but could not reach the winner. CANDLESTICK moved nearest the leader after a quarter and weakened. CROW WILDER tired gradually after the first quarter.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1500. The Crisfield. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:29. Off at 3:30½. Winner, B. F. Christmas' blk. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RUSSIA, $6.30, $3.60, $2.30; ICE WATER, $4.10, $2.70; ONE TIP, $2.30.

RUSSIA was outrun early, took the overland route while moving and just managed to get a photo finish. ICE WATER was closest to the pace early, came through on the rail entering the stretch and appeared to have taken a slight lead. However, Russia just lasted in the stretch duel. ONE TIP opened a long lead early while running easily, was rated while setting the pace, but could not resist the top ones when they began to move. TONY STEEL was never a serious factor after being outrun to the first turn.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1500. The Albemarle. Class C. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:02. Off at 4:03½. Winner, B. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HASTY MOTION, $29.30, $8.40, $4.10; BOSTON MAN, $2.80, $2.30; MASKED GENERAL, $2.60.

HASTY MOTION moved on the outside of the field, reached the leader inside the eighth pole and gradually wore him down. BOSTON MAN was sent to the front at once under a strong hold, responded when shaken up in the final quarter, but was unable to resist the winner. MASKED GENERAL moved up with a rush on the back-stretch and then faltered. ABBE PIERRE caught tired horses in the last half mile.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:31. Off at 4:33½. Winner, G. Perry's br. rig. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CONNIE PLAUT, $11.90, $5.80, $5.80; BUSY FINGERS, $4.80, $3.70; BLOCKADER, $9.60.

CONNIE PLAUT was outrun early, came to the extreme outside and got up in the final strides. BUSY FINGERS moved into contention gradually, took command on the turn and gave way to PERSIAN QUEEN; he then got to the front again inside the eighth pole and was just beaten. BLOCKADER was in close quarters for a half and then came well. PERSIAN QUEEN moved up gradually to take command at the eighth pole and hung slightly in the final drive.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:32. Off at 5:33. Winner, M. B. Goss' ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOT MAN, $14.10, $6.60, $5.10; MINTSON, $8.00, $4.60; RHODIUM, $3.90.

HOT MAN, under good rating from the start, went wide at the first turn, held away throughout and was all out at the end. MINTSON made his move on the outside, but could not reach the winner. RHODIUM saved ground while moving to the leader, but hung in the final drive. STAND ALONE closed well.

Whirlaway vs. War Relic Again?

By the Associated Press

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 15 (AP).—Narragansett Park today offered a purse of $25,000 for the winner of a match race between Samuel D. Riddle's colt, War Relic, and Calumet Farm's colt, Whirlaway.

The offer was made in telegrams sent by James E. Dooley, president of the Narragansett racing Association, who set a date on September 27 over a mile and three-sixteenths.

The association offered also a trophy, and added it would contribute an additional $5,000 to the United Service Organizations if the horse owners accept.

—At The Post

Dear Al:

The Havre de Grace session got off to a fine start Saturday when the crowd of 15,000 sent a total of 468,488 through the mutuel machines. With the kind of weather they had opening day, they had no excuses for not betting whatever they expected. The conditions were ideal and they had an excellent card. Another starter is expected in the Potomac Handicap due to Trainer Preston Burch wiring McLennan that he would ship Mrs. F. A. Sherman's Sun Eager, a brother of the good stakes winner Sun Egret, here from New York. Trainer Howard Wells arrived from Narragansett with a string of six. Included in the shipment were Walmac Farm's Bushwhacker and David Straus' Daily Trouble, two eligibles for the Potomac. Another in the shipment was Yale O'Nine, which is eligible for the $15,000 Added Havre de Grace Handicap, to be run closing day of the meeting. The most promising race shown by Bushwhacker recently was when he finished second in the Washington Park Handicap, beaten only a half a length by the mighty Big Pebble. R. Sterling Clark's Colchis, which dead-heated Alsab in the Eastern Shore, will not be started until the Laurel meeting, when he will strive for top money in the Richard Johnson Stakes. G. R. Watkins registered the first claim of the meeting when he took Good Conduct, favorite in Saturday's last race, from L. W. Ulmer for $1,250. Good Conduct came out of the race with a slight bow and will be out of competition for a spell. Eddie Brennan, recently appointed director of racing at the winter meeting in New Orelans, was a visitor and announced that he was leaving for the South last night. He will return to Baltimore this coming Sunday. The management announced that the $10 fee due the groom of the winning horse, will be taken out of the winner's purse. This means that in a race with a $1,000 purse, where the winner's share is $700, he will receive only $690. There's a lot of distributing going along around here. Charlie McLennan is issuing books for the Hialeah meeting this winter and John Turner, sr., race secretary at the coming Laurel session, is passing out books for his course. After being dead-heated in the Eastern Shore Handicap Saturday, Mrs. Albert Sabath's Alsab will leave for New York this morning to prep for his engagement with Requested in the special match race. While Alsab was performing here, Requested accounted for his race in New York. BILL.

First race—OUR BLEN is in good hands and has worked well enough to take care of this field of 2-year-olds. WITNESS STAND is a consistent sort and must be given a chance. VALDINA ZEST showed good races out west and has trained well.

Second race—CUCKOO MAN has been performing around New York and past races say he should take these into camp. MISS HAPPY has been rested and might even take the top one. BOLD TURK has gone away back but must be given a chance with this field.

Third race—BASILEUS was beaten only a length by Spare the Rod last out in New York and off that race appears the best bet of the day. PILATESUN has never started but is a well-bred runner. TURKEY WINGS has been placed a little highly in recent starts.

Fourth race—ON THE LEVEL was second in several starts before reaching the winners' circle, but when she did score it was in impressive fashion. PRETTY LADY has been on several occasions and is the one to beat. BUM'S RUSH is one of E. R. Bradley's youngsters and may upset the cart.

Fifth race—CANROLL came from out of the clouds to be second to Cape Cod, and I believe he deserves the call here. Has never been worse than second and is making his first start over a dsitance. SIR ALFRED has been proven a good one and is the contender. BALL PLAYER got real good up North and will be a factor.

Sixth race—SCROOGE has been racing well in New York and must be given the call over this field of routers. GINOCA is another one of Bedwell's and has always been partial to this racing strip. PANORAMSCOPE appears to have gone back a little but must be considered.

Seventh race—ESCOLAR was a good second last out at New England while racing for $3000 and should have little trouble with these. LANTE is as fit as ever and will likely furnish the contention. SPARROW CHIRP could be a threat off best efforts but is very erratic.

Eighth race—CANSTING has been given a race over this track and was a good second. Off that race I'm going to take her to win this marathon. ALSANG has always preferred this distance, or more, so can't be overlooked. WICKET is very cheap but may get a share of the purse.

Best bet—BASILEUS.

CLOCKER MIKE'S SELECTIONS

1—Witness Stand, Olympian, Oops.
2—Dulla, Bold Turk, Cuckoo-Man.
3—War Won, Basileus, Bar Ship.
4—Pretty Lady, Hedda Gab, Ariels Elite.
5—Canroll, Sir Alfred, Ball Player.
6—Ginoca, Scrooge, Time Sheet.
7—Butcher Boy, Escolar, Unknown Land.
8—Cansting, Quill, Alsang.
Best bet—Ginoca.

Watch Over Wins Narragansett Race In Record Time

By the Associated Press

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 15.—Mort Stuart's Watch Over today ran the fastest six furlongs of the Narragansett Park race meeting when he won the $1,600 Greenwood purse in 1:11 1-5.

The favored Watch Over, a candidate for Saturday's James C. Thornton Memorial handicap, sprinted out front soon after the break and held the advantage.

Second, three quarters of a length back, was Anthony Pupino's Charm Bracelet. Jim Read's Taking Ways was third by only a nose.

Watch Over paid $5.20, $2.90 and $2.40. Charm Bracelet brought $3.90 and $2.80 and Taking Ways $3.20.

Garfinckel Net In Year Rises To $277,279

Julius Garfinckel & Co., Inc., Washington department store, yesterday reported net income of $277,279 in the fiscal year ended July 31, equivalent after preferred stock dividend requirements to $1.84 a share on common stock. This compares with $240,053 or $1.50 a share in the previous fiscal year.

Commenting on the year's results, President William E. Schmid told stockholders at a meeting yesterday at the offices in Fairfax, Va., that net sales for the year increased $686,340 or 26.2 per cent over the previous year's volume. Net sales were $4,653,803 and $3,687,263, respectively, in the years ended July 31, 1941 and July 31, 1940.

"The increase," said Mr. Schmid, "has been a steady and consistent one as evidenced by the fact that the percentage of increase in the first six months of this fiscal year was 25.17 and in the last six months, 27.5."

Net profit after the deduction of all charges against income, but before the provision for income and excess profits taxes, amounted to $379,279. This shows an increase of $73,826 over the net profit of $305,453 before taxes a year previous.

Because of higher Federal taxation, including the excess profit tax, a provision of $102,000 was made in the latest fiscal year against $65,700 a year ago.

Net earning after taxes were 3.7 times dividend requirements on the preferred stock, against 3.2 times in the previous fiscal year.

Regular dividends at the rate of 6 per cent per annum were paid on the preferred stock on September 30 and December 31, 1940 and on March 31, and June 30, 1941; and at the rate of 17½ cents quarterly on the common stock on September 14, and December 14, 1940, and on March 31 and June 30, 1941. The total amount of dividends paid to all stockholders was $152,012.39 and $126,268.93 was carried to earned surplus.

Current assets are $1,628,225.84, compared with current liabilities of $354,912.71, a ratio of 3.1 to 1.

U. S. Big Buyer Of Chlorine

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—The Wall Street Journal said today "the mystery behind the shortage in chlorine, hardest to get chemical in America, finally can be revealed.

"The primary, but hitherto secret, reason for the shortage is the huge and unexpected demand from Government arsenals for the production of war gases.

"For several months the chemical industry has been trying to explain the situation without giving away a closely guarded War Department secret.

"The shortage has been obvious. A score of big industries dependent on it for peace-time as well as defense production have been growing more and more worried about their supplies.

"Until the chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, Maj. Gen. William N. Porter, made a speech a few days ago before the American Chemical Society and revealed officially that poison gas is being produced by the Army in quantity, the chemical industry could not discuss the matter."

Steel Operations Decline 0.8%

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—Operations in the steel industry this week declined to 96.1 per cent of capacity, 02 .8 of 1 per cent from last week, the American Iron & Steel Institute reported today.

A month ago the rate was 96.2 per cent of capacity, and a year ago 92.9 per cent.

Defense Bond Questionaire

Q. What are the Nation's retail stores doing to help National Defense?

A. They are uniting in a huge program to sell Defense Savings Stamps, inaugurated today at the beginning of Retailers-for-Defense Week—September 15 to 20—in most communities throughout the land.

Q. What is the object of Retailers-for-Defense Week?

A. To set going the greatest sales drive ever put behind a single product—the "product" being Defense Savings Stamps, exchangeable for Defense Savings Bonds.

Note—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest postoffice, bank or savings and loan association, or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington. Also stamps are now on sale at most retail stores.

Liberty Aircraft Buys Autocar Common Stock

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—An option held by Liberty Aircraft Products Corporation to purchase from Phoenix Securities Corporation 100,000 shares of Autocar Co. common stock has been exercised, Walter S. Mack, jr., Phoenix president, announced today.

The aircraft concern, which has a plant at Farmingdale, Long Island, had optioned the stock in the Ardmore, Pa., truck manufacturer at $15 a share. Autocar has outstanding 193,000 common shares.

Liberty paid Phoenix $500,000 cash and gave a one-year 2 per cent note, secured by the stock, for the balance.

Fewer Business Failures

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—Industrial and commercial failures increased slightly during the past week over the preceding Labor Day week, but were the fewest for any full working week so far in 1941, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today. The number of insolvencies was 169 compared with 249 in the same week a year ago.

Charge Balances Decline

The Commerce Department says that charge-account balances of department stores declined 2.1 per cent at the end of June compared with the end of May, in line with a seasonal trend. The June end of the month level was 70.4 per cent of the December, 1939, figure.

Sell the Business as Well as the Product, Is Advice to Order-Swamped Advertisers

In the face of the deepening national emergency, business management requires a fresh orientation. Undoubtedly it is not in the cards for companies to make a financial killing out of the war-time situation, and to do so would be distasteful to most patriotic Americans in any circumstances.

In laying down the rule, "No war-time millionaires," the Administration has been seeking through high corporation income and excess profits taxes to avert what it regards as undue enrichment from the armament boom.

Thus, if circumstances tend to put a ceiling on financial profit in this period, what should the objective be of chief executives of corporations whose shares are distributed among the investing public?

This is not an academic question. Whenever I meet with business executives, the query comes up.

In the current batch of mail, there is a letter of inquiry to this column from the chief executive of a nationally known corporation whose shares are listed on the New York Stock Exchange. He asks: "Here is a point on which I would very much appreciate your advice. The other day I was having a private luncheon meeting with approximately 20 businessmen at which time the subject of advertising was being discussed. The question was: Should organizations continue advertising when they are unable to fulfill even a small proportion of the volume of business they could reasonably expect from such effort? I expressed the viewpoint to these men that in my opinion advertising appropriations should be maintained if for no other reason than to preserve freedom of the press and that copy should be adjusted along institutional lines for the purpose of educating the public to the fact that business does have character. Your views and reaction to this comment I made would be extremely valued by me."

If the counters of corporate success during the emergency period cannot be merely money gains, which are limited by the tax structure, then it seems to be important for management to concentrate on psychological and other props which will enable the company to survive unimpaired through the abnormal period ahead. This program of striving for permanence involves internal strengthening of management policies and also an effort on the outside to assure that customers and the general public think well of the enterprise.

If corporate external good will among customers and the general public and internal good will among employes and stockholders can be enhanced during this period, then management will be chalking up values of great importance to the enterprise. Educational advertising of the type outlined in this writer's brochure entitled "Sell the Business as Well as the Product" can help achieve these objectives, and is especially timely under present conditions when there is an advantage in sensibly increasing wise expenditures rather than inflating the net income before taxes.

FDIC Issues Special Call On Deposits

Pointing out that the deposits of insured banks had increased more than 36 per cent since 1938, Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, yesterday announced that all insured banks will be asked to report to the corporation as of September 24 the proportion of their deposits that are protected under FDIC's $5000 individual insurance limitation.

Supplementary data covering deposits protected under hypothetical $10,000 and $25,000 individual insurance limits also are being called for.

"It has been three years since we asked insured banks to supply us with information concerning the extent of insurance coverage within the individual institutions," Mr. Crowley said in his announcement of the special call.

Big Increase Cited

"During that period deposits have increased by 36 per cent. Not only has the amount of deposits grown enormously during the last three years, but there have occurred changes in the distribution of deposits which may alter insurance coverage considerably. It consequently becomes imperative for us to learn what effect these changes have had upon the pattern of our risk. As heretofore, we are trying to make compilation of the required figures as easy as possible for insured banks, making announcement well in advance of the call date, and distributing necessary forms in ample time to permit study before the task actually is begun."

As of September 21, 1938, last date for which such information was gathered, insured commercial banks reported total deposits of 48 billion dollars, of which 45 per cent was protected under the $5,000 insurance limit. The 49 mutual savings banks insured on that date reported total deposits of one billion, of which 90 per cent came under the $5,000 maximum.

Coverage Jumps

The 1938 figures showed that raising individual coverage to $10,000 would have increased insured deposits to $24,800,000,000, or about 50 per cent of the total, while an increase of coverage to $25,000 would have increased insured deposits to $28,700,000,000, or nearly 60 per cent of total deposits.

The number of banks whose deposits were completely insured would have increased from 456 under a $5,000 limit to 2,078 with a $10,000 limit and to 6,001 with a $25,000 limit.

Figures for September 21, 1938, showed that the $5,000 limit fully protected 984 of every 1,000 depositors in insured banks. An increase to $10,000 would have extended complete protection to 993 of each 1,000 depositors, while a $25,000 limitation would have protected fully 997 of each 1,000.

Compilation of the data received in response to the call for September 24 will not be completed until late in the year.

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—Hedging based on larger spot sales and an expanding crop movement combined with profit-taking today to force cotton futures quotations down 18 to 21 points.

Trade circles said that the current high prices for cotton seemed to have increased selling in the South. Indications were that mills would await the effect on futures of hedging in volume before adding to raw supplies.

Government consumption figures were about in line with expectations. Domestic mills consumed 874,113 bales of cotton during August, 171,000 of which came from mill stocks.

Port receipts Saturday, 17,367 bales; port stocks, 3,181,626 bales.

Strengthening Of Grain Futures Market Urged

Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 15 (AP).—Philip R. O'Brien, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, today urged that grain marketing practices developed through the years, including the futures market, should be retained and strengthened in order to assist in clearing the Nation's surplus and guard against the evils of price fixing.

In a speech before the convention of the Grain & Feed Dealers' National Association here, O'Brien declared the machinery for distributing surpluses cannot be too complete.

He outlined a plan for movement abroad of domestic surpluses "when peace comes" through a system of direct compensation to exporters for losses they would sustain by buying crops from United States farmers at American prices and selling them abroad at low world prices. This compensation, he said, could come from custom receipts.

"I believe that in return to the countries who purchase our export commodities, we should permit them to export to us certain prorated items which would allow them to secure the exchange to meet their payments for our commodities. Such a plan would go a long way in retaining world peace and in adjusting farm income to well over what it is now."

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Sept. 15 (AP).—After an early break that carried grain prices down a cent or more and soybeans as much as 4¼ cents, board of trade futures markets steadied today and closed with part of the losses regained.

Profit taking attracted by the recent extreme price advance and some hedging against purchases of cash grain by commercial interests, particularly wheat, corn and oats, accounted for most of the selling. Increased receipts at some terminals, attracted by four-year peak prices established last week, arrival of the first run of new corn and approach of the period when corn and soybean harvest will be in full swing were bearish factors.

Responding to some short covering and mill buying, wheat at one stage showed net gains of as much as ⅝ cent but this period of firmness was short lived. Wheat closed unchanged to ½ lower compared with Saturday. September 1.18⅝, December 1.22¼@1.22⅜; corn, ⅝@⅞ down, September 78⅝, December 84; oats unchanged to ⅝ off; rye ⅛@¾ down; soybeans 3@3¼ lower and lard 10 to 13 lower.

Bank Debits Rise More Than Billion Above Year Ago

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that check debits reported by banks in 274 leading cities totaled $8,891,000,000 in the week ended September 10, compared with $7,683,000,000 in the corresponding week last year.

Last week's total, however, was slightly below the $9,076,000,000 of the preceding week.

Specialties Hold Gains of Fractions to a Point; Many Leaders Finish in Minus Territory

New York, Sept. 15.—It was another case of individual favoritism so far as today's lethargic stock market was concerned.

An assortment of specialties managed to hold gains of fractions to around a point but numerous leaders never got anywhere and many finished in minus territory.

Prices were at the best in the morning. Thereafter trends turned spotty and, while dealings slackened appreciably, few comebacks were negotiated.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 43.5. Of 692 issues traded, 248 were up, 223 down and 221 unchanged. Transfers ofo 463,850 shares, compared with 519,170 in the preceding full session.

While international developments were without any especially depressing effect marketwise, brokers said, many customers remained aloof pending shifts at Washington expected with the reassembling of Congress. The business outlook remained moderately encouraging but there were flaws even here.

Only a drop in this week's estimated steel mill operations, due mainly to suspensions for repairs, put a brake on shares in this group. Motors were at a standstill as the OPM announced December automobile production would be cut 48.4 per cent under the same month last year in order to conserve scarce materials for national defense.

Western Union edged into new high ground for 1941, along with Postal Telegraph preferred, on the report a Senate committee had tentatively recommended the merger of these communications systems. Postal clung to a modest advance but W. U. backed down to Saturday's final quotation

Wilson & Co. and California Packing also made new tops for the year and Cudahy and Armour tilted forward as the thought arose that mounting food prices might be reflected in forthcoming earnings of these concerns. Deere established a new peak and International Harvester and Oliver Farm improved as hopes for bigger agricultural demand for machinery were maintained. Heavier armament requirements bolstered such aircrafts as Douglas, Glenn Martin, Sperry and Aviation Corporation.

United States Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors and Chrysler were without variation. A trifle in arrears were United States Rubber, Anaconda, Consolidated Edison, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, General Electric and International Nickel, Du Pont and Eastman Kodak lost a point or so each.

Active gainers of small amounts in the curb included Bell Aircraft, Fairchild Engine, Gulf Oil, Electric Bond & Share, Republic Aviation, International Petroleum and Phoenix Securities. Turnover here was about 132,000 shares, versus 138,000 last Friday.

Except for a small group of strong foreign dollar issues, price changes in today's bond market were small and the trend mixed.

Trading was at the slowest pace since June 2 at $4,282,700, par value, compared with $5,411,450 last Friday. The Associated Press average of 10 foreign issues attained a new 1941 high at 50.5, up .7 of a point. It was the fourth time in a week this group had pushed into new high levels.

Among gainers of 1 to around 5 points were Warsaw City 7s at 9½, Oriental Development 5½s at 41, Greek 6s at 17⅛, Cuba 5½s at 103, Australia 5s at 77 and Canada 3¼s at 94.

Domestic loans adding small sums included International Telephone 5s at 51¾, Delaware & Hudson refunding 4s at 52⅝, American Telephone 3s at 112, Western Union 5s at 85⅝ and Shell Union 2½s at 98¼.

On the losing end were, among others, International Mercantile Marine 6s, Lehigh Valley 4s, Armour 4s, Walworth 4s, Texas Corporation 3s, Southern Railway 4s, Pere Marquette 5s and Nickel Plate 4½s.

U. S. Governments lost a little ground on both the Stock Exchange and over the counter.

Commodities Ease; Soybeans Off 3 Cents

By the Associated Press

Major commodity futures prices generally eased lower under a burden of hedging and profit taking which overbalanced the buying interest.

Soybean futures at Chicago, easily influenced after a prolonged uptrend, lost 3 to 3¼ cents a bushel. Wheat was unchanged to ½ cent a bushel lower, and corn was down ⅝ to ⅞ of a cent. Livestock held about steady, with hogs 5 to 15 cents a hundredweight higher.

New York cotton futures turned downward and closed 90 cents to $1.05 a bale under previous quotations. Cottonseed oil lost about 1-10 of a cent a pound.

Domestic sugar contracts were firm, but world contracts eased. Rio coffee quotations were up a shade, but the more important Santos contract was lower. Cocoa and rubber futures dipped.

long drive and holed a 12-footer for a six on the eighteenth to avert a playoff.

Two Duos Get Break

The Front Royal team of Eddie Morgan and W. H. Hawley, jr., left too early for home, thinking they were out of it, and the teams of Al Jamison and George Miller, and John Flattery and S. H. Palmer got in without a playoff. All had 75s.

This morning's feature first-round match will pit the medalists against Mel Shorey and Eddie Ault, of Indian Spring. Most of the favored teams should get by first-round encounter for some good scraps this afternoon. Semifinals and finals will be tomorrow.

pitch and Paul promptly threw a strike that Dixie never saw. Durocher stood on the home plate, despite Catcher Ernie Lombardi's energetic shoving, and talked. All of which meant nothing. Dixie conveniently popping out to make the point academic.

The bench jockeys were active and Allen nearly tangled with McKechnie and Red Coach Jewelens in the fourth on what they were saying from the coaching boxes.

McKechnie Says He Won't Protest

Cincinnati, Sept. 15 (U.P.).—Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds tonight said he would not protest today's Reds-Brooklyn game, which Brooklyn won 5 to 1 in 17 innings.

McKechnie said his reason for not filing a protest on the contest, which ended in darkness, was because the matter of whether there was sufficient light for baseball came under the head of "umpire's judgment."

"It was a mistake to start the seventeenth inning and another mistake not to call the game when darkness descended, but there is no appeal from an umpires judgment," McKechnie said.

Chase to Oppose Tigers, Seeking 5th Straight for Nats

Washington's four-game winning streak will be entrusted today to the care of Ken Chase, who will oppose "Schoolboy" Rowe in the finale of the three-game series with the Tigers.

The Nats will be seeking a clean sweep of the Detroit series and attempting also to score their sixteenth victory in the 22 games between the clubs this season.

Manager Bucky Harris, pleased with the play of Rookie Charley Letchas, will retain him at second base today, but against the right-handed pitching of Rowe he may replace Jimmy Bloodworth at third with Rookie Hillis Layne, late of Chattanooga.

The Nats now have designs on sixth place, only two games distant in the possession of the Browns.

Sport Club Bows To Palace A. C., 1-0

Frank Deavers pitched two-hit ball for the Palace Athletic Club as his mates scored a run in the seventh and last inning to beat Maryland Sport Club, 1 to 0, last night in Ballston. Bill Kennedy was the loser, although he allowed but five hits. The winning run was scored on an error.

Jacobsen Florists defeated Washington Apaches, 7 to 6, with Wells starring in relief, hurling hitless ball from the sixth inning.

Bill Cunningham:

Dodgers Get Literary 'Kiss Of Death'

Personally, I'm inclined to see doom ahead of the Brooklyn baseballers because they've had such a perfectly beautiful book written about them. That's not any way to pick baseball percentages, possibly, and I don't know why laudatory literary treatment should almost inevitably prove to be the kiss of death, but that's the way matters seem to work out in this cockeyed world.

Cunningham

Just before Mr. Joseph Louis Barrow was due to engage at fisticuffs with a rickety relic of better fistic days, a Herr Maxamilian Otto Siegfried, etc. Schmeling, a biography done in such awesome adoration it had practically a holy overtone, came pumping from the presses, timed to coincide with the epic battle. It must have been the book—there was no other plausible way of explaining it—but Mr. Barrow collected the one complete pasting of his life that evening. In fact, Herr Schmeling pasted him to the linoleum so completely that it looked for a while as if his help would need a hoe to scrape him loose.

Then there was the similar case of that mordacious monstrosity, Signor Antonio Galento, sometimes laughingly known as the Beer Barrel Poker. A local Boswell of the Mosquito News squashed him between boards just prior to his collision with this same Mr. Barrow. This was another extremely rhapsodic job of adjectival basket weaving. The hero was painted as just a great big lovable overgrown boy, who patted children on the head, helped old ladies across the street, made no bother for the gendarmerie and was on cordial terms with the clergy.

This paragon thereupon walked forth to war, looking strangely like a pig in the southern half of a bathing suit. Because he threw a blow the likes of which hasn't been seen in public since Cain hit Abel, he did knock Mr. Barrow into a sudden seat upon the deck. But Mr. Barrow arose, and proceeded to work on him like a maniac beating a bass drum for the succeeding couple of stanzas and the Signor, at the conclusion of the midsummer's interlude, looked like a tank that had been struck by a battleship's broadside and then anointed with a hogshead full of ketchup.

"Only Brooklyn Has the Dodgers"

The moral would seem to be, "Don't count your pickings before they're latched."

There've been other sad disasters, but we want to get along to this one. This is really a beautiful and heartfelt tribute, entitled, "The Dodgers of 1941—Today and Yesterday in Brooklyn Baseball." The literary style is early Boy Scout crossed with some of the more lyrical passages from the brassiere ads.

Here's a typical paragraph: "Some teams play ball for the sake of the ball game. Some play for the gate. Some—we don't know why they play ball at all. And some teams play such perfect ball that it's no fun to watch them win and win and win. But the Dodgers—again they are different. Dodger victory always comes after the longest struggles—26 innings, 23 innings, 17 innings, or by one run in the ninth as Leo squeezes over a perfect bunt. Or, with the bases full of enemies, by an acrobatic double play which only a Dodger could execute.

"Defeat comes like a skulking thing . . ." but this, as the lady said, is where your correspondent frowed up.

Old Daz Was Some Character

The book quits being pixie and gets adult in one place. That's a sort of memorial section devoted to such immortal Dodger veterans as Wee Willie Keeler, Nap Rucker, Dazzy Vance, Zack Wheat and Uncle Robbie. Several of the scribes now tailing along behind this circus have put cotton in their ears long enough to say it's considerable of a plain and fancy dad-burned shame that the Dodgers of another era could never set up a World Series spot for a pitcher such as Dazzy Vance.

Ol' Daz—he was in there just ahead of Ol' Diz. The legends about him are myriad and some are funny, indeed. There was one about the time he'd been out on the town and showed up next day at the ball park with a head as big as the dawn that comes up like thunder out of China 'crost the bay.

"I was aiming to pitch you," complained Uncle Robbie in his still small voice. "Get out there and chase some flies and maybe the sun will boil it out of you."

Ol' Daz chased a few, but eventually came back to the bench, sat down in the shade and went fast asleep. The game rocked along with him snoring like a band saw tearing through South Louisiana pine. Brooklyn was way behind as usual, but a rally of puny parts started late in the pastime and some of the younger players, as younger players will, moved out to the fire step and began to yip it up.

"Just a minute, you fellers," Uncle Robbie yodeled in his querulous treble, "not quite so loud. You might wake up Mr. Vance."

runs, and slugged him into the showers.

It was well they did, because with the advent of Dizzy Trout in the second inning the Nats were held scoreless until the ninth. Leonard, however, was doing a job of it himself, and until the eighth he allowed only three hits. For one stretch of five innings he pitched hitless ball.

Newhouser didn't get any of the three first three batters out. He walked Case, Cramer singled and Letchas drove in the first run with a single to right. The second scored while Travis was grounding out.

Briefly, in the second inning, the Tigers tied the score at 2-to-2 on Higgins' double to center, Tebbetts' infield hit and Perry's long double to left, but the Nats bounced right back with three more runs.

Leonard in Trouble Once

Evans' single launched the rally and with two out Case walked, and Cramer beat out a slow grounder down the first base line, Evans scoring from second on the play with a rapid sprint. After Letchas walked filling the bases, Travis got two more runs home with his 200th hit of the year.

Leonard was in trouble in the eighth when singles by Radcliff and McCosky, and York's triple narrowed the Nats' lead to 5-4. York was on third with the tying run with only one out, but Leonard took a hitch in his belt, fanned the dangerous Bruce Campbell, and then threw out Higgins personally.

As a precautionary measure the Nats went out and got three more runs in the eighth off Bud Thomas. Ortiz commenced it with a single to left and was sacrificed to second. Evans drew a walk and Leonard sacrificed both runners along. Case's speed netted the first run. He beat out a slow grounder to Higgins as Ortiz scored. Cramer then slammed a long double to center and the fleet Case, on first, followed Evans across the plate.

Evans, catching Leonard's knuckle ball for the first time in his life, was no drawback. He was not charged with a passed ball until the ninth. The Nats, generally, acted like a very nice ball club yesterday.

Pieces of Haight

and Rosalind Russell stuck her head in and asked, sweetly: "Mr. Haight, I wish you would come over to Set 5 and see me do a scene from 'Her Honor.'" I didn't like to be impolite, Boss, but I did answer rather: "I'm sorry, Roz, but you will have to wait your turn."

Then the girl at the switchboard said, "Call for Mr. Haight," and I told her to take the message. It was from Mickey Rooney and he wanted to know if I would lunch with him on the Carvel lot. I decline the invitation, Boss. I didn't have any time to fool around with kids.

They are making 12 pictures at the same time at M. G. M. and all the stars were battling to talk to me. I finally got around to giving some of them a chance. I went in a 'phone booth, Boss, and practiced up on some of my best stories and I really let them have the best in the Haight repertoire.

Everywhere I went I simply slayed them. I had Rosaline Russell, Walter Pigeon and Jean Rogers howling so much that they had to do a Cape Cod scene for "Her Honor" four times. Norman Taurog was directing and the stagehands were ten minutes getting him out of a big megaphone into which he wiggled while laughing at that coming-back-from-Florida story—you know the one.

It's only a short walk from that set to where Robert Taylor is doing a picture called "Johnny Eagers," but somebody had called him on the 'phone and told him that Florida story before I got there. He was laughing so hard that the photographers were complaining that the cameras were shaking. I let Bob have a couple and I left him in hysterics.

One of the extras walked up to me and said: "Mr. Haight, please don't tell any more of your funny stories. The first thing you know they will have to suspend production for the day and we extras need the money."

So I decided that I would confine my laughs to the comedy sets. With this in mind I went over to the end of the lot where Reds Skelton, the comedian, is making "Panama Hattie" along with Ann Sheridan, Virginia O'Brien and Alan Mowbray. Well, Boss, I had heard about that Skelton being funny, so on the way over I polished up my best ones, as I usually do when pressed.

As soon as I appeared on the set, action stopped. I was really in form. For once, that Skelton couldn't ad lib. I had the whole bunch in stitches until Director Norman McLeod threatened to change the name of the picture to "Panama Haighty."

That Alan Mowbray was my particular meat. As far as I know he is laughing yet. I wouldn't like to have his dry cleaning bill. He rolled all over the ground, holding his stomach even before I got to the high point in my story.

Well, Boss, I would have been there yet but while they were getting their breath between stories, I overheard some men talking about me being a Government spy sent out by the Senate Committee that's investigating the movie-war thing. I was thinking what move to make next when I heard one of them say, "Now we'll shoot Haight."

Well, I didn't stop running until I was in the Los Angeles Station between the Redskins' trunks.

Always your ace,

Pounds Haight.

P. S.—Right now, I believe I'm half shot at that.

Ruffing Stops Galiano

Newark, N. J., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Bobby Ruffing, 135, New York, scored a technical knockout victory over Pete Galiano, 135, Baltimore, tonight in 2:43 of the third frame of a scheduled ten-round boxing bout.

Leahy Shifts Candidates In Irish Line

The latest to join the list of injured were Jackie Freeman, 150-pound sophomore tailback, and Johnny Korczowski, junior fullback. Both were hurt in an intrasquad scrimmage Saturday. Freeman is expected to be out probably a week with an injured back. Korczowski was in uniform today, but did not engage in the rough work.

Va. U. Is Blocking Drill

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 15.—Virginia coaches, looking to Saturday's football opener with Hampden-Sydney College here, drilled Cavalier players expected to see action in the game on individual blocking assignments today.

Bill Dudley and Eddie Bryant ran from the halfback positions and Turnbull Gillette, Ashby Marshall and Johnny Neff filled the ball-handling quarterback role. Don Niklason, Herber Munhall and Frank Crenshaw alternated carrying the ball from fullback.

The prospective regulars entered the final week of preseason drilling in good shape. Billy Suhling, idle for several days with a minor injury, took his turn at center.

First Iowa Scrimmage

Iowa City, Iowa, Sept. 15.—The University of Iowa Hawkeyes went through a long scrimmage today with two elevens running plays against a reserve team line.

It was the first contact work of the year for the Hawks.

Jack Kennedy, sophomore speedster, reeled off several good gains for the second eleven and caught a number of Tom Farmer's passes.

Ed Thomas worked at the varsity left end in place of Bill Parker, who received a minor leg injury, and Henry Vollenweider alternated with Bill Green at fullback.

Illini Get New Passes

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 15.—Coach Bob Zuppke introduced a new set of pass plays to the Illinois football squad today in a lengthy double drill.

Quarterbacks Dick Good and Johnny Worban did most of the throwing in the aerial drill. Gordon McKenzie, reserve guard, was shifted to center in an effort to bolster the line defensively.

Northwestern Hit

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 15.—Northwestern University, which already has a shortage of experienced linemen, may lose Bus Heagy, guard, to the Army before the grid season is well underway.

Heagy was absent from practice today undergoing an Army examination. Bob Motl, junior end, stood out among the receivers in a long pass session.

Russell Star at W. & L.

Lexington, Va., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Washington and Lee's football squad inaugurated one-a-day drills today.

Dave Russell, sophomore aspirant for the tilback assignment, was outstanding in a drill on open-field tackling.

Richmond in Scrimmage

Richmond, Va., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Reds and Blues tied at 14-all in a spirited scrimmage at the University of Richmond today featured by the defensive work of John Griffin, veteran reserve from Poquoson.

Gophers Rebuked

Minneapolis, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Minnesota's football squad today opened the last week's of practice before entraining for the opening game September 27 against Washington at Seattle with an increased casualty list and some unexpected promotions.

Herd Hein, 167-pound third-stringer from Montana, moved to the varsity left end position to replace Bob Fitch, who is injured. Paul Mitchell joined the varsity squad, taking over Urban Odson's tackle position while the giant lineman rests an injured knee. Another casualty is Ed Lechner, second-string tackle, who became ill.

Passes once again were the order of the day and Coach Bernie Bierman was loudly critical of what he saw, imposing the first penalty jog of the season—a sprint around the field by the whole squad for poor performance.

of delivering tickets by registered mail, follow:

Box seats $20.85
Reserved seats $16.75

The first thing the Dodger management did after announcing the sale was to suggest no applications be made for box seats.

"In view of the limited seating capacity at Ebbets Field," the announcement said, "the preference for box seats will be given to season holders so it is suggested application be submitted only for reserved seats."

The deluge of mail which is apt to swoop down on the Dodgers tomorrow and Wednesday is likely to wipe out the entire seating capacity at Ebbets Field within 48 hours.

Intestinal Trouble Benches Red Rolfe

Boston, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Robert (Red) Rolfe, New York Yankees' third baseman, was under treatment at the Phillips House of Massachusetts General Hospital today for an intestinal ailment, but his physician reported that he was improving and expressed hope that he would be ready to play in the World Series in October.

Dr. James H. Townsend confirmed a report that Rolfe had entered the hospital several days ago for treatment of colitis and said that he now was improving steadily.

Ashes of Lou Gehrig In Permanent Crypt

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The ashes of Lou Gehrig, which have reposed in the family vault of Edward G. Barrow in Kensico Cemetery at Valhalla, N. Y., since the funeral last July, have been transferred to their permanent resting place in the Gehrig plot in the same cemetery, following completion of a modest monument on that spot.

The transfer was made last Saturday.

Contract Bridge

Today's hand created a good deal of comment at one of the Brooklyn games. It seems that East-West can make four spades and at least one daring young West made three no-trump while North-South can make five diamonds or clubs. Here is what Jim Holton says of the deal:

Today's Hand

♠ 83
♡ A Q 10 2
◇ J 8 3
♣ A Q 7 5

♠ A 8 7 5 3 | NORTH | ♠ K Q J 10 9 4
♡ K 7 5 | WEST EAST | ♡ J 9 8 6 4
◇ K 6 2 | SOUTH | ◇ A
♣ K 4 | | ♣ 10

♠ None
◇ Q 10 9 7 5 4
♣ J 9 8 6 3 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	Pass	5 ♣	5 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: 3 ♡.

"This hand proved a 'lulu.' At nearly every table there was a different result. North and South, as can be seen, have no difficulty in making a game in diamonds or clubs; but being vulnerable against non-vulnerable opponents, the question arises: how to get there?

"On the other hand, East and West can make four spades. In fact, one pair romped home at five spades and still another at three no-trump. This latter result was made by a miracle play: declarer had led a heart to the king after winning the diamond ace and he then held up on the second diamond lead from North. He persisted in his heart leads, North winning only the diamond jack, the heart ace and queen and the club ace.

"Playing it at spades, it makes a big difference whether North or South is on lead. With North the opening leader, he must open the club ace, else declarer will steal five spades, as his diamond king takes care of dummy's singleton ten of clubs.

"Pretty near the same darn thing happened to me though East was declarer. After my singleton heart opening of partner's suit upon which a low heart was played from dummy, North took the queen and ace and brilliantly played back the heart deuce, offering me a chance to ruff with my nonexistent trump and indicating a club return by the play of the lowest card of his heart suit—this being the suit-preference signal.

"Sure they made five when declarer won this trick, drew trumps and claimed the balance.

"Several tables reported that East made an informative double, thus placing the spade declaration in the West hand. Still others bid spades over North's club call. Six diamonds or six clubs proved a swell sacrifice for those who bid that high."

Gulf Storm Sweeps Inland but Abates

Port Arthur, Tex., Sept. 15 (U.P.).—Atropical storm against which residents had been warned over the weekend swept inland between here and Galveston early today, but its intensity, at one time reported 60 miles an hour, had abated to less than 25. It brought heavy rains, however.

N. Y. Campaign Ends in Apathy

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—A more or less apathetic municipal primary election campaign winds up today with Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, seeking a third term, opposed in the Republican primary by John R. Davies, former president of the National Republican Club. The polls will be open from 2 p. m. to 9 p. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow.

The mayor is also the candidate of the American Labor Party, Right Wing. In the Democratic primary, Brooklyn's district attorney, William O'Dwyer, is unopposed for the nomination.

There has been few sharply drawn issues in the campaign.

HUHNNH UHNNH
PALOOKA LANDED A SHORT RIGHT TO THE BODY---DILL PARRIED WITH A LEFT TO THE FACE--- THEY CLINCHED--THEY'RE BODY PUNCHING IN CLOSE--THERE'S THE BELL--
YOU'RE BREATHING AWFULLY HEAVY--I TOLD YOU NOT TO WASTE BREATH ON INFIGHTING--- KEEP 'IM OFF--- AWRIGHT--IS RED HERE?
HE'S TRYING TO KID ME. HE WAS PRETENDING HE WAS WINDED. YOU SHOULDA HEARD 'IM IN THE CLINCH--HUHH-UHHH-HUHHH LIKE THAT.
DON'T LET 'IM KID YOU--HE'S TRYIN' SOME TRICK.
JOE WHATSA MATTER WITH YA--WHY DONTCHA KEEP INFIGHTIN'--OHHH I WISHT I COULD BE IN 'IS CORNER.
WHATSA MATTER WALSH--NERVOUS? YA SHOULD BE!

WINNIE WINKLE — Gangway — BY BRANNER

SO DAN'S A BANK PRESIDENT! SAY, MAYBE YOU COULD MARRY HIM AND--
FATHER! WE DON'T LOVE EACH OTHER! DAN IS ONLY INTERESTED IN FINDING HIS FRIEND AND MY HUSBAND! BESIDES, I'M SURE BILL IS STILL ALIVE!
WELL, YOU COULD ALWAYS CLAIM THAT BILL DESERTED YOU!
OHHHH
I HEARD THAT REMARK, YOU HEARTLESS, SHAMELESS OLD REPROBATE---
HEY, POP, WHERE Y'BOIN' IN SUCH A HURRY?
DON'T STOP ME, PERRY! I'M RUNNIN' AWAY FROM HOME--AN' NO FOOLIN'!!

Listen! with Glynn

An Arkansas traveler, who's traveled pretty far, hits the air lanes of WJSV and the Columbia network for a regular series of Tuesday night visits at 7:30 tonight.

He's the well-liked comedian and monologist, Bob Burns, and, complete with bazooka, he stars in the new set of programs which, appropriately enough, are called "The Arkansas Traveler."

Bob is to be the key figure in dramatizations based on his unusual experiences with his fabulous and somewhat eccentric rustic kinfolk—sisters, cousins, uncles, aunts and what have you—about whom Mr. Burns can talk for hours, and usually does.

The original "Arkansas Traveler," a gentleman named Sanford C. Faulkner, won acclaim as a storyteller throughout the South in the days preceding and following the War Between the States. He covered the rural sections of Arkansas, Tennessee and Louisiana, gathering folk lore, folk music and information in general about the natives. And his material, thus collected, formed the basis for many delightful sessions of yarn-spinning wherever he visited.

It's safe to say that his nearest modern counterpart is Bob Burns, except that Bob has been able to get around more and he's proved that he's able to entertain more and larger audiences than Faulkner ever dreamed of.

The Post Radio Highlights

5:45, WJSV—Maneuvers between the Second and Third Armies in Louisiana are being broadcast on many of the news broadcasts this week. This C. B. S. program, The World Today, will air from the South daily, as will the N. B. C. quarter hour on WRC at 6:15.

7:30, WMAL—For America We Sing: Jean Dickenson, Met soprano, and Jan Peerce, the tenor, program some all-American favorites.

7:30, WINX—State Salute to Oklahoma.

8, WJSV—Author-Actor-Producer Eddie Dowling takes over the reins of We, the People, with Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, the American screen stars who made good on British radio, as his first guests.

9, WMAL—Vice President Henry A. Wallace addresses Fordham University's centennary dinner. The Most Rev. Amleto Cicognani, the apostolic delegate, voices greetings from the Pope.

Truck Driver Gets A 30-Day Hangover

New York, Sept. 15 (INS).—Truck-driver Harry Tyler, 36, in Traffic Court today was fined $100 or 30 days and had his license revoked for being "dead"—dead drunk.

Police investigating a traffic snarl five blocks long were told that a truck driver had died at his wheel and his truck was blocking traffic. Just before calling the Morgue, police heard Tyler snoring. Given the intoxication test, he fell flat on his face. Tyler took the 30 days.

30 Will Begin Training as Nurses' Aides

Thirty Washington women will begin training here tomorrow to become nurse's aides under a program sponsored by the Office of Civilian Defense and the American Red Cross, Otto Lund, manager of the District chapter, announced yesterday.

The classes will be held at 2020 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest from 10:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. Monday through Friday, Lund declared, and will last seven weeks.

The program was inaugurated following Civilian Defense Director LaGuardia's statement recently of the need of 100,000 women trained as nurse's aides throughout the country.

80 Hours' Instruction

"We hope eventually to train between 400 and 500 women here," Lund said yesterday, "but this depends upon the interest shown."

The training course consists of 80 hours' instruction, half of which will be in local hospitals. When the students complete the course they will be asked to serve 150 hours in the hospitals here as needed.

Another class is scheduled to begin training the early part of November. At that time it is hoped to have both morning and afternoon classes. Mrs. John H. Jouett is acting chairman of the Nurse's Aide Corps here.

Interviews Obtainable

Although nearly 1000 women signified their willingness to undergo this type of training most of these were not qualified or could not spare sufficient time, Lund declared. Women between the ages of 18 and 50 with a high school education are eligible. Those interested in entering the November class may obtain an interview by calling Republic 8300, extension 249.

Another of the Red Cross home nursing classes will be organized Friday afternoon at the Red Cross Chapter House, 1730 E Street Northwest, the District chapter announced. The class is scheduled to meet Wednesdays and Fridays from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m., and is open to all women, with a maximum of 20 students. Registration can be made by telephone at Republic 8300, extension 251.

Light Tanks Relegated to Scouting Only

By W. W. Chaplin

International News Service Staff Writer

People high in the Army are beginning to acknowledge that the American light tanks are too light for full-force combat. Now that the medium tanks, more than twice as heavy, are rolling off the assembly lines, the lightweights will be put back where they belong, into the scouting and live-to-fight-another-day units.

Light tank production was stressed early in the defense program because the need for any kind of tank was urgent and they could be made quickly. We have got well over 1000 now and we will keep on making them because they are fine, if not shouldered with the main bout duties of the mediums.

The light tanks are tested by targetting a slab or armor plate in a 100-yard shooting range for gunners to fire at with everything up to 37-mm. cannon. But the powder charge is economized to give muzzle velocity of only 2500 feet per second, which allows an antitank gun 3000 rounds before relining. That's gunpowder pattycake.

If the light tanks were sent headon into a major engagement, where only heavies and mediums belong in the front line, an enemy willing to burn up a few guns with super-velocity powder charges could probably splinter the 12½-ton kettles the way Buffalo Bill used to shoot glass balls out of the air in the circus.

SHADOW MAN—Vice President Wallace is the man on the flying trapeze on the economic warfare stage of the national defense drama. He is the boss; he wears the spangles and takes the bows. But as in most big shows, a lot of the script is written and the routine worked out by some unknown in the wings on whom the spotlights never fall. The economic warfare shadow man is Winfield William Riefler, economist, statistician, etc. If he is as good at economic fisticuffs as he is at the real rough and tumble, all should be well. He won the Croix de Guerre in the A. E. F.

SEA FEED—You don't have to "pity the poor sailors" of the United States Navy, not when it comes to chow. They get all the food they want and it does not come any better in higher-bracket homes ashore. On the new battleship North Carolina they are trying the cafeteria system and it works just fine. When they served "family style" the little stomachs were offered just as much as the big stomachs and there was a lot of waste. Now each man takes just what he wants and the amount he wants. Tough on the fish that follow the fleet for cast-off leavings—but you can't please everyone.

Erie Publisher Dies

Erie, Pa., Sept. 15 (AP).—James J. Mead, sr., 78-year-old publisher of the Erie Daily Times, was killed today in front of his home when he was run over by a truck. Mead, believed to be the oldest newspaper publisher in the State, was a native of Irelahd.

Flush Poisons From Kidneys and Stop Getting Up Nights

Be Healthier, Happier—Sleep Better Costs 35c—Must Help or Money Back

When you can get for 35 cents an efficient and harmless stimulant and diuretic that should flush from your kidneys the waste matter, poisons and acid that are now doing you harm, why continue to break your restful sleep by getting up thru the night?

Don't be an EASY MARK and accept a substitute—Get Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original and genuine. Look for the Gold Medal on the box—35 cents. Money back if it fails.

Other symptoms of weak kidneys and irritated bladder may be backache, puffy eyes, shifting pains, burning or scanty passage.

House Approves Bill For Medical Library

House approval of Senate amendments yesterday completed legislative action on a bill authorizing the War Department to purchase for $1,000,000 a site near the Folger Shakespearean Library for a new Army Medical Library and Museum to cost $3,750,000.

Costa Rica Pledged To Stand Behind U. S.

San Jose, Costa Rica, Sept. 15 (AP).—President Rafael Calderon Guardia told a big anti-Nazi demonstration today that Costa Rica would do her part in the defense of the Western Hemisphere.

"In the face of the evil force which is arising, the nation to the north, led by President Roosevelt, is following the example of Lincoln," Calderon Guardia asserted.

"We do not know to what limit the United States will go but we shall gladly accept whatever sacrifice Costa Rica is called upon to make. I call upon all Costa Ricans to swear irrevocably to defend the civic patriotism which links us to our ancestors."
